STUDENT LIFE

Armijo Traditions:

Of all the schools in our district, Armijo is the only one who currently puts on a spirit march. It is one of our longest traditions and it helps everyone get in a spirited mood on game day. As the pageantry, band, cheerleaders and football players march the halls all of the onlookers have a great time. The fight song plays throughout the school during first period and the group makes sure to stop by every hall. For the last sixty years it has been a long-standing tradition that the students and players have kept alive. Everyone enjoys these Fridays, even the teachers.

First Down:

One! Two! Three! First Down!! Although our first downs on the football field were hard to come by this year, there was certainly no shortage in the post-spirit march celebrations. It's always been said that Armijo students make up for whatever they may lack on the field with the spirit they carry off the field, and this year was no exception. Each Friday before home games, the A-Men and the cheerleaders, moved the chains all on their own among cheers of onlookers, players and coaches.

Leading the Tribe:

Though they may not get all the credit and recognition they deserve, the Armijo Super Band is the lifeblood and backbone of each and every spirit march. The trombones here, led by Nick Bergam '11 emerge from C Hall, laying down key notes in the Armijo Anthem. If it weren't for the baritone of the trombones, the beating of the bass and the snapping of the snares, how else would the mass of participants be able to not only keep time but also pump pride into the students early every Friday morning?

 As Coach Toliver rounds the boys up for a postmarch cheer and Indian Call, one can sense the air of pride shared by both the players on the field and their counterparts on the side lines.

2. Leading from behind, just like on the football field, Brian Wilson '11 in his usual quiet manner trails the team throughout the spirit march. Long time friend and four year team mate Casey Towner '11 had the chance to drop some promising words about his friend, "He's never been one to let his accomplishments go to his head, he's a quiet guy, a mellow guy, someone I'm proud to call my best friend."

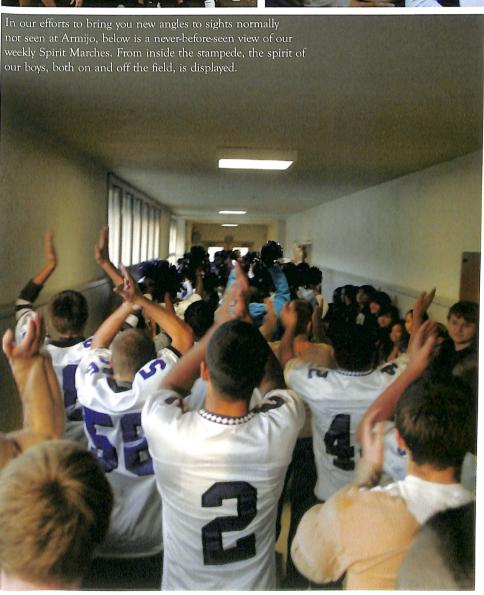

- 3. Rounding the corner, the A-Men are led by Wilson Hull 'I and the Cheerleaders, while the Football players are led by Ali Karaouni. from here they'll begin their long march from the basketball courts all the way to the annex.
- 4. It was the last march of the season, and the Varsity team took the time to reminisce their four years together and all the good times they had had with one another.
- 5. Even though the A-Men group are usually "Seniors Only", Zach Peterson '12 was lucky enough to sneak into uniform for one march of brisk Friday morning.
- 6. Providing an ancient touch to the Super-Band, Shannon Farney sets the tone with a seemingly traditional Indian drum.
- 7. A fourth-year veteran of the drum corps, Cordele Glass '11 shows off for the camera while still playing his beat.
- 8. Between the annex and main campus the marchers rest a little bit before getting ready to yell their hearts out once again.

- 6:17 pm Thursday night practice has just ended, and the team walks off the field exhausted. Not Ali though, he's more ready than ever to deliver crushing blows tomorrow night on the field.
- 7:57 am Minutes away from the first bell and the start of the march, Ali gathers outside the band room with fellow coaches and players as they get pumped for the thrill of racing down the hallways.
- 8:35 am Right about now the march is rushing though G-Hall, after being held up and then led on stampede style by Ali. Acting as a captain both on and off the field, Ali is responsible for firing the team up throughout the day.
- 2:55 pm As part of team tradition, Ali joins his teammates at Joe's Buffer for a hearty sandwich to prepare the last key part of his body for the game: his stomach.
- 7:00 pm Kick off! It's been a day of excitement and anticipation for Ali and the team. They are ready to cap it off with a good game against Fairfield High.

Every who at Armijo High was anxious that day, waiting long to see some clever Dr. Seuss plays.

Leadership tossed and turned getting everything together, wishing and hoping that the night of, there's good weather.

The Freshmen started off with Oh The Places You Will Go, unfortunately they received last place for their little show.

Sophomores were a hit with Cat & The Hat,
Emily Eddy '13 was a crowd favorite with her suit made of fat.

Juniors would not eat Green Eggs & Ham,
At the end of their night second place was a sham.
In first place was the Seniors with Nick Spini '11 as the Grinch, Winning first place was a such a cinch.

Homecoming day was filled with out of this world costumes and story lines from the excellent mind of Dr. Seuss this year. Imagination is important to every homecoming, but imaginations had to run especially deep and wild, to represent the farfetched characters and stories from Dr. Seuss. From the giant Grinch residence of Mt. Krumpet to the wild and crazy Cat in the Hat, students went above and beyond this year more so than ever. All of the skits were very creative and elaborate including costumes, story lines, and even backdrops.

All four classes were excited to express a theme that reminded them of when they were a kid. Everyone that participated had a great time bringing back memories from when they were younger. Usually homecoming themes are revolved around current events, but you could tell during the skits that parents and students were both reminiscing about their childhoods and what their favorite Dr. Seuss stories were. Everyone put a lot of hard work and effort into making this homecoming such an amazing night as it was.

"Out of all the nominees dering that night, the best dressed was Alex Swafford and Melissa Gomea, because it looked like they were prepared for the night and did there best to look elegant." Jairon Gasosta '13 said

It was spirit week at Armijo, a time when students let their school pride show. This week Armijo's spirit really happened to glow. An outfit a day, It sure cost us no pay. Dr. Seuss was the theme as we all dressed up and walked as a team.

The first day was "The Grinch who stole my wardrobe". Everyone's outfit looked like a joke. Orange with gold? That sure didn't flow. Many people had spoke and here is a quote, "A lot of people were mismatched on this day, even though I didn't participate in it, there was still a lot of spirit scene throughout the halls of Armijo!" Said Yvette Kontogiannis '12. Mismatched clothes here and there Mismatched clothes everywhere!

Then it was time for Butter Battle Day. Good thing there were no planes that carried Bombay's. Everyone knew it wasn't some scandal; this was one battle the students could handle. Wearing their battle attire picking whatever their hearts had desired; from robots, to ninjas, and even marines, dressing up was in their genes! The battlefield was not extraordinary, instead it contained alot of disciplinary.

After the battle it was time to travel, Hawaii, Paris, and even Tokyo, all across this wonderful globe. Some were colleges and some were vacations but no matter what, there were sure no devastations. From "I heart this" to "I heart that" caused many people to meet up and chat. Oh the places that we all want to go!

After all the places you've been you've finally come around to meeting your twin. They may not look or even act like you, but your outfits match, that, yes they do! As the spirit week comes to an end it feels as if we had started a trend. The spirit can be seen from a mile away, us adding to it every each day. As we march through the halls Horton begins to make a call; "Armijo's got spirit how 'bout you all!" Our spirit did not look new, in fact the spirit seemed like it grew. So let the stories be told, of us rockin' that purple and gold!

Passing Period n. 1. The time during which large groups of students are allowed to go to and from their assigned areas on the campus. 2. A certain amount of time to get from one class to the next before it starts. 3. A time for students to hang out with friends. 4. A time to go to the bathroom without missing classes. 5. A time for students to let out their talkative side if they can't talk during class.

It is obvious that seven minutes is not enough time to get from one class to another based on the large amount of late students to their classes. So the unanswered question here is 'Why is 7 minutes too short of a time to get from one class to the next.' There is a lot of things that you can do in seven minutes inside and outside of school. For example you can run a mile, take penalty kicks in soccer, take a few pictures, score a touchdown, do a math problem, and many other things can be done in that short amount of time.

"During passing periods, I change out my books in my locker and meet up with my boyfriend." Ceejay Diaz '11 says.

Passing periods vary from time to time. Most of the time, students hang out with their friends until the 2-minute bell rings. "The most that I have ever done in the passing period of seven minutes is go to my locker and walk to my next class with a couple of my friends." States Kristin Russell '12. If you observe the halls and students during passing periods, you will mostly see students talking in groups, students at their lockers, or students walking from annex to main campus or main campus to the annex. Passing period is the time for students to let out a little bit of energy before they go to their next class for another hour. Students mostly have enough time to get to their locker and talk to their friends and still get to class on Sometimes students end up having classes very close together and end up getting there really early. So they wait outside for their teacher to get there, and to be able to go into the nice warm room during the winter. Other students have long walks all the way across campus.

3. Walking from the annex to main campus and vice versa is a daily routine for many students around Armijo. Some students have to walk back and forth all day while others have all their classes in the same area.

4. It is very common to see students with a group of friends wondering around or going to the bathroom in the seven minutes when their classes are a minute away. They spend their time doing as much as they can before suffering through another hour

5. These students are waiting for their 4th period to start. They wait outside of their classroom near E and F hall portables talking to their friends until the two minure bell rings. Close by is the awning with picnic tables under it so that students can rest while waiting. This is a good meeting spot in between classes for many students.

6. In the middle of main campus and annex in the fire lane, during passing periods, students usually walk like cars drive on the street, on the right side. To pass the time by some students make funny faces at their friends on the other side as their little form of entertainment.

7. Forgetting things in their locker occurs quite often, resulting in student not having the material needed for their next class. Students often forget what they need inside of their locker and spend their 7 minutes trying to remember before they are late to their class. The importance of being on time to class and the distraction of their many friends makes it harder for students to remember the thing that they will need.

first step to getting a job seems simple enough... out an application. Surprisingly, the most common mistake when filling out an application is not being able to follow the directions on each specific application. Mistakes like this had persuaded me to sit down with Mr. Gutowski in room C9. He is the introduction to marketing, and Virtual enterprise teacher, as well as the DECA advisor. According to a video shown in his introduction to marketing class there are three key things you need to remember before filling out an application: 1. Bring a Ballpoint pon (black or blue ink), 2. Remember your fact sheet (a list of personal information), 3. Have copies of your resume handy. After the video oncluded I did some more research and found some more helpful tips: Avoid using the word "fired", give a phone number where you can be reached during the day or during the evening, if you feel something will make you loose the job you write "wish to discuss in person", and finally the most important is Drama, opinions, rumors, and arguments; unfortunately these are all part of the high school experience.

And even though these things may make or break a friendship, they also create new ones. Within the first five seconds of meeting someone, you've already formed an opinion about them in your mind. You've decided whether mind. You've decided whether or not you like them or if you want to become friends with them. A million things go through your head and before you realize it you've formed your own opinion about who you think they are, how they'll act, and what their personality is like. Fortunately we receive the chance to get to know people a little better and we realize that our first impression was wrong. Sometimes these rumors and things we hear aren't true and you just have to learn to ignore them and actually get to know someone for yourself. Having friends means that you are going to fight and get into stupid fights over crazy things but you both know in the end that you will always be there for each other and no matter what you'll have each others backs. This was the case for sophomores Katie Bostwick '13 and Sarah Souki '13. These two have known each other since 6th grade but didn't become friends until freshman year. At first neither of them liked each other at all or how the other acted and Katie even said, "She was too nice." These two are always getting into fights and they are literally fighting over anything and everything, from Capri suns to string cheese to who is right and wrong. Katie stated that Sarah thinks she is always right and Sarah's response, with a smile, was, "I am always right." As they explained the random things that they get into fights over they started arguing over getting into fights, which is apparently a regular thing for them. Their lovehate relationship has made them become, "crazy close," and they don't know what they would do without each other. They're friendship is never boring. They spend every moment together and have gotten into some crazy situations but they've also created memories that will last them a lifetime. It just goes to show that you can't trust your first impression because you may hate someone but once you get to know them you turn out to be the best of friends.

Do you like having your older or younger siblings at school with you?

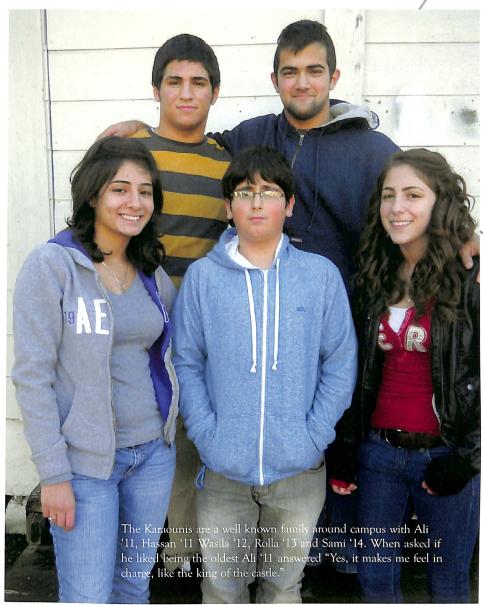

Most students said they liked having siblings at school because it gave them a sense of protection and also they knew where they could always find someone if they needed help or advice. Some students say it makes it easier to have all their siblings at one school because they can all carpool together.

taking a closer look at Sadies

Instead of sitting around waiting for a guy to ask them on a date, the ladies got the opportunity to ask that special someone to our annual Sadie Hawkins dance! This year a student, Cordele Glass '11, was the DJ for the event. Although the tradition that goes along with the dance is for the girl's to ask the boy's some students went stag and some asked their friends that happened to be girls. This year, our school had a few people attending the dance who had never been on a date before, either. After attending with friends in the past, April Vogel '11 decided to ask Michael Mahoney '11 to Sadie's. Kelsey Bonar '14 danced the night away with Luis Gonzalez '14, this being her first date ever. Another Armijo tradition is for dates to wear matching shirts. Throughout the night everyone sees a lot of variety whether it be t-shirts that glow in the dark, fancy outfits, or homemade shirts.

In addition to the event itself, many students also had activities planned for before and after the dance including dinner, picture sessions and parties. April Vogel '11 and her date Michael Mahoney '11, along with many other people, all crowded at Lacey Dahlin's '11 house to enjoy a nice dinner before departing to Armijo. "We're going to Texas Roadhouse [before the dance]," says Mahogany Dawson '12, who went with Ray Stewart '12 and many of their other friends.

However, not everyone had dinner before attending the dance. Two good friends, Saravi Suarez '11 and Elizabeth Silva '11 decided to just "go to Eli's house to hang out and get ready." Angelica Sanchez '11 and her date Fabian Quintero '11 thought it would be fun to go to Starbucks with a few friends to enjoy a little coffee before the dance. Everyone had different plans but from seven to ten they were all together at the dance.

A lot of people attended this dance, and really enjoyed themselves. The band put in a lot of effort to make this dance the place to be on the night of November tenth. This is one of two dances that Armijo had this year and all grade levels were allowed to attend. Many agree that it is one of the more memorable nights of the year.

8. This group of girls, including Mackenzie Bishop '12 and Adhithi Narayanan '12 definitely had a blast rocking out all night long, talking and dancing with friends. "I had so much fun that night, between the dancing and hanging out with friends. It was definitely a night to remember," says Mackenzie Bisop '12.
9. Dwena Philips '14 asked her boyfriend of 2 years, Paul Mooridian '13 to Sadies at the football game against Fairfield High School. She had her cheer team help her by holding up signs that spelled out his name and made up a cute cheer to go along with it. The couple is seen here resting and having an interesting conversation with both a friend and teammate, Annette Miller '11.

What is your opinion on the decorations and the choice of music? If you could, what would you have changed or done different?

This year, Armijo broke away from our tradition of hiring a DJ and had a member of our student body, Cordele Glass '11 DJ instead. Although some of the students didn't feel the beat, he had a very different taste in music that rocked Sadies. "The decorations made it feel like a club, which was cool. But the music was not the business," said Ali Karaouni '11. Although everyone has their own preferences, lots of students felt the decorations were different and nice touch this year. "The decorations were pretty cool, but there could have been black lights to make it way cooler." says Caitlin Hardy, '11.

What was your favorite part about powderpuff?

"My favorite part from powder puff was playing against the sophomore class and actually winning our first year at Armijo. All of the practices we had were a lot of fun and the cheerleaders were hilarious. All together it was such a great experience and I can't wait until we win again next year," says Megan Savko '14.

At first glance, these homes may seem like just the average house. A door, windows, and a front yard, but once you walk through the doors a whole new view is put into place. Of course you can find a living room some decorated with family photos, a couch, and television, but unlike the usually house a few proud Armijo students have a little extra. "I have a game room where I spend a lot of time," says Howie Thomson '14. He prefers the game room to all the other rooms because he can get away, play games, and watch movies. The idea of having your own personal room, other than a bedroom, is quit appealing, especially when it's filled with all the things you love and enjoy. Who wouldn't want a special room just for them?

But when it comes to entertaining friends Wilson Hull '11 goes to his backyard for some fun. "We have a pool and fire pit that my friends like hanging out by," noted Wilson. It's obvious when you return inside that his mother's touch can be found throughout the house. With white accents and cool artwork her clean and crisp style ties the house all together. Wilson's home is one with decorative style.

If your looking for beautiful architecture then the home of the Bishop's is where it's at. After expanding their home, Riley Bishop '11 was able to settle into his new home. "During my sophomore year we moved to a house in Vacaville, while we had the second part of my house added on," said Riley. The ending result, a home filled with unique details, an amazing view, and a few extra rooms. "We needed the extra space, because of a growing family," added Riley. If you take a closer look at the home you'll find details that you might not see in other homes. In the kitchen the ceiling is plated with gold tile and the staircase has different decorative tile. Adding little touches to make the house feel like home.

But whether it's one room, new rooms, or even your backyard, having a space to go to and relax is what they love most. But it's not the size or the number or rooms that make up a home. It's those that live in it and fill it up, that make it a home.

When it comes to choosing someone to be in a relationship with, what do you look for in the person?

I look for someone that's not afraid to talk and share how they feel. If the person isn't trying to get to know me then that's an automatic red flag that maybe this person just isn't for me. It's also important that you we're able to start out as friends first. The person also should share some of your similar interest like sports, television, book, and things like that. When you hang out with the person and you're having fun it just makes things easier and more comfortable. -Demi Gray '11

Thursday, February 10th, wasn't just any typical Thursday. It was the day that only happens once a year, the day upperclassmen plan for weeks what they're going to wear and who's going to go. Armijo's Junior-Senior Bowling Night is one of the biggest fundraiser's the grad night puts on for the upperclassman to enjoy themselves at. Everywhere you turned you heard talk about this fun night that awaited us all. The entire week juniors and seniors waited in line to get their tickets, got their permission slips signed, and when that final bell rang on that Thursday afternoon, it was time.

Time to put on the costumes each team had been planning to wear, time to drink all the energy drinks they would need to last them until midnight, time to prepare for one of the most memorable nights they'd encounter in their high school years.

Approaching the front doors of the bowling alley you looked to see what row you were on and received your bracelet for the raffle contest they hold. As you entered you can across all kinds of different and crazy costumes. From a Mariachi band to Greasers to Old Ladies; there were many creative and fun ideas. The team that managed to win over the crowd the most thou was the 80's workout group. Dylan Jones '11, Cait Welsh '11, Dakota Robarge '11, Darian Chan '11, and Michelle Giron '11 were all part of the winning group and when the winner was announced they were all very excited. "I knew we were going to win because of my mullet and my short-shorts," Dylan said when asked how he felt about his team being the winners.

The costume contest wasn't the only competition though, students throughout the night listened for their bracelet number to be called, sang karaoke, and also answered multiple trivia question and in return received various fun prizes.

As the night went on, the energy in the room never seemed to fade. Students ate pizza and enjoyed their soda as they talked, laughed and bowled with their friends. When midnight rolled around though it was time to leave. Juniors and seniors gathered together to take a few last photos that they would later look back on to remember the night. Armijo's Junior-Senior Bowling night was a huge success thanks to the 200 students that participated and all the parent volunteers who help out.

1. Cairlyn Lee '11 and Noah Dennis'12 are seen dressed as Retro Barbie and Ken. The remaining members of their team, Annette Miller '11, Lauren Vigil '11, and Dree Webster '11, were different variations of Barbie's such as Ballerina, Malibu, and Soccer Barbie.

2. Juniors Mahogany Dawson '12, Melissa Gomez '12, and Chelsea Hubbard '12, decided to dress in tie-dye. Chelsea Hubbard's '12 favorite thing about the night was hanging out with friends and bowling.

3. Thanks to his friends, Eddie Gumataotao '11 chose to sing Karaoke. His song choice was Party in the U.S.A., because he knew the lyrics, and even though he had mixed emotions he was able to get the crowd cheering.

4. The only thing missing on this Thursday night was Pink Ladies to go

4. The only thing missing on this Thursday night was Pink Ladies to go along with our jenior Greasers. Austin Liddicoat '12, Daniel Lavell '12, Tim Smithson, '12, Stephen Yoo '12, and Robin Roxas '12 put on their best Greaser outfits and bowled the night away. Austin, getting a high score of 194, said his favorite part of the night was seeing all the different costumes. His personal favorite was the Old Ladies.

5. For this group, being bright was obviously their goal and standing out in the crowd wasn't difficult. Neon s what they chose and for Katryna Sanders '12 being bright was her favorite thing about their outfits.

6. A Mariachi band?? That's right! Jad Souls '11, Matthew Limneos '11, Jesus Sanchez '11, Andre Miranda '11, and Rafael Hernandez '11 were the members of this band and they touldn't have been more into it. They had accents, sombreros, and even ponchos. Jesus was asked what his favorite part about their costumes was and he said, "All out little instruments. That wrapped it all together right there!"

7. Seniors Jaclyn Nielson '11, Chelby Dillman '11, Sauh Moraida '11, and Lizzy Dillman '11 had one of a kind costumes and a one of a kind pose. With rollers in their hair, their granny outfits, and their slippers on, all that was missing was the faces they are seen showing off.

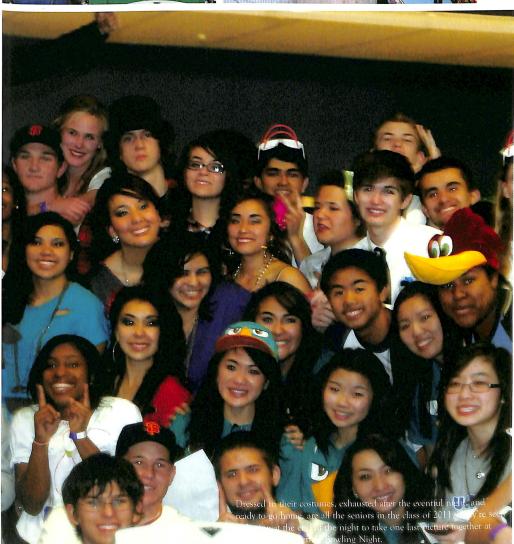

"I loved hanging out with my friends. We had a lot of fun playing with mustaches and beating everyone in bowling was fun too." -Matthew Wilson 11

"I loved having a lane next to my other friends. It was like a three lane party, other than only interacting with just your group." -Lina Nguyen '11

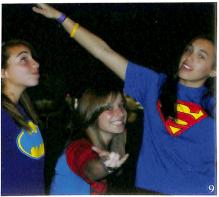

"I loved competing in the random quizzes because I actually won one." -Shanthi Sivasankaran '11

8. Kendra Monterrosa '11, Yaritza Verduzco '11, Sarahi Suarez '11, and Blanca Ruiz '11 weren't really sure what they went to Bowling Night dressed as. When asked what they were they asked in return, "What do you think we are?" Girls from the 80's? "Yeah we're that," they said giggling.

9. Not only are they super at saving the world; they're also super at bowling. Juniors Tia Rowley '12, Candis Hatfield '12, and Jordan Wilson '12 are seen ready to save anyone in danger. Candis and Jordan said they had three 5-hour energy drinks before coming to Stars, so they'd be able to stay awake all night. Candis was also able to get the highest score in her group.

Freshmen's First Game:

Garlind Webster '14 played a great game and helped the underclassmen put a good score on the board for the game. Even though they played a great game the senior-staff team won the game and pulled through with a victory. Garlind said, "It was a lot of fun interacting with all of my teachers outside of a classroom setting. It was also fun being quarterback for my firs Student vs. Staff game." This year the freshmen turn out was exceptional; many of them came out and played in the game.

Junior's Pull Through with a Good Game:

The Juniors were able to put a lot of points on the board this year and they ended up winning the game, A lot of students showed up to watch the game and also to play. We had two great MC's this year, Jad Souki '11, and Casey Towner '11. There were flags all over the field; they were being pulled left and right. A lot of staff showed up to support the game and helped the juniors and seniors with a great win this year against the underclassmen.

Senior Girls Show the Men How to Play:

Adaeze Perkins '11 played a great game for the girls part of the team and put many points on the board for them, and were running left and right from the guys attempting to pull her flag. She made a great impact on the final score for the staff team. However she wasn't the only girl that stood out on the field, Hawa Naimzada '13 also played a great game, having 3 assists and also blocked a pass when she was playing on defense.

Mr. Arcia helps kickoff the game to help his fellow co-workers and the upperclassmen team. They played a great game and won against the underclassmen. 3. Senior Jad Souki '11 interview's Malik Thrower '11 about how the game is going to turn out today, Malik said, "We're going to be very successful today and we're going to also Win! Win! Win!"

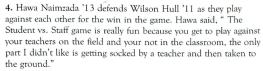

What was your favorite part of the Student vs. Staff game and what made the game fun?

"The Student vs. Staff game was a lot of fun, I liked interacting with the teachers on the field and not in the classroom. It was also fun playing with the sentors, it made the game a lot more interesting," says Juan Aveytia '12

5. Hassan Karouni '11 steals the yellow flag away from sophomore Justin Chandler '13 to stop him from attempting to get the underclassmen another point. Hassan's said, "The game was pretty awesome, I was surprised the teachers can actually be good athletes out of the classroom, but were still better."

6. Mr. Mikkola joins Hassan Karouni '11 to do a victory dance together as they make a point for the red team. They had everyone on the field crying laughing at them by their awesome dance moves. Mr. Mikkola said, "I had the pleasure of playing with the senior class, and I will definitely miss the class of 2011. I had fun with the half time events. And next year, I'll be ready for the 40 yard dash."

7. Mr. Waddles helps the staff and upperclassmen team with the assistance of junior Jonathan Teal '12. They both played a great game and had a lot of fun on and off the field. Jonathan said, "I had a lot of fun at the game, I actually pushed over Mrs. Marley accidently. Another funny moment on the field was when my friend Dion Cain '12 accidentally tripped Nick Spini '11."

8. Justin Chandler '13 made many great plays on the field and seemed to be having a great time at his last game ever. Justin said, "I love winning, but seeing those teachers running around the field was well worth the loss."

Biology from UC Davis. As he grew older, chemistry and physics continued to interest him and he decided to continue in his education. And as he continued this pursuit in both chemistry and physics, he met his wife, Stacie, in a physics class. They married on March 27th,

After exploring other occupations, Mr. Hooper once again was influenced by his love of science and became a teacher here at Armijo High School. With his enthusiasm for education, participation in spirit days, and bright attitude, he was a valued staff member throughout his career. When he learned of diagnosis of stage four colon cancer in 2007, he tried to stay in the classroom as much as possible. One of the things that helped him through his treatment was "his love of teaching and his students".* Mr. Hooper passed away on March 3rd, 2011. Long after his passing, he will be remembered as an exemplary person whether as a teacher, colleague, or friend.

memorial program.*

1. Not only did Mr. Hooper share his love of chemistry as a teacher, but he also made learning enjoyable by participating in school dress-up days. He is well known by both staff and students for his love of Star Wars, and showcased this by dressing up as a Jedi for Halloween in 2008. 2. Students, teachers, and friends gather following the memorial service for Mr. David Allyn Hooper. It was a great tribute that celebrated the life of this inspiring teacher3. The program for the memorial service for Mr. Hooper included a biography and some of his favorite quotes. One of these was, "If you're not having fun with life, you're doing something wrong." * 4. Principal Eric Tretten reflects as he begins the memorial service for Mr. Hooper. He, along with Armijo teacher, Lori Rockwell, and Mr. Hooper's wife, Stacie, were distinguished speakers.

From a young age, Mr. Hooper excelled in math

academically."*

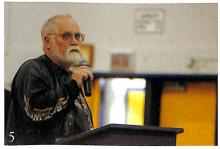

8. Zoe Crowder '10 , though not a current student, attended the memorial service for Mr. Hooper. Through tears, she recounted, "My best memory of Mr. Hooper is mostly the fact that made me less neurotic about taking tests and doing well in class. He used to always to a few seconds to remind me to breath and tell me that I knew all the information already. I still use that method before every test I take." 9. "His love for his wife deep faith in God, positive attitude, and his love of teaching and his students got him through nearly four years of grueling treatments. His life wasn't long, but it really mattered. He will be deeply missed."*

5. During the memorial service, Mr. Aronsen, along with many others were able to share stories about Mr. Hooper. Mr. Aronsen and Mr. Hooper had classrooms across the hall from each other in D-Hall. He shared, "David was full of life, movie characters, pirate flags, and walk the planks and light sabers...but the one thing that David Hooper realted to was his students and their need for education. In the end, David showed us the human side of departing, as he never gave up on the thought of coming back to his beloved Armijo and the students he served." 6. David Hooper was a cherished member of the Armijo staff, as can be seen by the number that attended his memorial service. Mr. Hooper had been a teacher at Armijo for nine years. 7. Students, both current and past, showed up in great number. There were many that participated in the service and recalled their favorite stories of Mr. Hooper. 8. The memorial service occurred on the final day of Teacher Appreciation Week. Teachers received posters in order to express that appreciation, and students gathered together to make one for Mr. Hooper as well.

"On a personal note it has been a pleasure to work with Mr. Hooper over the past nine years, not only was he my coworker, but a true friend. I shared many laughs and have lots of fond memories of David. He was by far one of the most courageous people I have ever known. Throughout the time I have known him he always had an encouraging word, I will miss his sense of humor, and his bear hugs.

If you really know Mr. Hooper you know that

In Mr. Hooper's words I will say TTFN to a good friend, a great mentor and a teacher who loved his students. He was genuinely kind and caring person, but more than anything he was a loving husband and best friend to his wife Mrs. Stacie Hooper."

Thing 1 and Thing 2:

This year's theme for our football homecoming was Dr. Suess so Thing one and Thing two made a special appearance and served as the MCs for the rally. They were the talk of the crowd when their entrance surprised everyone as they jumped out of a box in the center of the court. Everyone liked them and thought their costumes were amazing! They did a great job with the rally over all and the costumes they wore added to everyones excite

Chariot Race and Pre-Games:

Many activities were going on during the rally. As people walked in they could get in line to try and throw a hula hoop around a person standing a few feet away. Many people were successful. During one of the activities the teachers jumped in to try and beat out the students. For one of the games, groups of threes got together and put one person on a sheet. They then had to maneuver the person around cones and race to the finish line. Mr. Ona, Mr. Waddles, and Mrs. Marley had a great time showing their school spirit Amanda Bernal '14 holds up several props for students to use upon entering the gym during the Dr. Seuss rally. There were several games students could participate in that were based on the theme.

Senior Michelle Giron '11 helps out the Rally committee by blowing up balloons and hanging up posters. The rally committee, which is made up of leadership students, gets out around 5th or 6th period to start setting up the gym. Usually the week before is the busiest for the committee when they're trying to finalize everything and make posters. They try to be as creative as possible and come up with new ideas for every rally. That way they keep people coming back and enjoying themselves.

popping activity. They all had so much energy and were all really excited to be involved in it. Even teachers participated!

for the freshman nominees. He said that he was so excited to win and it will be a night he remembers for the rest of his life.

Perhaps one of the be parts of the rallies this year was the addition of a faculty team in all of the events. "I really liked the event with the chariot races, especially since the faculty came in last place." Kyle Dunkin Despite that setback, the faculty went on to win the ballon stomping event at the winter homecoming rally. No matter the outcome, I think we will see the faculty continue to be a part of rallies in the future.

5. As the seniors sit in their designated spots they think about all the good times they had during homecoming and how they will miss it. They all said it has been a great four years of homecomings and will definitely miss them when they are gone.

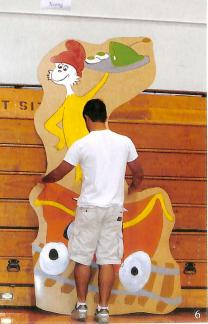

6. Hassan Karaouni '11 helps set up different cardboard cutouts to decorate the gym for the rally. Mrs. Hobb's and her art class helped with making the cutouts and they all turned out great.

7. A 10ft banner covers a large portion of the gym bleechers as the rally decorations becin to be put up. There were more decorations this year at events thanks to the help of the Art Club.

8. The freshman had a great time at this years homecoming, many of them said they loved the theme and hope they can do as good as the senior class has done in the past.

Do you like the Mustangs or the Indians? Rod Squad or A-Team? One thing many friends, siblings and even significant others have to deal with this type of school separation. Some students say they like the time away from their friend or sibling by being at different schools, but others say its hard and but others say its hard and don't like it. Whatever the case is, they work through it and find different ways to see each other.

This is a daily dispute for the Thakur sisters, Rodriguez senior Srishti Thakur '11 and her younger sister, Armijo sophomore Aishwarya Thakur '13. They have gone to different schools since 2007. "It's strange because my dad is a teacher at Armijo, and he and my sister drop me off, then drive back to Fairfield." Going to different schools made for opposite lifestyles. "She's more outgoing than I am. I don't think we'd even talk if we did go to the same school," said Srishti about Aishwarya. Aishwarya thinks of Srishti as not only her sister but also her best friend and role model.

Armijo freshman Isaiah Dolee '14 and Rodriguez freshman Johnathan Sowells '14 have known each other since 2nd grade, but they weren't friends at first. They met through a mutual friend and didn't really like each other. Now they're practically brothers and do everything together. "The distance isn't bad, we need space from each other at times, or we'll end up fighting," says Isaiah.

Rodriguez Junior Kaitlin Christ '12 has been best friends with Armijo senior Dree Webster '11 since last year. They met through soccer, and have bonded since. "The distance is good. We don't always need to be together, but when we do hang out, we get to meet each others' friends." The friendship is mutual, Dree Webster says, "No matter where we are or what we are doing she can always make me laugh. And we always end up doing crazy things together."

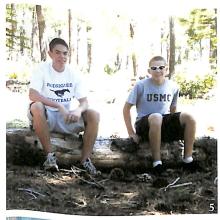

2. Jessica Barker '12 and Daniel Guzman '11 met through a mutual friend at Sky-high in Sacramento on February 5th 2010. Jessica says, "I am so glad I found a guy who likes the same things I do, Mexican food and dancing. We both play sports and always go to each others games."

3. Armijo Junior Jacob Cox '12 met his girlfriend Taylor Saenz '11 through a mutual friends at dollar scoop. "Going to a different school is actually pretty cool. Its a good way to stay out of all the "he said-she said" high school drama,' Jacob said and then smiled, "Shes a sweet girl, that anyone would be lucky to have as a friend. She truly makes me happy."

4. They met playing on the same soccer team and never though they would end up as close as they are. Both Dree Webster '11 and Kaitlin Christ '12 plan on attending the same college and playing soccer together there.

5. Best friends Brian Weisz '13 and Tyler Coe '13 met in the first grade. Since playing little league baseball together, they have become a lot closer and are hanging out together all the time.

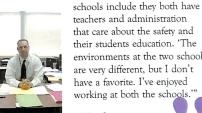

6. "It would be whole lot quieter at my house without all my cousins," says Elizabeth Oretega '11 about her many cousins, Alex Bustamante '14, Eduardo Reynoso '11 David Reynoso 13', Elizabeth Ortega '11, Brenda Bustamann '12, and Alex Reynoso '11. They are all very close, but they to different schools, but they don't let it affect how close the all are. 7. Wilson Hull '12 and sibling Haley Hull '12 have a lot in common, but school's isn't one of them. Both play socret for their schools, and when one isn't playing they're watching and rooting on each other. "It's phenomenal, I cant even imagine going to the same school as her. One hull is enough at Armijo," says Wilson with a smile.

"Mr. Lammon was an assistant principle at Rodriguez for two and a he is now an assistant principle here Armijo. Some of the differences he's noticed from working at both schools, which includes the size of the campus. Rodrige z's campus is a lot smaller and more compact than Armijo's, which is more spread out and a lot bigger. Another big difference between the two schools is the b program and the fact that we have the shop classes and Rod does not. Rodriguez does have a very good Bio Tech program that Armijo does not have the privilege to have. Some of the similarities between the

"Our families have become really close and we even take vacations together. 9. Emily Eddy 13 and Rodriguez junior Kelsey Balella '12 have been best friends since the age of three. They met each other when they played on the same soccer team and have been friends since then. "When we're together we play Xbox and just hang out. Its always fun,' says Emily Eddy '13.

For a few years in a row, Prom has usually been the only formal dance at Armijo. The downside to Prom being the only dance is that only upperclassmen are invited. However, this year was the first annual Winter Ball, where the entire student population was invited, including underclassmen. From buying dresses and ties to finding a date, this kind of dance was new for the freshmen and sophomores, as well as students who haven't been to prom Sophomore, Aiko Kato '13 said, "It was pretty exciting because it was the first time I had been to a dance with friends."

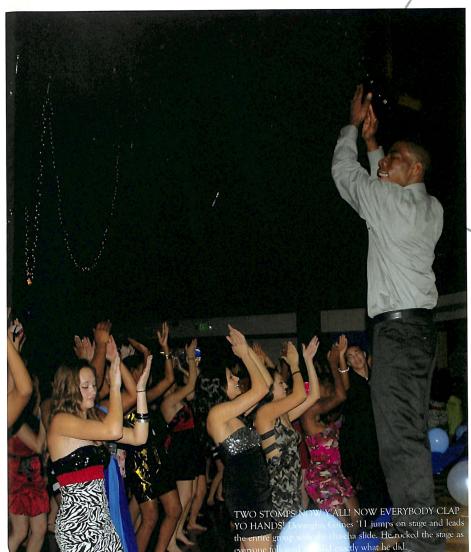

Blue, white and gray balloons were scattered on the floor as students began to trickle into the transformed Winter Wonderland. Sparkling, twinkling lights hung from the ceilings, lighting up like stars. Expectations were high as this was Armijo's first annual Winter Ball, but those expectations were met. "It was exactly what I expected. It helps cause we're seniors, we made it fun," Cotie Galloway '11 smiled happily. The DJ also heard nothing but praise. Mary Salvani '12 commented that her favorite part of the dance was when the DJ played old school music. "I was surprised people knew those songs."

The other big hit of the night was the food and dessert tables. When people weren't accidentally dropping strawberries into the chocolate fountains, they were tasting the delicious chocolate cake, homemade oreos, and many other assortments of cookies. There were people at the tables throughout the entire night. On the opposite side of the room were trays of hot food. Trays of Chick-Fil-A chicken nuggets, homemade lumpia, and croissant sandwiches kept the energy high. Senior Jenna Dragges '11 raved, "the food is really good."

"Winter Ball Committee approached senior Catie Tralka '11 to make the desserts for the dance, and she received nothing but compliments. "Planning, buying and prepping the ingredients, and making the desserts took about 40 hours total." It was obvious Catie put a lot of time into her desserts but she doesn't mind because she loves baking.

Her love for baking inspired her to create a company, complete with business and frequent buyer cards. Her company, Fat Cat has been making her most popular chewy homemade oreos since the beginning of the year. About why she named her company "Fat Cat" she said, "I actually have a super fat cat named Edgar. He is a lovable goofball, so he seemed like a good mascot."

6. Showing off their beautiful dresses, Ruby Singh '11, Jenna Dragges '11, and Cotie Galloway '11 said they had a great time. Cotie went all the way to San Francisco to find her dress.

7. Dances being his favorite events of the year, Marley Arias '11 was ecstatic all night. When asked how many times he got put in a time-out, he responded with, "Three!"

8. Taking a break from all the dancing, juniors Chelsea Oares '12, Robert Kim '12, Spring Nguyen '11, Mary Salvani '12, Sofia Tang '12 talk and hydrate themselves. "My favorite part of Winter Ball was definitely when people started dancing," Chelsea added.

Most athletes call it a good year if they can get one championship in their high school year; two is simply spectacular. Well, one of the teams that played in both the Pig Ball and Capture the Flag Intramural Sports Tournaments did just that. Intramural Sports is a new event this year at Armijo High School. It began as the Associated Student Body Officers met over the summer to plan this year's school events. ASB President. Hassan Karaouni '11, came to the table with some new ideas. One of these ideas, was Intramural Sports.

As the school year began, the Intramural Sports committee in the Leadership class worked to make this idea into a reality. Despite difficulty in getting certain sports approved, pig ball was the first sport that turned out to be a huge success. With over 30 participants taking part in these after school sports, the tournament proved to be a friendly competition. In the last week of September, six teams got together at the basketball courts. After the Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday games, the "Alpha Team" rose to the top and claimed $victo_{N_y}$ of the Pig Ball Tournament.

With the great success of pig ball, the Capture the Flag Tournament that took place was no exception. With another six teams participating, games began Tuesday, December 7th. In a close match between "Alpha Team" and "Team Riddle", "Team Riddle" turned out to be the surprise victor. As a result, "Team Alpha" had their work cut out for them in order to reach the championship round. As two game elimination came around, "Team Alpha" and "Team Riddle" met again to play for the championship. After excellent effort from both sides of the field, "Team Alpha" matched their pig ball victory, claiming the Capture the Flag victory: champions of both intramural sports tournaments.

Though its has been friendly competition, the intramural sports competitions have proved to be a great after school activity for not only those who participated, but also for those who came to watch. Kaila Cauthorn '11 shared, "It turned out to be a lot of fun, especially because my team won the championship."

Because of so much positive participation from the students here at Armijo High School, Intramural Sports seems like it will continue to become a part of this school's lasting legacy. Page Done By: Jaclyn Nielson

A successful new event like Intramural Sports did not come without hard-work and planning. Erika Bernal '11 rose to the challenge as she accepted to be committee head over the Capture the Flag Intramural Sports Committee. 7. Three seniors, David Fernandez '11, Abdul Mohammed '11, and Paul Tawfik '11 clamor to retrieve a loose ball on the second day of Intramural Sports games at the basketball courts. This same intensity was seen across the courts in the hand ball games. 8. An intent line referee, Hayden Del Dotto '14 watches as Kaila Cauthorn '11 searches to make a pass after being forced to stop running under the aggressive pressure coming from Colby

9. Laughing after an intense series of juking, Hassan Karaouni '11 crosses the dividing line after a desperate attempt from the opposing team's Ryan Lucas '13. This score helped Hassan's team to score in their victory in the championship game.

10. A hustling Elisha Machado '13 defends her side in Capture the Flag by tagging Xavier Deogaygay '11 who made a run for the flag. Elisha's team ended second in the tournament.

Taking a closer look at... The New Library

Books have always been referred to as keys to the imagination, or open doors to new worlds. Since 1961, the Armijo High School library has done a wonderful job sheltering those books and providing a calm, comfortable environment for all the students that look for a place to enjoy a story or study. For all it's hard work, our library is about to be rewarded and Armijo will possess a brand new library, located in the annex area next to the softball fields.

The library has been unsuitable for the number of students that attend Armijo, the state requirement being 9,000 square feet, ours standing at 4,000 square feet. The new library will stand at 14,000 square feet and is scheduled to open sometime in the first week of May 2011. The construction of the library is funded by Measure C, who was provided with $200 million in 2002 for funding for District schools. The funds were to be used for school renovations and construction projects throughout the Fairfield-Suisun area. Their completed projects range from the new Rolling Hills elementary school to the turf field at Fairfield High, and have many more planned for the upcoming years. The Armijo library is said to be the first of the many renovations that are to take place for the "new look" of Armijo, which will include 2-story classroom buildings, a new gymnasium, kitchen, performing arts room, and numerous other projects.

The new library will have space to occupy 120 students, a projection room complete with whiteboards and smartboards, 3 study rooms with 40 inch plasma screens, 30 computers in a computer room that can seat 60 students, space for 30,000 books, bathrooms, a workroom containing a lamination machine and paper cutters for student and teacher use, 3 seating areas, a larger office for the librarians, a media room and a textbook room. The ceilings in the new library are also made with clear coated wood so that sunlight will be able to travel through on sunny days to conserve electricity and energy. Teachers, students, and especially the librarians are ecstatic for the new library and the beginning of a new Armijo High School campus to resurface in the near future.

Freshmen

The freshmen class had a variety of things to display in their skit. They had Rock Band and Wii sports as their main theme. Chance Udell '14 played the part as lead guitarist. "I really like the new experience of performing skits. Putting the dances together is another thing I look forward to when it comes to homecoming's," Astred Castro '14 says. The freshmen may not have won this year but they put on a great performance with a lot of fun costumes and some great music. And it doesn't mean they're not going to get them next year, as sophomores!

Junior girls do their best in performing their Homecoming float in attempt to finally beat the seniors. "My favorite part of homecoming is being able to dance in the skit with my friends and dressing up in all the different and fun costumes," says Michaela Schoonover '11. Most of the juniors will also agree that not only is actually performing the skits fun, but their meetings leading up to the big performance are also fun. Seniors

The seniors did an exceptional job in their skit about the adventures of Ma rio and Luigi. That was shown when they beat out the rest of their younger competitors and received first place. Casey Towner '11 leads the way for his class dressed as Bowser. They anonymously agreed that not only performing in the skits, but winning first place is something they looked forward to every year including this one. "Winning and being able to goof around with my friends was the best part," says Marley Arias '11. Marley also said that being able to be Mario just made it all the better and one of his best homecomings.

He was the DJ in their skit, and by the end of the night he wasn't the only one throwing his arms in the air as their catchy tunes played throughout the gym.

5. The freshman were really nervous as they saw the bleachers fill up, but they went out their and wowed the crowd with their awesome dance moves and creative costumes. Now they are ready to take first place next year.

6. Mario, of the senior class shows his many sides as he becomes an A-Man. Still representing the Armijo senior class and the spirit, he flashes a smile for the camera.

7. Some of the junior boys, including Timothy Smithson '12 who was also a homecoming nominee, showed their smooth moves. 8. Sophomores had a lot of original dance moves, probably provided by some of the cheerleaders that led this outstanding performance.

This year's basketball homecoming theme was a long time coming. For years, students have wanted video games to be the theme for a homecoming. There is little doubt that video games have continue to be popular among high school students. Like in video games, this year's homecoming nominees needed a winner. The court was introduced this vear by announcers Kaysi Wheeler '11, dressed as Toad Stool and Jad Souki '11, dressed as Mario. As each nominee was announced and had their entrance through the purple and gold balloon arch, you could feel the tension building. For the freshman, this was their first chance at experiencing a homecoming in front of one of the bigger crowds they will see all year. "I had been to several A team games this year but this crow was unbelievable!" -Hayden Del Dotto '14. For the seniors, it was one last homecoming to remember. "I went into homecoming wanting to take in one last moment with my classmates, a win was the icing on the cake." -Nick Spini '11 To make things even more exciting, this year had a tie for the homecoming king. Karmen Balhotra '11 and Dakota Robarge '11 were both announced as king at the end of the night. Robarge's name was announced second after a short delay just to make him sweat it out a bit. The announcers who were his classmates in leadership wanted to make sure there was drama involved. Ashlee Lechiminat '14 was happy to watch her good friend Amanda Bernal '14 win and tells us about her first basketball homecoming experience, "It was so exciting and fun and I'm glad I got to do it with all my friends. I'll always remember I felt like a princess". At the end of the night, 4 princes, 4 princesses, 2 kings and 1 queen were crowned, a first for Armijo. By the time the game was over on homecoming night, everyone left a winner.

- 1. Arthur Mestas '13 and Hannah Vigil '13 lead the way for the rest of their sophomore class nominees, showing how to walk gracefully under the balloon arch.
- 2. Maivian Le '11 and Jessica Bossett '13, await the results of the race for the Senior court. Jessica had a chance to fill in for sister and basketball player Erica Bossett '11, who was away in Vacaville taking on Will C Wood in basketball.
- 3. The boy nominees this year sported yellow boutonnieres and purple candy necklaces. Howie Tomson '14, Hayden Deldotto '14, Dylan Beck '13 and Jerry Sheiring '13 stand receiving applause from the audience.
- 4. Good sportsmanship and laughter can be seen looking around as the Senior prince title is announced to Nick Spini '11. After his name was announced, Nick shakes all of his opponents' hands. Here we see Terrence Broussard '11 congratulating his friend.

5. Howie Tomson '14 and Amanda Bernal '14 were both very excited walking down the isle for homecoming night. Amanda would go on to win the freshman princess position. She said, "I was so excited that I could win the same year my sister did".

6. This year's homecoming placed characters into costume more so than recent memory. Homecoming was announced by iconic characters this year as Jad Souki '11 and Kaysi Wheeler '11 dressed as Mario and Toad respectively 7. The senior nominees share a moment before being introduced at the rally this year. "It was nice to have an opportunity to dress up for the night of as well as dress comfortably for the rally." -Erika Bernal '11

A day in the life of... Karmen Balhotra

"When I got up that morning I wasn't really nervous, because I would have been appy if any of my friends up there would have won."

9.24 am
A friend from second period announces that they will be voting for Karmen at lunch and the class agrees, boosting Karmen's spirts.

12:33 pm Getting a little nervous now, watching voting, excited for the skits tonight along with the announcement to see if he's going to win the crown.

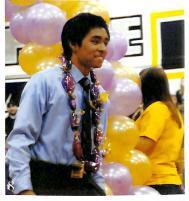

4:00 pm Karmen meets at the school to practice the senior Mario skit. That's the big thing on his mind, but the crown is still in his head.

8:07 pm "First place for the skir is... SENIORS!!!"
Senior King is... KARMEN BALHOLTRA!!!!!!

8:08 pm "AND DAKOTA ROBARGE!! Yes everybody we have two kings!" Everyone is ecstatic, Karmen couldn't be happier to win with his friend.

8. "I couldn't be happier to see my best friend Karmen win king, and to be nominated with him was an honor" says Xavier Deogaygay '11 after homecoming. Here he walks to join his line of senior nominees before the winners were announced.

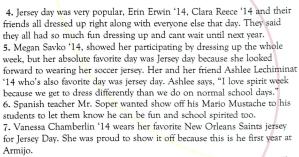

9. Freshmen always are dressed to impress at their first homecoming appearance. Here we see Ashlee LeCheminant '14 and Hayden Del Dotto '14 who would go on to win Freshman prince that night.

I probably wouldn't come to school with something like that because, I have too much hair to spike up and it would cost me too much money to get enough hair dye and gel to get it up the way he had it. But it did look cool."

ROTC

Armijo's ROTC program has been top notch for years. This year was no exception. Junior Reserve Officers Training Core has been a program at armijo since 1972. On Mondays they do uniform inspections, which is mandatory in ROTC. Throughout the year they have car washes that helps afford the field trips they attend. This year they took the freshman class to the Travis Air Force Base to take a tour of life on base and work. Towards the end of this year the AS-2 through AS-4's are taking a trip to an aviation museum to learn about the air force. A big part of ROTC is putting on their annual Military Ball, which is like a small prom. They do car washes and ticket sales to afford it, the event takes place on base at the convention center. Also throughout the night of the military ball they crown a court of ROTC students. Every Friday they have a PT, which is for physical training to stay in shape, learn how to use teambuilding skills.

Why did you want to join ROTC?

"The reason I wanted to join ROTC is because I wanted to gain leadership skills and better my chances in joining the Air force when I am eligible to," says Cody Rader '12.

"I was interested in joining ROTC becasue I want to go into the airforce when im older. I also think it will better my chances and i have heard a lot of great things about the programs says Takia Smith '13.

" I wanted to join ROTC because the thought of being able to represent the air force by wearing a uniform every Monday, and its also a great experience in high school." says EJ Villejas '13.

What is your favorite part of ROTC?

"My favorite part of being in ROTC is being the flight sergeant because you get to run things and choose what you want to do. Sometimes it can be hard to control a group of kids but the teacher helps out a lot," says Aishwarya Thakur '13.

"I always have a lot of fun in the class, the firled trips are always something to look forward to. I also had fun winning the push up competition at Casa Robles High School," says Phillip Baliola '12.

"ROTC is awesome, Sergeant Santa really cares for all of us and gets to know us on a personal level. It's really fun because on Fridays we have fun activities. My favorite part of ROTC is that we get put on the Military Ball, which is like our mini prom but with amazing food. Its so fun," says Maile Akui '12.

4 Year Veteran

Becoming apart of ROTC was mainly family based for Samantha Estes '11. Having her older sister Brenda Estes who is an Armijo Alumni involved in the program before was a major decision point for Estes to join the program. Being able to see how much fun and how many friends her sister was making through the program was very appealing to Estes. She wanted to join the program also to meet people and she's glad she did because they are like a family to her now. Although she doesn't have any plans of continuing on with the Air Force she says, "It really made her high school years something to remember." Going to competition and winning many of trophies her junior year is something that she'll remember forever. For the Military Ball she was won the position as queen of the military ball, which was another great memory throughout the program.

Field Trip's Throughout the year

This year ROTC has fundraised money to take their AS-1's to the Travis Air force Base to teach them about the lifestyle on base. While on base they visited the dorms where families stay while being in the air force. Also on base they visited the gymnasium and they went to the Museum of airplanes where they were taught about the planes they had and how to fly them. ROTC this year has taken a class trip to the Casa Robles High School where they had a convention for different school's ROTC programs to compete against each other in activities for strength and team skill building. Towards the end of the school year ROTC will be taking a field trip to the Air Force base in Sacramento.

The Association of DRAMA

Page Done By: Caitlyn Lee What comes to mind when an average Armijo student thinks of a topic such as Drama or Theatre? Screenplay, business of plays, and dramatic arts are some of the common words associated with Drama. This club, along with many others on campus, is composed of an advisor, director, president, vice president, and much more, including a full-time active cast, who participate in numerous plays over the entire school year.

Going to one of the productions that Drama puts on, one would only see an actor or actress on a stage, saying their specific lines. What you don't see is the extremely vast amount of time and effort these students put into their parts. "In order to be your character, you have to really research your part and say your lines just how they're supposed to be said. You have to know not just your line, but the rest of the script as well," states President of Drama Club Zachary Machado '11. As the president of this club, Machado is very active in all plays being put on, as well as assisting with anything technical on-set, or just being the go-to messenger between Ms. Choy, the advisor of Drama, and the cast.

Center Stage Haunted: 10/27/10 - 10/29/10 What was one of the best aspects of this play? Why?

"Being one of the directors. It was such an experience to have the authority to just know when I had gone over the line or if I wasn't doing my job. I found my happy medium," said Quentine Lambert '11. Center Stage Haunted was the only play where every skit was directed by a presidency member.

"My part, definitely. I got to improv every thing. I had no script whatsoever. It was the most fun I've had in Drama," replied Victoria Chakus '11. Improvisation, or improv, is the practice of acting, talking, or reacting in the moment and in response to the spur of one's environment and innermost feelings.

Being one of the guest creepers within the audience during the play. I was able to frighten people while they were trying to watch the play. I really liked the different scripts we had too. "We had multiple," said Adaeze Perkins '11. Something someone outside of Drama wouldn't know is "How much time and effort we put in. It's stressful, but fun."

Our Girl's: 12/1/10 - 12/4/10 & 12/7/10 - 12/10/10 What was your role within this specific play?

"I played Hulda. She's from Sweden, and will do anything to go back to Sweden to marry Henrick, the love of her life, but only if she plays along with the family," said Breanna Hardy '13. What most people don't know, is how dark it is backstage. You can't see anything!

"I played Father Elmer. All the world's Girl's portrayed a family who had three sons, problems could be solved by building a crane," replied Nathaniel Cook '11. Our but needed to desperately turn them into girls before their aunt arrived; all in order to receive money.

> "I was in charge of playing the role of Aunt Jesse. She was a real mean woman, who had an annoying voice," said Erika Thomas '13. Within the play, Aunt Jesse did not like boys ends up liking the boys for who they are.

Imaginary Invalid (Show pictures not available):

4/13/11 4/16/11 & 4/20/11 1 4/23/11

What made this play so unique from the others?

"This is the first all out satire we've done. It's comical and absurd and believable. I find it to be a fun play," states Zachary Machado '11, Drama Club President. In the era of the author who wrote this play, Molière would actually act in his own plays.

"This play is really random and downright hilarious. It also has a lot of musical interludes that portray this," said Courtney Thomas '11. A musical interlude is a piece of music performed between acts of a theatrical production.

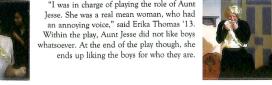

"It's a lot smaller than other plays. The cast size has been literally cut in half this time around," replied Brandon Arce '11. A fact about drama neone outside the club wouldn't know about is how NOT perfect this club is. Three weeks before shows, sometimes they don't even have a set yet. It's not until the actual show night that things run smoothly for everyone.

Ms. Choy's office is an essential part of Drama and her English classes. Not only does it hold all of her information and materials regarding Drama and English, but it's also her own personal space; a space only she herself is allowed in, and no one else. "I remember my sophomore year, she had signs up all around saying 'Do Not Enter,' As I recall, she was real strict about that," commented April Vogel '11. Choy's office directly reflects who she is. "I hold some of my more unique or fragile props in there," replied Choy, when asked how her office makes it her office. Along with unique props, she also houses "mini Japanese lanterns and family photos" so she can "feel close to them even when at work." To show others she doesn't "live in a boiler room," she has a wonderful collection of photos on the window looking into her office. It has always been, and forever will, stay the same policy for Ms. Choy in the past, present, and future; "Stay out, and if it's not yours, don't touch it."

4. To start off the holiday season, Leadership held their annual Holiday Tree Lighting. Committee head Delaina Gambrell '11 and Kathleen Finnigan '12 finish up some last minute decorations on the tree before it is lit. Celebrating their last Homecoming rally, senters Luis Ramirez '11, Jackie Flores '11, and Kays. Wheeler '11 pose together after taking down decorations.

6. Three times a week, Leadership members from all grades meet in the gym to discuss and work in committees. Michaela Schoonover '12 explained, "In the gym, we're mixed in with all the other classes, and we get to meet a lot of different people." 7. Arthur Mestas '13 was a hit at the Holiday Tree Lighting showing students how to make ornaments. "I've known how to make them for a while and they're pretty easy to teach," he said. 8. The H.A.M. Committee is responsible for all of leadership's posters put up around Armijo. "It stands for History and Media; not many people know that," committee head Tyler Dunkin '11 explained. "H.A.M. goes H.A.M.!"

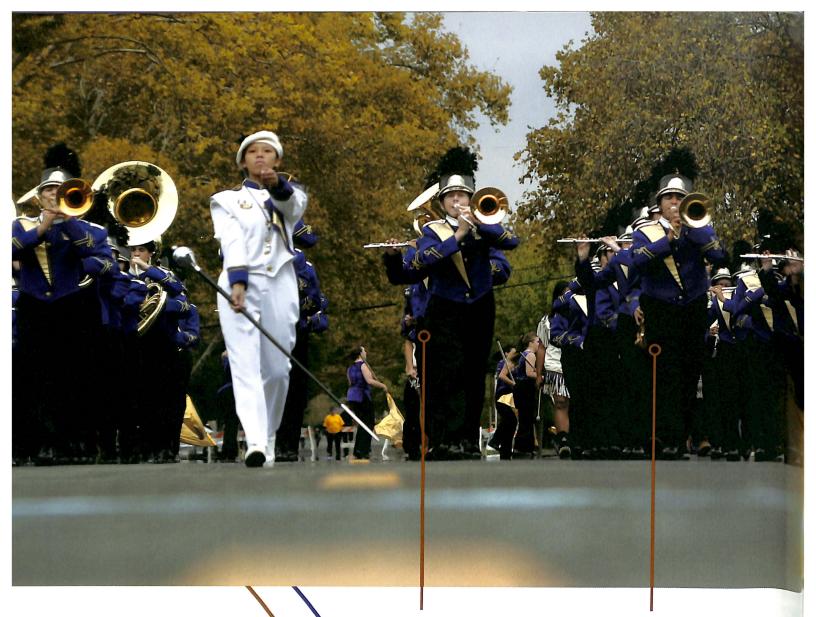

New to the Leadership class this year, Hassan Karaouni '11 came in not only as a new student but as the ASB President with quite a few new ideas. "One of my ideas this year was intramural sports. With the budget cuts, we didn't know if there would be sports at all." Luckily, we were still able to have sports, but students now have the ability to play sports with all their friends thanks to Hassan. He also helped implement a sponsorship program partnering businesses with Armijo students. His number one goal for this year was to increase outside of leadership student participation.

Breaking Mold

Guard girls, Indian boys, and one big family.

At the beginning of every song its one uniform note, just like at the beginning of every band is one group of uniformed leaders. These leaders know that in order to have an amazing band everyone must work together. But have you ever stop ped to think that the band isn't just made up of instruments? In all reality Armijo High School's Super band has made it a priority to "break the mold" of every band and makes sure that every member knows that the band isn't just he instruments it's the color guard and the Indians as well. For years the color guard has been considered a separate unit until recently Mis Jacobs and the color guard instructors have worked to show that they are one unit not two. In 2008 Miss Jacobs created the show stopping Armijo Indians that lead he super band. Many people were hesitant of them at first but then they realized they just completed their family unit.

What is your most memorable moment in marching band?

"On the bus ride to Merced, some of us were in the back of the bus and someone started to prank call our phones"
-Courtney Bojorquez '13

"When Cameron made everyone wait for him to go to the bathroom."

"I will never forget that at my first competitions I tossed my flag into a tree and it came right back down and hit me super hard"

- Kristine Fernandez '13"

What is your favorite song that you have preformed/played this year?

"'March Mlitaire Francaise', because it is a fun and exciting song with a solo for the alto sax's" -Joseph Patenia '13

"My favorite song this year is 'Trumpeter's Lullaby' because I went from not knowing it to totally having it down" -Justin Schakenraad '13

"Journal for a soldier, because I rest for 3/4 of the song." -Chris Cunanan '13 How do you add flavor to band?

Out of eight songs played in the first half of the year twy songs really stuck out. 'Critical Mass' was the first and most favored song of choice among the band. According to Gabriella Nathan Funk

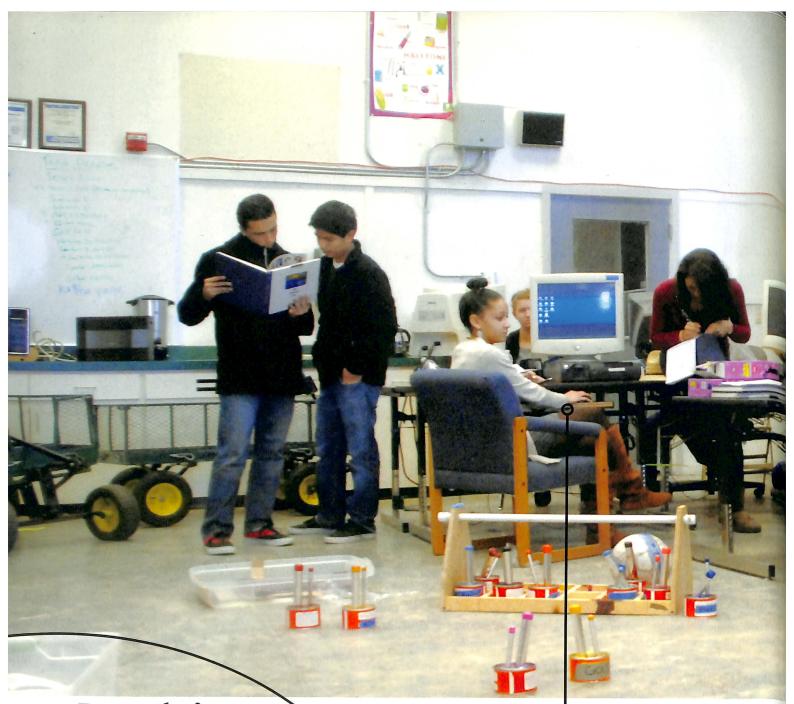

'14 "The bass part (in Critical Mass) is AMAZ-ING!" While this song is a favorite among the band the song that made the Super Band stick out was 'I Am,' at the very beginning of the song Ali Utke '11 stood and recited a noem to the audience. By adding the poem to the beginning you are able to place the feel that is intended for the audience to feel. Many people interpret what emotion is being played by the speed of tones being played, but by adding a little something more the super band it able to steer the audience by the emotion intended by the composer. Not only many bands not do this, but it ald some flavor to the entire performance not just the song.

Breaking out music

Every year Armijo super band competes in concert competition, playing up to three different styles of music. One style that is always looked over is a Ballot. This style of music is filled with the most emotion and it is also the most complicated. Many people would feel that a prelude (fast tempo style of music) would be the toughest, what they don't consider is the blending and the pace that makes these pieces difficult.

Making Memories

Yearbook is an organization comprised of student editors, students and an advisor. Yearbook students are trained in the art of taking pictures, writing stories, captions, interviews, and organizing group photos. They have to design the layouts then market and sell the yearbooks. Yearbook can be a lot of work, but they manage to have a lot of fun. After all the rushing to get final interviews to finish pages, they get the chance to mess around, and have after the deadline parties. Even though they make time to have fun they are hard workers, staying after school and coming in on days off to work. Yearbooks are the place where memories can last a lifetime and the yearbookclass is lucky enough to be the ones responsible for capturing the moments throughout the year that everyone will remember forever.

Why did you want to join Yearbook?

Megan Hughes '11 joined yearbook, because she heard great remarks from returner Kristen Soldati '11. She already had experience from helping her Mom do her little sister's elementary school yearbook. Now she is the one who makes great remarks about yearbook.

"Yearbook has made me come out of my she and be more sociable," says Tashay Cooper '12. Tashay likes being in yearbook because to her it feels like the beginning of a job; she loves taking pictures and interviewing new people. Tashay joined yearbook because she wanted to take a class that was different from every other class.

Ritche Sison '13 wanted to join yearbook because he wanted a. class were he can use cameras and take pictures extensively. Richie knows that you have to be organized and focused, or else you will fall behind in meeting a deadline. The class is challenging, but the best thing he likes about the class is being able to eat food with Casey Towner '11.

Valuable Assets

Tyler Dunkin '11 had a passion for art and technology early on. He developed his skills by attending a session in L.A. at FIDM, and by taking courses at Academy of Arts in SF. He took courses in Graphic Design, Web design, television motion picture, and photography. With his skills in the Arts and Technology, he has been a great asset to yearbook.

Jaclyn Nielson '11 started off running as a new student in yearbook her junior year. Although she was a first year student she became the editor of the people section. At first she was a little overwhelmed, but since her sister was the editor before, it gave her confidence in the task at hand. Jaclyn has worked extremely hard; she is a valuable asset for yearbook.

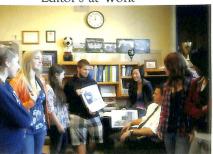

Riley Bishop '11 has had a passion for photography since the 7th grade. Back then, Riley had a point and shoot camera and practiced taking still shots nonstop. Freshmen year he bought a Cannon Rebel XTI, and a year later he joined the yearbook. Yearbook has taught him to put a story to a picture and has increased his love of photography.

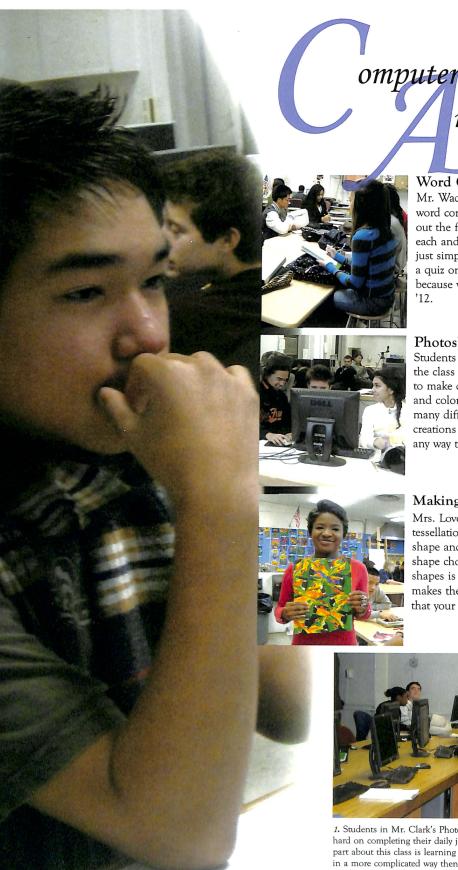

A lot of work goes into the yearbook starting from the end of the previous school year, through summer, and into the next year. Over the summer a select few students along with Mr. Burzynski went to CSU East Bay for a three day camp. The camp helped to teach basic photography, journalism, and graphic design skills. While attending camp, yearbook classes choose a theme and create a cover and make decisions about other important aspects of yearbook.

Editor-in-chief team Casey Towner '11 and Lauren Vigil '11 have the experience to back up their positions. Not only do they work hard during class but they come in whenever they can. There's so much responsibity when it comes to being an editor The same goes for the other editors Belinda Garcia '11, Caitlyn Lee '11, Annette Miller '11, Jaclyn Nielson '11 and Dree Webster '11.

Word Of The Day

Mr. Waddles ceramics class likes to begin with a word of the day. Each word corresponds with a new technique that will be taught in class through out the following week. At the end of the week Mr. Waddles goes over each and every word once again. He either demonstrates each technique or just simply explains it in words. If the students misbehave they must take a quiz on Friday on all the words from that week. "I like being in ceramics because we get to make cool things that we get to keep," says Jessica Ramos '12.

Photoshop Editing

Students in Mr. Summer's MMI class said that their favorite thing about the class is editing photos in photoshop. Photoshop gives them the ability to make different elements of pictures to pop out or change the lighting and colors or even put one persons face on top of someone elses. There are many different picture editing assignments but making their own picture creations is what students enjoy most. "I like being able to edit pictures in any way that I want," says Robert Burns '11

Making a Tessellation

Mrs. Loveall's art class said that their favorite project was making a tessellation. In the making of a tessellation students pick one particular shape and reproduce it as identical to cover any amount of given space. The shape chosen must be able to fit into itself. Once the drawing of all the shapes is completed you finish by coloring it in, this is the part that really makes the picture. The colors that you choose to use help give the illusion that your picture is more than it appears.

1. Students in Mr. Clark's Photography I class focus hard on completing their daily journals. "My favorite part about this class is learning how to develop pictures in a more complicated way then just printing them off the computer," says Briana Belluomini '13. 2. At the beginning of each class students studiously copy down Mr. Waddles word of the day. The word of the day is an important part of learning new techniques in ceramics. Tamika Moore '11 and Jaleya Smith '11 said that their favorite part of being in Mr. Summer's multimedia class is being able to edit sports videos and getting into school games for free.'

4. Cameron Mcgregor '14 sits proudly holding his almost completed tessellation project. The completion of this project will be something to be proud of.

John Edmisten '12 and Danny Holochuck '11 ger started on their freshly assigned photoshor project. Completing these projects is a daily joy to these boys.

6. Katie Foley '13 helps her partner Jamie Roberts '11 as she asks a question about how to finish drawing her picture. Katie Foley '13 is the right person to ask about art. Mrs. Loveall thought that one of her pictures was done so well that she decided to display it in the counselors office.

7. Mrs. Hobb's art class lets their creativity run wild, as they work hard on each project.

8. Mr. Summer's DVD yearbook class spends each day putting together the DVD yearbook for your entertainment at the end of the year.

Tyler Bouchard '14 finds a way to stand out with his ability to transform pictures into whatever he wants. Bouchard also has his own YouTube channel where he blogs his daily adventures and other parts of his day. Amanda Bernal '14 is another outstanding student. Mrs. Loveall says that in her class that's where all the real art takes place. Every assignment is given to each student but Amanda still finds a way for her art to stand out. The display outside of AC1 and AC2 is a case full of different students best artwork. Not only is it a proud moment for students to see their artwork displayed, but its also a nice view on your walk

4. The track cutter is a machine that uses a cutting torch to slice through metal ranging from aluminum, steel, brass, and many others. It provides a clean cut straight through the metal.

Makar Lawrence '11 uses the saw to cut straight through a slab of wood. He is extited and eager to start a brand new project in woodshop.

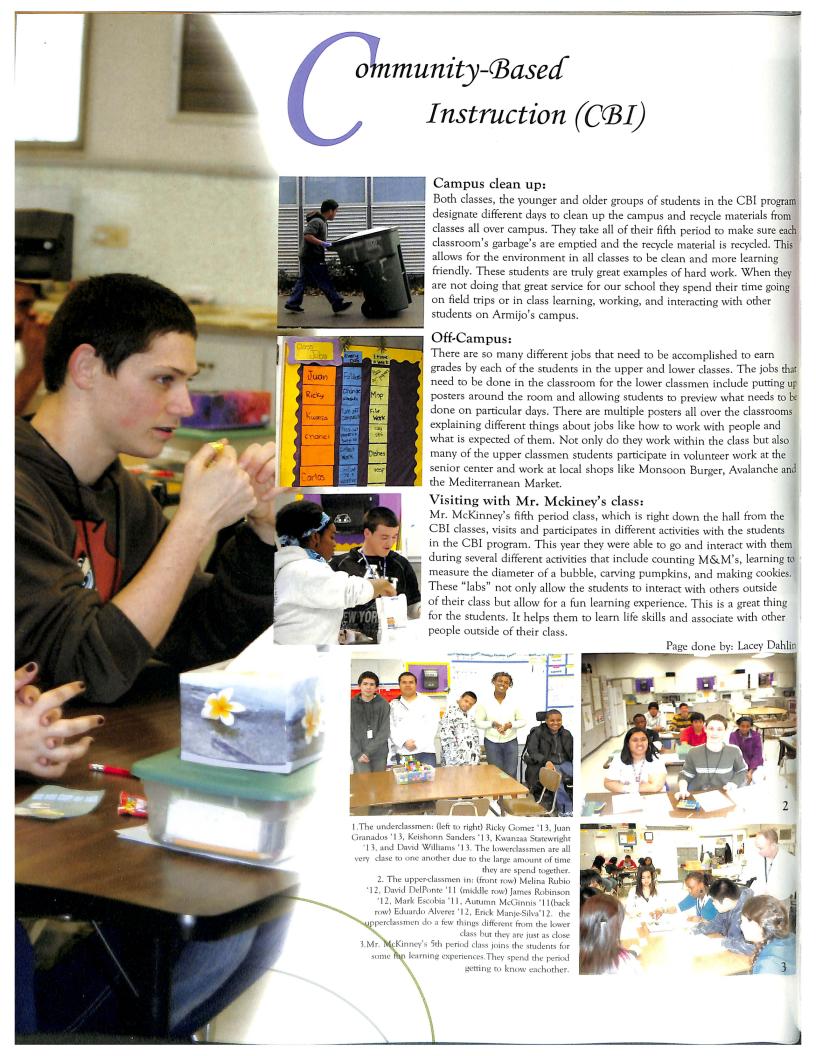

6. A bench grinder is mostly used to sharpen tools, like this student is using it to sharpen a hammer.

7. Donovan McGrath '11 is seen using stick welding to merge two pieces of metal together. Notice that he has his protective gear on at all times.

The woodshop teacher, Mr. Clay Blanco, has been teaching for 35 years; 28 years at Green Valley Middle School, and 7 years at Armijo. On top of that, he's became a general contractor and built two houses from scratch with the skills he learned throughout his life, and even owns a concrete business. Mr. Blanco stated that he got into woodshop because he "always liked to build stuff" and "stuck with what came natural to him." He teaching the students skills so they're able to grow up and become either electricians, carpenters, contractors, etc. His favorite part of teaching is getting the students ready for working after high school. Mr. Blanco puts his students first and stays dedicated to doing what he loves.

5. David Williams '13 with the help of the bus driver uses the wheel chair lift so he can get on the bus and finally end his long day of school.

6. Kwanzaa Statewright '13 is deep in thought about the story her teacher is reading. Each student in class pays close attention to their teachers throughout the day and during the many activities they do. Not only do they stay attentive to their teachers but they are very respectful to others when, on Mondays, they spend a few minutes each sharing activities they did over the weekends. These activities have heady bonded the class.

7. Keishonn Sanders '13 working with one of Mr. Mckiney's twelth grade students. Each student is put with a group of students from the other class and the work on projects like this skeleton coloring project. 8. Lynzie Alvarado '11 and Jessica Allen '11, some more students from Mr. Mckineys class, work with Ricky Gomez '13 to make some cookies which help him to learn measuring and basic cooking procedures. They do many activities like this to help the students gain knowledge in many different areas.

9. For halloween once again Mr. Mckiney's class came in to spend time with the students and decided to just have a fun day of carving pumpkins.

LOOK

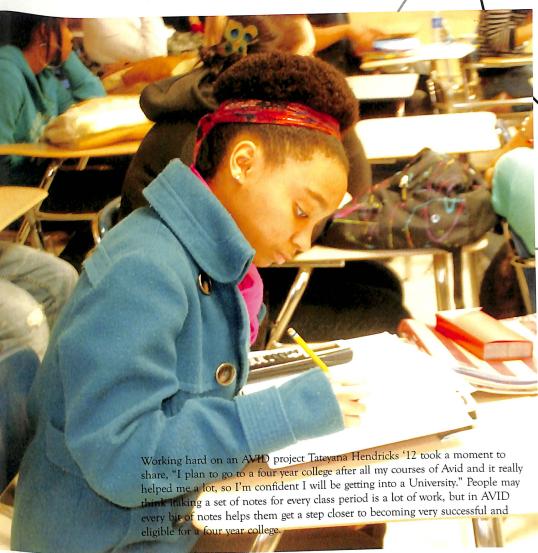

Juan Granados '10 spends his first period in the wood shop working on projects like this one, to the right, where he is building a scale model of his dream house. His wood working skills and artistic abilities have increased tremendously since the beginning of the year.

David DelPonte '12 enjoys his art class with his teacher Mrs. Loveall. he has developed a theme in his artwork of spiritual images. One such piece he created was of an angel flying through the air. he also has grown tremendously in his artistic abilities.

5. Textor Hobart '12 writes on the board after arranging her group and checks if anyone needs help or has any problems in any of their classes. This is one activity they do that helps them get a better understanding of every subject.

6. Philip Parkman '11 takes the time to organize his binder for an upcoming binder check that Friday while sitting next to his friend Luis Tolento '11. Binder checks occur every Friday to make sure students are on track.
7. Veronica Castro '12 and longtime boyfriend, Tyler Grieves '12, are seen while on the UC Davis field that the AVID class took. Both enjoyed taking AVID their freshmen year.

8. Alexis Rojas '12 works on a group Avid Island project with Kevin Desilva '12 and has to create a motto for their island. This one of the more exciting projects that they get to participate in.

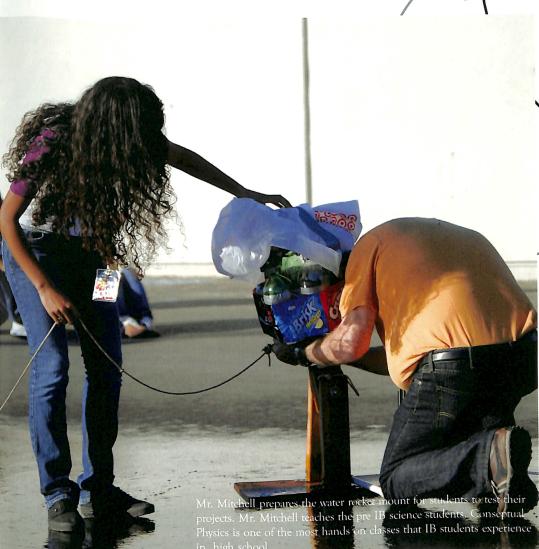

Alma Vega '12, Shannon Santos '12, and Karina Herrara '12 all talk about the great Chinese program at UC Davis. Offered is the East Asian Collection for students who didn't previously take any Chinese language

Veronica Guzman '12 wears her AVID T-shirt to show her AVID pride. The T-shirt helps fund raise AVID trips and supplies. Written on the bottom of the shirt says "Not your average learning experience."

 The students anxiously await the three second countdown to pull the string and watch the bottle rocket soar through the sky.

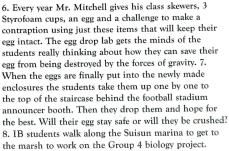

7:15 am I arrive at Armijo High after a 45 minute drive from Sacramento.

12:12 pm In my classroom eating lunch, sometimes students come to remake tests or quizzes.

3:00~pm Tutoring students that need help in math till 4:30.

4:30 pm Clean my classroom, prepare for the next day and make sure I don't forget my keys before I leave.

7:30 pm Watch food network and see what's new to cook.

8:45 pm Nighttime is always different whether or not I'm tired or awake but usually I go to bed a fall asleep.

Foreign Affair

Hola! Benvienue! And Bonjour! To all students at Armijo. As a core subject in any student's schedule, Armijo offers as a wide variety of unique teachers for both French and Spanish classes that we can all take and enjoy. From learning songs to trying the French delicacy, escargots, or snails, as we would call them, there is never a dull foreign language class at Armijo. Unfortunately one of the notable classed missing this year is German. Formally taught by Mrs. Tomko, German classes were cut because of the budget crisis. However, the French and Spanish classes are making up for it by putting on various activities in the class to better educate students on languages. In addition to learning the languages, it is part of the class to learn about the cultures of the countries that speak that language, so if you are in a French class you are also learning about French speaking Canada, or all other countries in Latin and South America that speak Spanish. With all this preparation in foreign languages, Armijo students will be ready for any country.

What was your favorite activity in your foreign language class? "My favorite activity was in Mrs. Torres class when we watched Dora the Explorer cause we also sang along." -Devre Chavez '11

"I liked when we played Jeopardy in Mrs. Cerdas class my sophomore year. -Nick Dolan '12

"I really liked when we would make videos. One time my friends and I made a love video in Spanish and we dressed up my friend Sean as a girl! It was hilarious." -Matt Limneos '11

Day of the Dead

Dia de los Muertos, or Day of the Dead is a popular holiday celebrated by Mexicans to honor their friends and family that have passed away. Here at Armijo, it is one of the most well known projects in which students pick a famous person who has passed away, and depending on your teacher you either make a tombstone for the deceased or a shrine to honor them. "This was my favorite project to do because we got to choose the person we did it on." said Catherine Guerva '11. Students pick a wide variety of famous people to honor, from former President Kennedy, to singer Selena. This is a great way for the students to learn because it incorporates culture as well as teaches students the language and correct conjugations. On top of being a great way for students to use Spanish, it is also a popular project because it is a fun and a different way to learn Spanish.

Good Things Come in Small Sizes

Walking into Madame Hauses sixth period French four class for the first time you might think that the reason the class is so small is because students might be absent. But in truth, with a total of 14 kids, it is the smallest foreign language class at Armijo. These

14 dedicated kids all decided to take French for another year and take the IB another year and take the IB exam. This means that at the end of the year they will be tested on their ability to read, write and speak in French. In addition, they need to pick a topic related to France then speak about it for three minutes in a room of French teachers. After that, they are questioned for another six minutes. That is dedication.

Walls of Fame

When you walk into a classroom for the first time, the first thing you notice is the walls and how they are decorated. Mrs. Hause's French class is all decorated in her students past projects. From French restaurant menus to maps of Bordeux, there is not an undecorated spot in her class. Mr. Arcia has a different approach, his walls are almost all blank. "It is not my fault!", he says in protest, "I just moved classrooms and I couldn't put all the kids work up!" If you leave Mr. Arcia's new room, and enter Mrs. Torres it is the opposite, she even steps it up one further, and always makes sure that her white boards are covered in color coordinated verb conjunctions. "I don't want the kids to forget!" Mrs. Torres said.

From the dinosaurs to modern day events, history is constantly taking place. Great creators, brave citizens, World Wars, and Presidents both past and present all add to the history that has shaped us today. It's important for everyone to know history and know what was going on in the world hundreds of years ago so we can better understand what's going on today. Knowing what has happened in our past gives us the knowledge to make better decisions in the future. "If you didn't know history, you didn't know anything. You were a leaf that didn't know it was part of a tree." -Michael Crichton. At Armijo, we try to allow students to see the whole picture by offering many different types of history classes. Everyone has an opportunity to learn about different time periods and places in history. We have World Civics, U.S. History, History of the Americas, Government and Economics. Perhaps the best thing about our history classes is that our faculty are passionate about it. Seeing teachers enthusiastic about a subject has allowed our students to discuss and debate history rather than simply read about it.

What was your favorite topic covered in History?

"My favorite topic would have to be World War 2 and Hitler. You have to respect a man who stood up like that for what he believed

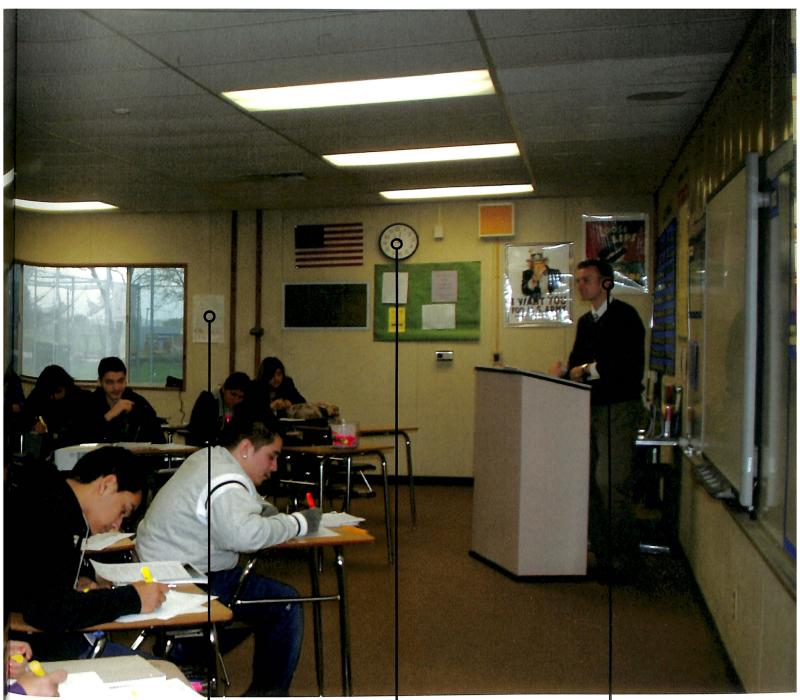

-Imani Madison '14

"I really like learning about the American Revolution. I am interested on how Ameri got started."

-Francis Casilang '14

"My favorite topic to study in History was World War 1. It is interesting to know about how and why other countries fought. -Angela Alvarado '13

Propaganda Poster Power

"Propaganda is that branch of the art of lying which consists in very nearly deceiving your friends without quite deceiving your enemies." In Mr. Kalaf-Hugh's US History class, one of the more entertaining assignments is the creation of original propaganda by students. Students learn of how propaganda effects a a war just as much as guns, missiles and bombs. " I really enjoyed reading about the effect of propaganda and how creative some of the messages were." - Student Quote. Some of the artwork shown here was among the best submitted for the project. Weather it was pro US propaganda, making the military seem fun in order to get people en enlist or reminding a country of how it felt to be attacked, the propaganda featured left it's mark.

Remembering Her Time Here

One of the longest tenured and most respected faculty members at Armijo has been Mrs. Evans. For the past 19 years, Evans has taught English and History classes in E-8. When asked about her preference in subject, Evans replied, "I try and teach both history and English. Literature reflects history and so by teaching American novels, we really are teaching US History." Evans sited several moments that stood out during her tenure at Armijo, all of which involved students and the learning process. "Teenagers never cease to amaze me - they are curious, funny, emotional and passionate about their beliefs which is why teaching them is such a roller coaster." Armijo has been lucky to have such a great staff member and wishes her the best of luck in her future.

IB History Trivia Turnaround

Almost all IB history teachers use the same type of warm up to start their class period. Mr. Harrison and Mr. McCarty use a riddle type game that challenges the students to think outside of the box. Most IB students will know what you're talking about when you refer to Sid Shady and his crazy criminal antics. After some brain teasers, three words appear on the screen and students must find the matching phrase. Monkeys, Gun Powder, Fish... All belong in a barrel. "This type of warm up really gets the students thinking in a different way" says Mr. Kalaf-Hughes who has made his own variation to the game where he takes random facts from from topics that range from Super Mario Bros. to dinosaurs. Regardless of the type of warm-up, these history know how to keep it fresh.

Adding factors

If there are 15 marbles in a bag 5 are blue, 3 are gold, 4 are green, and 3 more are purple then what is the probability of picking purple and gold? A question like this is quite common and takes a little bit of work and calculator usage to answer making it a nuisance to many Armijo students. Mathematics comes easily to some, alright to others, and very hard for the rest. Our teachers here, at Armijo High School, do a very good job of helping students understand this confusing subject. Of course all teachers teach to the top of their ability, but math doesn't come as easily. Configurations, algebraic equations, and so much more! Memorizing formulas is only a fraction of what the subject eritails. No one realizes how far math has come over the years, what most freshman are learning now used to be taught in college.

What do you need or do to succeed in this class

"To succeed in this class I need paper, my calculator, and the regular class materials; like pens and pencils. All of that together helps me in math class."

Tyler Wilson '12

"I do a lot of mental math in my class, so l do it in my head. I do need to bring pencils and papers. Also I always need to bring myself:" -Bryce Knutson '11

"In my math class I always need the normal essentials. I bring my calculator because I can't always do the equations in my head and it's faster. The thing I need every day, though, is my brain!"

-Brittani Harrison '13

What do you like about this class?

"I like the people in my class, but I also like the challenge. My favorite part is trying to figure out the problem, then when I do figure it out I feel accomplished. That's the best!" Robert Strong '13

"My favorite part of math is knowing everything. When we learn new things that I know and understand I like knowing it." -Taylor Hobart '12

-Destiny Hubbard '12

Formula Story Time!

Mrs. Howell has loads of stories from her teaching career, but when I asked her to choose one she knew exactly which one she wanted to tell. She explained: "When I'm teaching sequences and series I tell the story about how 'Little Gauss' was a trouble maker in kindergarten so his teacher indergarten so his teacher told him to add up all the numbers from 1 to 100, just to keep him busy; in just a few seconds he knew the answer. Gauss created the formula for the sum of arithmetic series at a young age!

True story!" This story makes people laugh then cry because they realize it is their turn to do those problems.

-Ratings, Parrots, and Rules Oh My...

Sophia Zepeda '12 noticed things when she entered this crazy class! "I really like the 10 things you should know about your teacher. It's cool because most teachers tell you things at the beginning of the year and then you just forget, but it's written on her wall so I never forget. It is also really funny because it's there in the first place." Sophia also pointed out, "There is a parrot in the wall! When I saw I laughed so hard!" She noticed yet another thing in the class that she likes, "The sign that says this classroom is rated G. Even though we are all fifteen and over in here the class is still rated G. It's funny because we don't act like it's rated G!" As you can see this class can entertain people with the many objects and that's what makes this math class a blast! Math can be fun depending on the environment you are in, and here, at Armijo High School, the environment is perfect for all subjects.

English

English is the only subject that every high school student must take for 4 years. Teachers at Armijo know the excitement of reading a book, understanding every theme or underlying message, and taking these ideas to the next level. The English department works hard to get kids engaged in reading and writing. They do this by holding class discussions, teaching using interesting methods, giving visual projects, or even having students act out plays and stories. Students enjoy these new ways to learn and grasp ideas and literary terms better. Teachers such as Mrs. Logan hold discussions on students favorite words helping other students to remember these words in the future after being discussed a few times. English is the base of knowledge for students; English teachers put in a lot of effort to help establish root ideas in students minds so that they become ready for what they are going to face outside of high school.

Although every student at Armijo takes an English class, many English teachers have to work hard towards keeping their kids awake in class. For example, Mrs. Davis created a jeopardy game to play in her class to prepare her sophomores for tests and finals. This game is interactive and also very ducational. Mr. Stoll has students act out scenes of a play as if the scene happened in present day. Mr. Brandt likes to make raps to compare ideas in his class. These teachers take English to a new level by creating more fun, interactive, and easier ways to learn.

Outside Reading

Mrs. Logan's students know that her favorite book to teach by far is The Grapes of Wrath by John Steinbeck. Her students enjoy the enthusiasm she puts into teaching this controversial book. While the teachers are excited about the books, many students don't like to read the assigned material for English and are more excited about outside reading that they are forced to do in their classes. Mrs. Gillen requires her students to read 1,000 pages a semester. Some of the top choices for outside reading include mysteries and short novels.

What is your favorite word you've learned in English?

"Onomatopoeia because it sounds funny and I like sound effects."

David Hostler '14

"My favorite word is pandemonium because it makes me think of a party."
-Miyana Harris '11

"I think sanguine because it sounds Spanish and Italian and it sounds weird." -Sierra Rodriguez '13

Projects Making for Success

A literary term such as an archetype may not be the easiest thing to understand for students nor the funniest. However, Mrs. Lyerla created a project to help students do just that. Her revitalizing teaching techniques help clarify vocabulary that would otherwise be misunderstood by many students. Mrs. Craig assigns projects that require a visual aid. A novel like Beowulf goes from dull words on a page to huge grinning monsters on a poster that give students a way to develop their reading skills in a new way. Most students like these ways of learning, Lauren Corn '13 says, "I like making projects for classes so that I remember everything I've read and it forces me to really be creative and think about symbols and themes in a book."

Bringing Together Page done by: Jaclyn Nielson

On a typical day, one can enter D-hall only to be shocked by all the activities occurring. One can see students playing cards in the far back corner only after dodging their way through the many dancers that have made the science hallway their dance studio during lunch. And, as one takes an even closer look at the hallway, one will notice the absence of teachers present. However, one needs only to open a door to the many classrooms to find all the science department teachers seated together eating their lunch and enjoying pleasant conversation. Though this is unusual compared to other departments at Armijo High School, this type of unseen connection is not foreign to the science teachers. Not only do they exhibit unity in some of their daily routines, but this unity is in every subject taught. It might just be Mr. Aronsen describing how, in chemistry, the different charges of certain atoms cause elements to bond. Or, it just might be Mr. Mitchell down the hallway, teaching his physics class about gravity and how it has the ability to pull objects toward each other. Or even still, it might be Mrs. Wisehart who is teaching her Biology class altruism, and the innate ability of animals to help each other. As we take a closer look at science: the teachers, students, and criteria, we find that all are examples of bringing about unity.

What is your favorite lab that you have ever complete

"My favorite lab was when I dissected a frog in Mrs. Wisehart's class. We cut it open and found different organs. It was really gross, but kind of cool." -Cathy Guevara '11

"My favorite lab was in my freshman year when we made an atom and had to talk als the atom and its properties."
-Pedro Morales '13

"My favorite lab was in my freshman year, in Mr. Mitchell's class when we did the Egg Drop Lab. We had to keep the egg as secure as possible using sticks, packing peanuts, and two Styrofoam cups. Then Mr. Mitchell dropped it from ten feet. I liked it because we got to actually apply knowledge in order to keep the egg in tact."

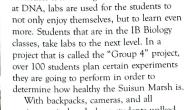

-Thomas Hernandez '12

Connecting With The Community Whether it is making ice cream or looking

With backpacks, cameras, and all equipment in hand, these students walked from Armijo to the marsh and spent the morning running several tests concerning the soil, water, animals, and much more. After the two day trips to the marsh, the main overseer of the project, Robin Roxas '12 shared, "Working together as a team, we were able to apply the skills we learned in the classroom to a 'real life' situation. At the same time we were able to learn more about our local environment, and gain a greater sense of our community."

READY FOR THE FUTURE

Not only do we find unity within the science department, but students of Mr. McKinney's Medical Science class like to apply it in their daily lives as they prepare for their future. In an effort to learn more about helping others, through nursing, the students of Mr. McKinney's Medical Science classes attend Northbay

Nurse Academy as part of the Nurse Ambassador's Program of Northbay Medical Center. Registered Nurses from the nearby hospital come to Armijo each month to share with these students the many departments of the hospital and how to get into nursing school through slide presentations.

WORKING WITH THE WING

Students of Mrs. Rockwell's Anatomy class had to learn first hand how to work together as they and their lab partner had to help one another complete their chicken wing dissection lab. Through the use of pins, scalpels, and probes, these students participated in enhancing their knowledge of muscles and tendons as they took a closer look at the parts of a chicken's wing. Ciclady Rodriguez '11 shared, "I liked that we got to touch and experience cutting the chicken wing on our own. We got to see where the nerves and muscles are on the wing." Through the use of a lab, not only were students able to further understand a concept, but they were also able to help each other while doing it.

Turf flying, players communicating, sweat dripping, and shots being taken. These are the events that are take place on the soccer field by the J.V. Boys Soccer team at 5:30pm, after the referee blows the first whistle to start their game. On Mondays and Wednesdays, the athletes on the J.V. soccer team are in "game mode" during the warm-ups before the game.

"Game mode" differs from player to player throughout the team. "Usually game mode to most athletes is when they act serious during the warm-ups and in the team meetings before the game, but for me, means messing around with my teammates. That gets me serious for the game," Trevor Flynn '13 states before he runs on the field to start a game. What really matters is what goes on during the game for the hour and 20 minutes that they play.

"You play how you practice!" Is just one of the many mottos you hear in soccer language. The different drills you do during practice, determine how you are going to play in the game coming up.

Having a hard and focused practice, will make your team excel in every way. If the players are focused during the game, they will usually come up with a win, or a well played game. With the practices so laid back, you would not expect the boys to play an effective game. However, this is quite often not the case, the J.V. boys have had quite a few games where they were passing, communicating, and scoring goals. Even though the day before those games, they had a "light" practice and messed around. The game of play depends on how they warmed up and how they took practice either seriously or joking around with each other. Either way, the JV team bonds and stays close, win or lose. No matter what, they always make it their goal to try their best in every game.

With Vintage players surrounding Ryan
 Lucas '13, he accurately chest traps the ball and passes it up the line for his teammate to take up and score.

3. Finally making his way to the 18 yard line, Juan Gonzalez '14 tries to defeat the Justin Siena defender to go and take a shot on goal.

4. A few inches in from the sideline, A Vacaville opponent and Angel Contreras '13 battle for the ball. In the end, Angel ends up winning the ball with the help of his fellow teammates.

6. Having swift movement, Edgar Padilla '14 is able to pass a Fairfield defender to take the ball up the field for another goal against Fairfield.

7. As a Vacaville player pressures Jesus Becerra '13, Armijo's players run up to their teammate to get the ball into open space.

8. As a Vacaville opponent tries to sneak up on Brian Galvan '14, Brian quickly dribbles the ball up the field to get it to his midfielders.

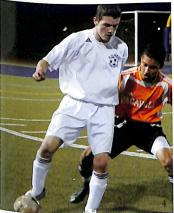

Having his hands up, Jose Larios '13 is able to reach the ball and grab it before his opponent heads it in.

Getting his knee up, it acts as a barrier to protect himself, from off or players crashing into him. In the motion of putting his knee up, it gives him more inomentum when he goes up to grab the ball.

6. After a fractured cheek bone, Brandon

Brimer '13 comes back as a force to be reckoned with, shown here stopping a goal during a home game.

7. Matt Limneos '11 fights against a Vintage player who attempts to steal control of the ball. Limneos has been out of the game for a year and came back as a major defensive player.

8. The Fairfield player loses control to Armijo defender Joel Calderon '11 who boots the ball towards Fairfield's goal.

Before every game, while the players are stretching. Coach Burzynski shakes every players' hand and wishes them good luck.

Mine! Mine! Mat is one of the most common things people would hear at our JV volleyball games. Every player was excited to start the game and have fun. The team had their ups and downs this season, just like every other sport! Although they did not win every single game, there was no giving up. When asked what kept the team from giving up, Akena Reyes '14 responded, "We encourage each other and try to think positive before games." They never let their spirits fall no matter what the outcome of the game was.

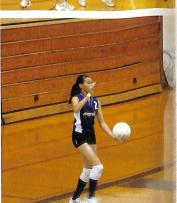

This year there were a few new freshmen additions to the team along with many returning players and an old-time favorite Coach Clara. Some people believed that it would be difficult to bond with new players after being so close to an old team but Zhane Garlington'13 shared, "The new players were a joy to have on our team! They were fun and had a heart to play." The JV team greeted the new freshman players with warm welcome and open arms. All of the new players had positive encouragement towards one another, Breana Davidson '13 revealed that Kelsey Bomar '14, co-captain during the season, encouraged the team when the players were upset. Kelsey was also always thinking positive thoughts. Later she added, "She was a beast!"

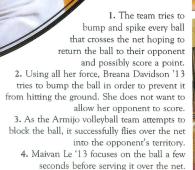

One of their favorite things to do is dance while they're warming up for games to get them motivated and ready to win. After winning in a match against Vacaville High School, and also beating Fairfield High School the Armijo volleyball team felt pretty good about themselves. After winning their game against Fairfield they were more than ready to celebrate with a pizza party at their following home game.

The JV Volleyball team plans to train and practice more in order to win more games. They plan to communicate more during the games. They've set a lot of goals for next year. The team may have had a rough season but they are willing to do whatever it takes to have more victories and most of all have a fun season that they will always remember.

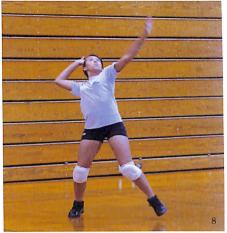

1. The pressure is on! Reyana Aquitania '13 must concentrate on hitting the ball over the net in order to score against Vacaville High. 2. The players always have each others backs and trade positions in case someone is injured.

6:30 am Akena Reyes '13 wakes up in the morning to get dressed for school. She always has her volleyball bag ready for a home game. If she doesn't eat cereal in the morning, she makes herself waffles with a cup of orange juice to prepare for the "big"

8:00 am She is in school focusing on all her school subjects, wearing her volleyball jersey to represent Armijo High School. She tries to have positive thoughts for the home game. She waits until the last bell rings in order to start prepating for the game.

2:50~pm After a long, exhausting day of school, the last school bell rings. For Akena this means that it is time to go wait with her team in the big gym and warm up before they play against their opponent.

5:30 pm Game time is here! The team is ready to play another volleyball game. She always has fun playing her game. "A game, playing with friends, and having fun is what volleyball means to me," Akena states. When the game ends she leaves happy, knowing she has accomplished her day.

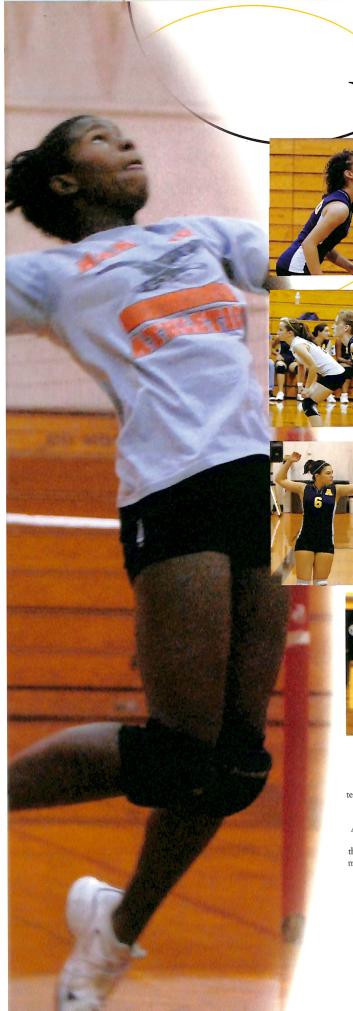

3. Getting ready to serve the ball, Reyana Aquitania '13 must accurately visualize where the ball must land in order to earn a point for the team. 4. The girls practice before they have their most important game of the season. They do a lot of stretching and a lot of work but they know that "practice makes perfect" and this practice will definitely pay off. Monique Evans '14 jumps as high as she can to strike the upcoming ball.

Varsity Volleyball

Freshman on Varsity:

It was a huge accomplishment when Freshman, Mariah Reyes was pulled up to Varsity by Coach Perales. "It was a surreal feeling and it has been my goal." Not knowing the other players and how they would react to a new teammate she later shared, "They treated me like I was their age and we bonded really well!" She plays Power Volleyball year-round for enjoyment and to keep in shape for volleyball season.

Trying out Libero:

Three year running volleyball player, Candis Hatfield '12, was given the opportunity to play a new position this year, Libero. "At first I wasn't so sure about it, but I really like the position. It was cool because I specialize in back row only and can be put into play at any given moment, not just in a certain rotation." Seeing as only one person can be chosen for this position she felt privileged and hopes to do it again next year.

New Addition to the Team:

A new addition to the Varsity team this year is Jordan Wilson '12. It took some convincing from her friends and a lot of thought, but in the end she decided to try out for the team. "It looked like fun and I wanted to try something new." Her favorite thing about the team is the atmosphere and how friendly everyone is.

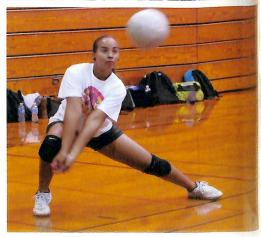

Beating a Rivalry Team:

It's safe to say that everyone on the team plays their hardest and is ready for anything to happen. But how about going against a rivalry school? "Our biggest match of the year is always Fairfield High and our sight is always set on winning those matches," says coach Perales. This year the girls managed to win two out of three games and for Devre Chavez '11 it felt like an accomplishment that was hard earned.

- 1. Playing in back row is Jordan Wilson '12, awaiting the serve from the opposing team.
- 2. During their first game against Fairfield High the girls can be seen cheering on their teammates at the same time that they are ready to be put in the game at any given moment.
- 3. One of the many graduating players at Armijo this year is Darian Quist-Richard, "I'm going to miss the people on the team, and all the fun times we had. The thing I will miss the most though is the locker room conversations". She is seen digging the ball during practice.

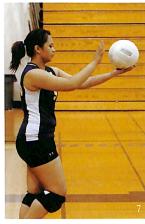

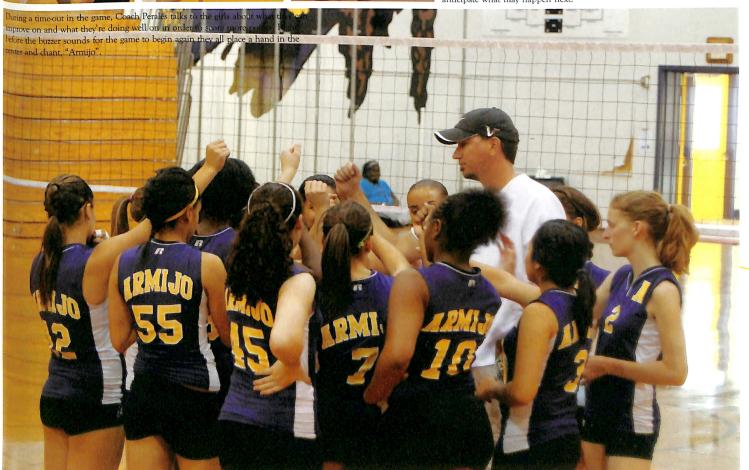

7:45 am She says people like to tease her about it but she buys a can of chili from the food cart in front of the school in the morning and that's her breakfast.

10:11~am "I have Mr. Arcia and that class is never boring." She says they are always getting into silly arguments over nothing but it's a fun class.

11:15 am Her fourth period isn't like anyone else's normal class. She says Mr. Summers always likes to Photoshop her head onto silly things and make her look funny but she gets a good laugh about it.

7:00~pm While taking pictures at a football game she was tackled by one of the football players. "It was so embarrassing and I will never forget it," she says.

- 4. Spiking the ball during practice is Mariah Reyes '14.
- 5. Shia Stennis '12 was more than ready to block Fairfield's attempt at scoring and ended up scoring herself.
- 6. Mariah Reyes '14, Shia Stennis '12, and Leilandra Mariano '12 are anxiously ready for the serve from the opposing team, Fairfield.
- 7. Serving the ball for Armijo Indians is Leilandra Mariano '12. In addition to playing for Armijo she also plays club volleyball for extra practice. 8.Michelle Pratt '12 is seen setting the ball during practice. Coach Perales jokingly says, "She looks like she's doing the YMCA dance every time". She loves the sport because of the adrenaline rush of having to anticipate what may happen next.

Record Breaker Return:

Matthew Pence was a Senior last year and was an incredible runner, making history with his record breaking times. This year, he has his brother, Michael Pence '12 on the team, but that's not the only reason why he decided to help out with coaching the team. He wanted to share his love and dedication of running with the new team. "He is a great runner and we're all glad he decided to come back and help coach us. He trained us really well with our long distance running, " says captain Marcial Cardenas '11. The whole team can agree that he was a great addition to the team this year.

Fresh Meat Runs Fast:

Freshman Dulce Armas '14 may have been a newbie to Armijo this year, but she proved that she definitely runs like a pro. She loved the company on the team and she said even the boys didn't make fun of her being a gir on the team, they supported her to do her best. No matter what the challenge was, she always made sure to meet her goals. "During the Fairfield meet, there was a girl named Tony who is an amazing runner. I really wanted to keep up with her and I did," Dulce explained. Dulce mainly ran to get in shape for a hopeful soccer season in the Spring, but that never stopped her from being one of the best.

Small but Mighty:

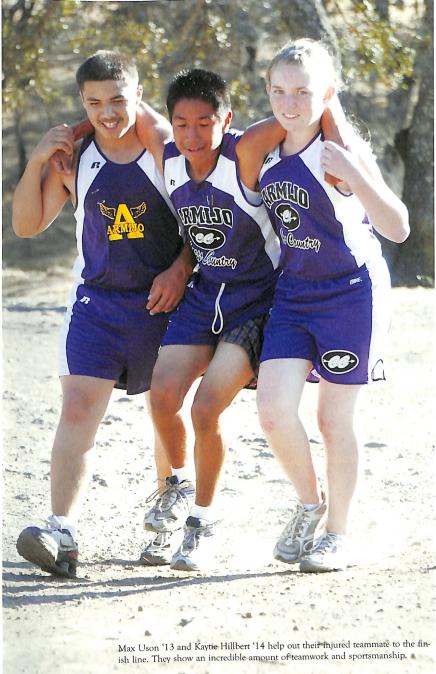

The team, as a whole, this year was much smaller than last. Although the number of Seniors on the team decreased to only five runners, there was a huge increase in new freshmen on the team. Being new, they proved their worth and were persistent throughout the whole season. "We had a more dedicated team this year than in years past, but lacked the numbers we usually had," Junior Joe Salas '12 says, "I feel that each and every person accomplished their goals this year."

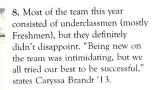

- 1. Coach Kalaf-Hughes, in his second year of coaching, watched his team run to a victory with the parents of the runners. "It's cool to socialize with them and hear their stories about their sons and daughters and how dedicated they are to run," he explains.
- 2. The Varsity girls were very small in numbers this year but every single one of them gave it their best at every meet and never gave
- 3. Max Uson '13 wears the face of determination while running his hardest through the rough Rockville terrain.

- 4. Michael Pence '12 sprints toward the finish line, eager to place well in the meet.
- 5. Running on terrain is one of the hardest things about cross country. "You've gotta be cautious of your surroundings and still run hard," says Freshman Jon Paul '14.
- 6. During the Fairfield race, Kyle Anderson '12 uses all his strength to keep up and stay within the top 5 runners. He victoriously finished 4th.
- 7. Seniors Kaysi Wheeler '11 and Delaina Gambrell '11 worked hard to finish before the third and fourth place Fairfield runners and ended up successful but even with their determination, Armijo didn't get the win that day.

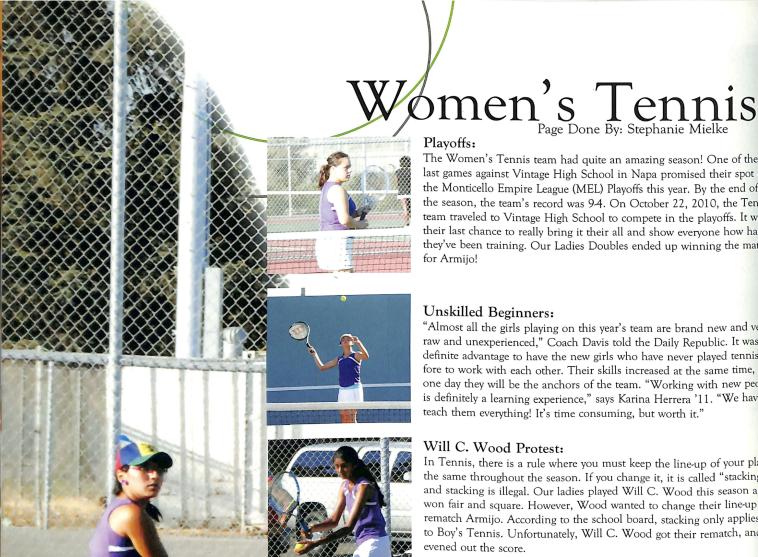

Rockville has always been Armijo's home terrain. This year, the team had the opportunity to run in several different and new terrains such as Pena Adobe and Lagoon Valley. The team enjoyed being able to run all around the county.

The Women's Tennis team had quite an amazing season! One of their last games against Vintage High School in Napa promised their spot in the Monticello Empire League (MEL) Playoffs this year. By the end of the season, the team's record was 9-4. On October 22, 2010, the Tennis team traveled to Vintage High School to compete in the playoffs. It was their last chance to really bring it their all and show everyone how hard they've been training. Our Ladies Doubles ended up winning the match for Armijo!

Unskilled Beginners:

"Almost all the girls playing on this year's team are brand new and very raw and unexperienced," Coach Davis told the Daily Republic. It was a definite advantage to have the new girls who have never played tennis before to work with each other. Their skills increased at the same time, and one day they will be the anchors of the team. "Working with new people is definitely a learning experience," says Karina Herrera '11. "We have to teach them everything! It's time consuming, but worth it."

Will C. Wood Protest:

In Tennis, there is a rule where you must keep the line-up of your players the same throughout the season. If you change it, it is called "stacking" and stacking is illegal. Our ladies played Will C. Wood this season and won fair and square. However, Wood wanted to change their line-up and rematch Armijo. According to the school board, stacking only applies to Boy's Tennis. Unfortunately, Will C. Wood got their rematch, and evened out the score.

- 1. While her other teammates kicked back and relaxed, Kathleen Boholst '14 practices at a Fairfield game to help improve her skills even more. Planning to get ready to face her - game faze her. "I'm both nervous and excited [when I serve], because it's bittersweet when I start a match.'
- 3. Molly Smith '12 isn't worried about losing this match. She studies the ball as it comes closer so she can complete a successful lob.

- 6. Marah-Divina Bynum '12 gives her all into her Tennis matches. At a Fairfield game, she lunges forward, making sure she didn't miss the ball.
- 7. After playing tennis over the summer and enjoying the game, Mercedes Uson '12, then goes out and puts what she learned in practice on the court, concentrating on beating Vaca High.8. Receiving the ball just in time to get Armijo the point, after their opponent serves it to them. They end up winning the match and continue on their great season.

Laya Dasari '12 has two lucky charms when it comes to helping her play Tennis. The first one is her Tennis racket and the other is her lucky bracelet. "I've never played singles before," she says, she also said she was wearing the bracelet when she won her first match.

Molly Smith '12 believes her Tennis racket was lucky too. "Every time we spun the racket to see who would serve first, it always landed on our side," comments her Doubles partner. Unfortunately, the racket broke.

satta Russell '12

JV Boy's Water Polo

Earning Your Name:

It's the second year that the varsity men have dubbed our JV boy's with their very own nicknames. Some find themselves very lucky to be chosen to have new name while others find themselves a bit embarrassed. Gage "Cramps Mattiuzzi '13 and Jahoe "Thunder" Bautista '14 were named based on events in the pool. While Cody "Jar Head" Gonzalez '14 was crowned his name for looking like a marine. Jose "Sloth" Gaglianone '14 wasn't named this for being slow but for reminding players of "Sloth" from the "Goonies!" The best name of all has to be Matthew "Princess Sticky Buns" Chambers '14, this teaches the boy's not to complain in practical because boy's can be cruel.

Personal Foul:

In a game full of fouls, this "foul" is different in many ways. At the home game against Vintage on Thursday, October 21st Conrad Miholick '14 made a mistake that will haunt him the rest of his pole career. During the 3rd quarter as a light rain picked up Armijo was able to intercept the ball. Conrad making a very common move and lobbing the ball back to the goalie Jon Beserra '13. The stands were silent as they watched as the ball sailed back and land, not in front of Jon, but in the goal behind him. The first thought in Conrad's mind was, "Everyone is disappointed (in me)." All he wanted to do was get the ball to the goalie.

Thunder and Jarhead:

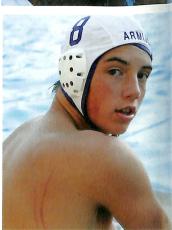

During the last game during their season at Armijo two players made their mark, Cody "Jarhead" Gonzalez '14 and Tahoe "Thunder" Bautista '14.

Out of nowhere a new side of Tahoe emerged, showing great promise for new season with his first goal and an assist. While Cody had continued to be a form in the pool, he shared, "I was pumped I was getting my skip-shot down! I think all my goals that game were skip shots." During his season, Cody had made 7 goal 3 of them being in his last game versus Fairfield High.

the JV boy's Coach Scott Willson's words of wisdom seem to sink in really well. Being a first year coach, Willson has left quite an impression on our boys working them hard, but most of all giving them a love for the game. 2. Gage Mattiuzzi '13 takes time to soak in all the much-needed information from his coach and many "student coaches." 3. A two-year player, a great learner, and a leader by example, those would be just a few of the many ways to describe Eric Castro '13. "He really takes what we tell him to do during games to heart. It's really rare that you see someone apply something they never practiced before in a game, and have it work!" says a "student coach.

4. Revealing his battle scars from a game against Napa, Matthew Chambers '14 was pulled from a game that a lot of Armijo players were injured in. "I was ready to go back in! In the game of water polo you're going to get hurt!"

6. Promoting inner team bonding between the girl's team and the guy's is what Cody Gonzales '14 and Gage Mattiuzzi '13 are all about. They took some styling sunglasses from a couple of the Varsity Girl's to gain some laughs.

7:00am The key to a great game is a great breakfast. A meal of oatmeal, toast, and orange juice keeps Cody energized.

12:12pm This is the time when Cody creates team bonding by goofing off with his team mates and getting pumped by talking about how they will dominate during the game.

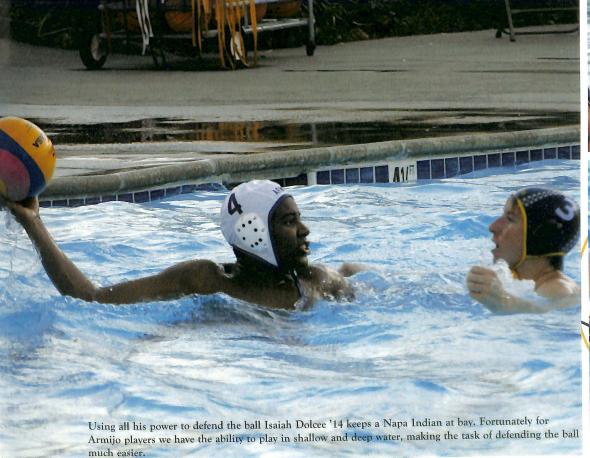

5:00pm This Around this time Cody meets some of the other JV boys at Evelyn's Big Italian Pizzeria or Avalanche to eat a good meal and get pumped for the days game.

6:00pm Before most game we normally warmed up with Kristen Soldati. "She scares us so we listen to her. Plus she takes charge and being told what to do by some one I'm close to makes me want to be better then her."

7:30pm During the game, Cody tries to get at least two kick outs (the players are only allowed three before being ejected from the game) in order to fire himself up.

7. Speed, agility, and a watchful eye is what goalie Jon Beserra '13 is gifted with. During a game against Napa he was able to gracefully steal the ball before the player knew it was gone.

8. To foul or not to foul? That is the question. Eric Castro '13 feels that his "foul" was necessary and fair because according to him one must retaliate if fouled upon.

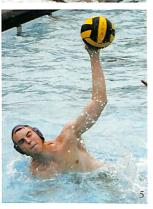

8. "Sprint!" The most utilized word in water polo is screamed at Danny Lavell '12. He pushes with every ounce possible to get to the ball before the other team.

9. Being bonded as a team is what defines the boys Varsity team. They come together and talk about what they need to do and go over plays quickly before the boys go back in

- 4. During a game Jonah Cohan '11 takes the time to think about a play and clam down before going back into the game.
- 5. Utilizing every inch of his arm Eric Haunschild '11 attempts a powerful shot at goal. Each and every goal is valued to the boys.
- 6. After finding an opening Tony Zaghloul '12 fires a shot attempting a much needed goal.
- 7. Scanning the field as the shot clock winds down can make or break a possession. Jonah Cohen '11 sits on the ball as he waits for the best play.

at Zachary Peterson "Whiskers"

4:30 am Time to wake up! "No breakfast in the morning for me, cause it makes me sick." But he takes his canteen to school to keep hydrated and he packs a good hearty lunch.

12:12 am Finally lunch time. He fills up his canteen and eats the huge healthy energy building food, so he can be ready for a rigorous game that is only a few hours away.

2:15 pm "I always sing on the bus on the way to our games." Zach said, "It makes me pumped up and ready to get in the pool and play my hardest!"

4:00 pm It's finally game time! "It's what I look forward to all day." He is so ready to get in and kick some but

The past two years have been considerably hard for Armijo's Water Polo players and Competitive Swimmers. In the beginning of the new 2010-2011 school year, the pool was thankfully re-opened for our Aquatic sports players to use again, after budget cuts unfortunately closed the pool for a year. Though it had a tremendous impact on players and parents alike, everyone was grateful for this new change of pace.

Water Polo Returned:

On Tuesday, October 12, 2010, Armijo High School's Water Polo team had their first home game since the re-opening of their pool. Excitement, exhilaration, and happiness don't even come close to describing the team's emotions during the season. With a returning coach on deck, alumni players returning to assist, and a new men's coach, it seemed just like old times again for the team.

Future of Competitive Swimming:

The future of Armijo's Swim Team all comes down to how much dedication and success the team will put forth this year. With Coach Brenna Izatt coming into the picture for the 2011 season, there will be a lot more order and preparation going towards the team. Already so many people are looking forward for the season. "We're going to make it the best year yet!" April Vogel '11, a returning swimmer, said.

Principal Tretten's Outlook:

It gets somewhat sticky to deal with, being in the middle of the budget cuts, but Principal Eric Tretten has quite a deal of experience. "It's a whole U.S. crisis. But we're doing what we can to make it work and make the best of it." When questioned about the SOAP proceeds, he said, "SOAP made a way for us to have a solid foundation for this. We possibly wouldn't have any sports if it weren't for SOAP." Budget cuts did have an impact, but as far as positivity goes, "it showed how resilient kids were, and how supportive parents were."

 & 2. Coach Willson, having been both the JV and Varsity Men's coach for this one year, has individually and together with Coach Glashoff, worked exceptionally hard to get the team to where they are now.

3. & 4. Coach Lizzy, having been the JV and Varsity Women's coach for three years, really worked hard to get the team to where they are now. Commenting on the October 5th pool clean-up, Coach Lizzy said, "I'm glad to see the team come together to work so hard like this. The pool is something they surround themselves with every day; they should be proud of it."

Portrayed below is a variety of photos from the first ever recorded pool clean-up the Water Polo team had during their first season since the pool re-opened. The team, including both Junior Varsity and Varsity, came together as a whole on October 5th, 2010, to clean the site with which had been abandoned for the 2009-2010 school year. As Hannah Lawson '14 (Left) states, "This is really cool. It was abandoned for a year, so it's nice to see it being built back up." This event was a great, bonding experience for this year's team.

X///////X Nicknamed "Soy Sauce" ever since he first joined the team, Kevin Lui '13 participates in both Water Polo and Swimming. Ever since the abadonment of the pool, the tarps that cover the pool before and after practice accumulated a considerable amount of mold. Cleaning these were a main focus for the team.

Rachel Orr '11

"Having the pool back this year is a major convenience from last year. Playing in your home pool gives the team strength in an honoring way." Rachel has improved so much during the past four years that she achieved the goal of qualifying for the Monors team in this year's M.E.L. league.

Lacey Dahlin 11

Being goalie for the past three years, Lacey Dahlin '11 gets a different perspective the game. "Being able to go over the two hour practice limit to work on certain things and not have to worry about sharing space with another school has given our team an advantage to work harder"

Bridget Carlson 11

"It was super nice not to have to drive all the way out to the college every day. I think the reopening of the pool gave us more players than we would have had." As opposed to last year, the amount of Water Polo players has increased considerably.

Stepping Up:

As the season tarted, the girls were looking for some of their teammates to take the reins and lead the team. Stepping up would be Haprah Lawson '14 and Lucy Altman '13. Though not designated captains, they pushed their teammates to practice harder and get more into each and every drill they ran.

The Final Stand:

The last game for the girls of the JV team fell on the night of October 28th this year, closing a season shortened by weeks compared to years past. As the girls climbed out of the pool after the final buzzer, memories of their season came out, along with a few tears, ones of joy of course.

Moving Forward:

With this being the final year of Junior Varsity for several girls, including Hawa Naimzada '13, Emily Eddy '13 and Brianna Belluomini '13, the team must prepare for changes that will come at the years end. The deaprture of these Sophomores will leave holes in the JV ranks that need filling, while also supplying fresh new talent for next year's Varsity girls.

Looking Back:

Unfortunately for the Armijo Water Polo teams, the 2010 season could have gone better. Facing the difficulties of losing former players, the adjustment to new coaching, and trying to build up the very young team, the girls struggled through the season. This didn't diminish their spirits however, as many of them cite this year as their favorite yet.

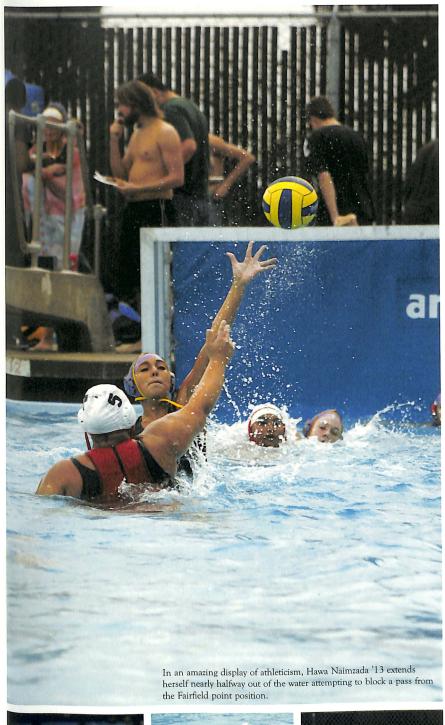

thwarting a Fairfield offensive during an exhibition match, Katryna Sanders '12 struggles to bring in a loose ball. In the final game of the season, both teams were forced to forfeit due to lack of a full team, but decided to throw in a couple Varsity players and have a good time anyway. 2. Taking a skill from her old soccer days, goalie Emily Eddy '13 delivers the ball to the far end of the pool using the precision of two hands. "She wasn't quite strong enough to get it that far with only one hand, so one day she asked if she could use two, soccer style, and I said 'Heck yeah! Go for it!' exclaimed Coach Lizzy Glasshoff.

3. Defense was a huge focus for the girls this year. In contrast to other teams in the league, defensive tactics and maneuvers were emphasized more than anything else. Looks like our girls really took the idea that "The best offense is a good defense" to heart.

 Recuperating during a time out, the Indians catch their last few breaths before letting out their team cheer and heading back into the fray.

Playing with friends is fun, but playing against them can be even better. Katryna Sanders '12 had the chance during the Indians final game to play against Samantha Pashenee of Fairfield High.

9. Late in the game, Hawa Naimzada '13 places pressure on an offensive attempt by the Fairfield Falcons while also staying back to guard against the pass. 10. Brianna Belluomini '13 prepares to take a shot on goal while Katryna Sanders '12 handles an opponent nicely in the background. 11. In one of her many fantastic saves this year, Emily Eddy '13 takes it upon herself to prevent a Napa goal.

Point your elbow where you want the ball to go, set the wrist, and release with a flicking motion. This will keep the ball on-line and allow it to carry further.

Focus on your target, whether it's the goal or a teammate. Make sure your teammate thows you are pasting them the ball.

Fundraise to Play

The Armijo Football team didn't think they were going to be able to play this year because of the budget cuts. There wasn't enough money for transportation to their games and there were too many guys on the team for parents to be able to drive them. This brought the team to work together and help fundraise to be able to get the transportation they needed is that they could play football, and they did just that.

Phere's a First for Everything:

The Armijo Indians Junior Varsity team won their first game agains Valley High. They scored 6 touchdowns, one of which was scored Jacob Mahr '14, who scored his first touchdown of the season and the first one for the team. Another touchdown was scored by Troy Anderson '14, when asked about it, he replied, "I couldn't believe it I was so excited. I thought I was dreaming." The team played a great game and put a lot of the skills they learned in practices towards this game and it paid off.

Stronger Than you Think:

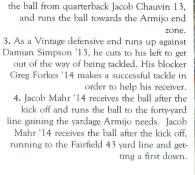

Another great achievement the Junior Varsity received is when they played Napa High. Napa's a good strong team, and they played the smart, putting up a good fight. When asked about the game Jacob Chauvin '13 said," We played a good team and we came out strong Our season this year has had its ups and downs, but we've continued to get better with every game we've played. We just need to keep practicing and getting better."

Injuries are a Big Part of Football:

During the course of the season, the team has lost some pretty important players. Some were to injury and others because they were pulled up to he the Varsity team. Lucas Bowers '14, the Junior Varsity's starting tight-end broke his arm in practice doing drills, when asked about it he said, "It was hard sitting on the sidelines watching my team, and knowing that I couldn't help with what was happening." Jairon Gacosta '13, their leading scorer, fracture his arm in practice. Unknowing of the fracture, he played that Friday in the game against Vacaville High, ending up further injuring himself. He was out for the remainder of his football season.

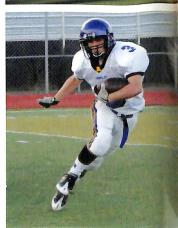

1. Breaking through the Benicia defense, Dylan Beck '13 runs the ball towards the end zone to help put his team ahead!

2. Running back Jairon Gacosta '13, receives

When receiving the ball, Orland Young '13 runs down low so that if he gets hit, it wont hurt as much as if he was running up right.

He holds the ball like this, because it helps him maintain control. It also will prevent him loosing the ball if he was to get hit by his opponent.

The way he runs and places his feet is how he is able to get past the defense so quickly without being tackled or stopped.

Quarterback Jacob Chauvin '13 runs the ball for the end zone as his linemen put a stop to the Vanden defense and clear a path for him.

6. Jacob Mahr '14 says "As soon as I look up, I look for a gap to get through so that I can help the team. And I'm a little nervous with everyone running full speed towards me, but it's the best part of the game."

7. Running in Wood territory, trying to get past their defense, Caleb Rounsvall '13 gets stopped at Wood's forty-yard line. "This was a hard game to play in, because of the weather and the field conditions. We played hard, just didn't get the results we wanted, said Greg Forkes '13.

8. Jacob Chauvin '13 runs the ball past the Fairfield defense all the way to the end zone, getting his first touchdown of the season. "I was so excited to finally get a touchdown," he replied when asked about it.

It is the end of a play in the Varsity football Homecoming game against Napa High School. "Don't you dare quit," Coach Singer says as the team runs off the field and pulls into the huddle. After a few more words, the team refocuses and is

The Varsity football team was in for a rough year due to only having twenty players for most of the season. Nearly all the players had to participate in both offense and defense, exhausting them faster than the opposing teams. It would have been easy for these players to quit during the season, but they stuck it out to the end. Johnathan Teal '12 said he thought of quitting multiple times, but kept going because he felt committed to what (he) started. The tough season could have easily discouraged them, but the team stayed together. When teammates got down, Johnathan explained, "Ja'Briane and Eddie encouraged us to keep going." With seniors stepping up to encourage the younger players, it is easy to see what kept Varsity going. Taz Udell '13 persevered after a pre-season home game injury against Benicia High School. His knee was taken out by an opposing player and he was out for several weeks. Udell could have easily given up after the injury, but he was able to come back

The season may not have been what the Varsity team hoped for, but they were able to make it through and have fun along the way. Senior Ali Karaouni '11 stated, "We play for the fun and because we love the sport, the ending score is whatever."

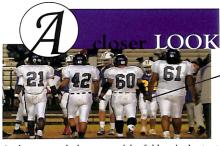

was then able to complete his pass to the open receiver

As they approach the center of the field at the beginning of the game, Varsity captains Ja'Briane Ross '11, Ali Karaouni '11, Casey Towner '11, and Andrew Fuimaono '12 can always be seen holding hands. "It shows unity. We're a family." Casey Towner '11 states proudly.

4. The offensive line is ready to score in the first home game of the season. Ja'Briane Ross '11 was finally able to score on a 31 yard sprint in the fourth quarter.

5. Teamwork is all that's needed as Casey Towner '11, Enrique Garrido-Rameriz '13, and Eddie Gumataotao '11 stop the Fairfield player from scoring a touchdown.

6. After receiving the ball, Devaughn Gaines '11 sprints up the middle to gain some yardage in the game against Napa.

7. In the final minutes of game, Eddie Gumataotao '11 runs the ball up the sideline as he races towards the endzone in a last attempt at scoring against the Fairfield defense.

8. Focused, Determined, Driven. All these things are portrayed on the faces of Edward Dobbles '11 and Johnathan Teal '12 as they watch their teammates battle Rodriguez.

On September 6, 1995 Coach Singer got a call from the Athletic director, Dave Mareshal, about joining us here at Armijo High School. Singer then came to take the assiatant job for baseball, and football, in the 1995 seasons. Where he then took over the head spot the next syears. After two years as an assistant, Singer took over as head coach from Jerry Glassmaker in 1998, and a year later the Indians produced their first winning season since 1986. Armijo finished above .500 in five of the next seven seasons and didn't have a losing season in eight straight campaigns, a string of success unseen by the purple and gold since their glory days of the 1930s.

In 13 seasons as head football coach, Singer's amassed a 57-70-1 record, peaking at 51-40-1 four games into the 2007 season before finishing with a 6-30 slide. Armijo coach Mike Singer and longtime assistant Keith Piel. Regardless of ups and downs, "I could hardly wait to get to work every day," said Singer, who came to the school from St. Mary's of Stockton -- he still lives in San Joaquin County -- and also serves as varsity baseball coach retiring Singer one win shy of tying Buck Bailey's school record of 58 career wins. Singer's accomplishments is that he made Armijo football relevant again. Sandwiched between his first season (1-8-1) and his last, the Indians were 56-53-2 and likely would've made the playoffs five times if the current playoff system was in place during his entire tenure.

"I've enjoyed the kids at Armijo, I've enjoyed the faculty, I've enjoyed teachers. Everybody loves to pick on me retiring."

Even during his worst season going 0-10, coach Singer said every day was enjoyed. "It's a Profession it's what I do. I'm a coach, of course I love what I do." When asked what he would miss the most? Singer replied that "The young boys and girls at Armijo have been the best, always supporting and cheering no matter what the score is. They're the best." A man of proffession and respect coach singer will be missed forever.

On the last game of the year Armijo boys and girls cheered and made posters all over campus, celebrating there thanks for long time coach Singer. Coach Singer spent 15 years at the Varsity football coach postion with a recored of 56-53-2.

BASEBALL

Stike one, Strike two, Strike three, to Coach Singer Baseball has been a strong battle over the years! last year he won his 600th game vs no other than Fairfeild High. A recorod breaking event in Armijo history. Singer has sent over 40 Armijo students alone to Division one sports, most of which have been in baseball.

Not only has singer sent many Armijo students to the next level he has won four MEL champion ships, and over six differnt playoff apperances. With a very strong chance with a senior talented filled team this year, many fans are exteited and expecting big things from singers last year as the head coach for theis last baseball seaon.

Singer has left many indents on this school over the last 15 years but, when asked how he would like to be rembered he replied," I would like for every student that wears an Armijo Indian jersey to wear won with respect. Respect is what i have preached over the years, it's what it's about. Respect for yourself, your family, and your school. The best athletes are the ones that come out to get better, not to just wear a uniform, and it all comes with respect."

Armijo will truly miss and always have a home for coach Singer. From his wonderfull PE class to his great coaching over the years, we will always remember him. Thank you Coach Singer

JV Bøy's Basketball

We Are the Champions!

We can't lose. We have to make our home crowd proud." Coach Deon Price tells the team before their last game at home. Fairfield High tries to catch up but Armijo leads the game by 16 points. The adrenalin is rushing and the final buzzer goes off. The Armijo Indians are crowned MEL champions going 9-1 for the 2011 season. BALLIN'!

Zero to Heroes

"One of the cool things that happened this season was that our team started out as the number five team in league and at the end of the season we ended up on top as number one!" Troy Anderson '13 smiles. This was JV's second year of becoming MEL champions. So starting off as number five really got the team to persevere throughout the whole season!

Indians Vs. Wildcats

It's the night of Homecoming, February 4th. The excitement and adrenaline rush is in the air. It's six PM. It's game time. Indians are in the lead by fifteen points. But little did they know that the Will C. Wood Wildcats would soon catch up. The game becomes more intensible to the second. The score suddenly cuts down to three points; Wildcats leading. Only ten seconds are left, which should give Armijo plenty of time but the shot at the buzzer doesn't quite make it. Leaving Armijo with a 9-1 league score.

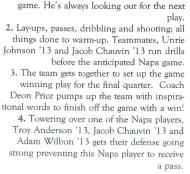

All About the Teamwork, Baby!

Teamwork: noun. The process of working collaboratively with a group of people, in order to achieve a goal. Our teamwork is really tight. We would be losing at first half of the quarter then we come back and win the game." Aaron Green '13 says about JV's teamwork. JV's team is like a band of brothers coming together playing the sport they love.

6. Jumping sky high, as the tallest player on the team, Devin Bell '13 smacks the ball right out of Napa's reach to kick off the game with a bang! It starts the game off with great excitement!

7. I believe I can fly! Orland Young '13 definitely can! Although he isn't the tallest player on the team. Young says. "I almost got the ball into the hoop but it bounced off so i grabbed the rim. It would have been cool if I made it!"

8. "I get a little nervous but you just gort for it." The whole gym becomes silent as Vinay Pal '14 readies himself with a deep breath and a couple dribbles to make his free throw shot.

The cookies to the cream. The peanut butter to the jelly. Just like cheese on a pizza, Orland Young '13 and Adam Wilbon '13 have been the best of friends on the basketball court and outside the coart for four years. "We met on Crystal Middle School's basketball team and ever since then we've been really good friends." Wilbon says. During the basketball games they like to pump each other up. "It's cool to have someone on the court that you can trust. We also help each other become better basketball players." Young states. They plan to continue playing basketball for Armijo and having fun with the sport they both adore.

4. Damian Johnson '11 drove the basket hard all year of his senior season. Damian is another senior that has stuck with basketball all four years of his high school career.

Driving hard to the basket is one of the most attempted strategies in High school basketball. The percentage that you get fouled is high and occasionally, the refs will give the driving player the and one call.

It's all in the kicks. Obviously basketball -players take a lot of pride in their shoes, Travis Selle '12 is no objection.

7. Karmen Baljoltra '11 was one of the seniors who will not be returning next year. Karmen played for Armijo all four years.
8. Foul! Going up for the basket can be a rough experience as Armijo is hit hard in this attempt.

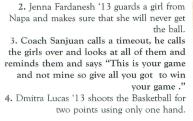

Home game, are always the best; you have your family, friends and lots of theer. The first game of the season was held in Sacramento. Attending this game is mostly people from Inderkum high and less of Armijo. Away games are always different. In away games you have a different crowd against you and makes the presente on the players higher. Home games are a great environment that the JV Girls are use too, that gives them the encouragement to do there best.

When the first game began the thoughts on coaches and players are "How will we do this season?" On the Armijo Team we have players like Jenna Fardanesh #24 she plays Point Guard, Sade Ware #40 plays Center, Laura Lawson #12 great Power Forward, Jada Williams #10 plays Shooting Guard and Dimtra Lucas #4 plays Guard. The 1st quarter has started and shots being made are mostly 2 pointers and Lay-Ups, end of 1st and Armijo was behind 3 points. As 2nd quarter starts the position of the ball is back and forth, Armijo has it then Inderkum. Third quarter was the best, Armijo had the best defensive tactics, and one of them is called the Triangle, the purpose of the Triangle tactic is stop the other team from making close in shots. Offense was a huge change on the crowds emotions, constantly Armijo JV girls was making 2 pointers like crazy, in the end of 3rd Armijo made 13 and Inderkum made 3, as the 1st game of the season ends Armijo wins 37-34. Players group up together and quotes to each other and says "this is a great way to start the season."

Dribbling the basketball above the waist is good technique to avoid the other team from stealing the ball.

Ankle support is important in Basketball, with high top shoes the risk of a sprained ankle is lowered.

- 5. Jada Williams '13 prepares herself in her unique free throw position
- 6. The bench always gives support to the girls on the court. The girls play as one team no matter who plays.
- 7. Zhane Garlington #44 gets up as she was on a breakaway. The Napa girls could not catch up to her blazing speed to get upcourt to stop the layup.
- 8. Dmitra Lucas #4 sees an open opportunity to steel the ball from Fairfield high, she often uses her speed to both defend and score points for Armijo.

One For the Books:

For the Armijo Varsity Girls Basketball program, this season has undoubtedly been one for the books. Having an undefeated M.E.L record of 100 and an overall record of 24-5, including a 16-game winning streak, this has been one of the best seasons for Armijo Women's Basketball since 1996. "We all had dreams since we started playing of winning League," said Daija Daniels '13, "but to make it this far [CIF Sections] is just unreal."

The First Steps:

Led by Captains Erica Bosset '11 and Marshanique Hall '13, the Armijo Lady's Basketball team had a lot of work to do at the beginning of the season. "It was tough to get all the girls on the same page, but once we all started clicking it really just flowed, and we started to anticipate what each other would do on the court. It was just magical." With such a young team, Erica Bosset '11, a four-year veteran, knew that they would need to kick it into high gear if they wanted to have a successful season. Needless to say, all the practice and early season games paid off more than they could have ever hoped.

The Winning Formula:

What does it take for a noticeably undersized women's basketball team to go 24-5 in one of the most competitive sections in the state? How about this: An average of 5.8 points per game by all active players, with Marshanique Hall '13 averaging 12.6, Melaya Gianes '13 averaging 12.8, and Chloe Dawkins '12 averaging 14.7. On top of that, the Varsity Girls Basketball Team beat their opponents by an average of 18.5 points throughout the season, and averaging 70 points per game as a team.

3. In the final minutes of their home game against Vacaville High School, Chloe Dawkins '13 delivers the ball down the court with Vacaville defenders hot on her tail.

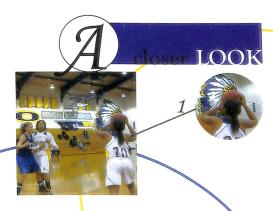

- 7. The camaraderie couldn't have been any higher this season. Any regular spectator would have seen, not only the teamwork practiced on a regular basis, but also the friendship and bond developed between all the members of the program, including the players, coaches, and even spectators.
- 8. This season was an especially rough one for the Varsity Women's squad. Rough not as in an unsuccessful season, but as an incredibly physical one. Halfway through the season there were a number of players out for the season with jujuries.

Waiting on the cue from Daija Daniels '13, Marsha nique Hall '13 prepares to double back around her defender to recieve a pass and go for a layup.

Wrestling is considered to be one of the hardest sports, yet it is often overlooked by spectators, due to the popularity of other sports such as basketball and football. Unlike these other sports wrestling is more dependent on the individual. Each wrestler goes into a match on their own with only the cheers of their teammates to back them up. There is no one standing behind them that they can pass a ball to if they run into a challenge. Even though they step onto the mat alone, the wrestler knows that they have been prepared by their teammates to take on the challenge.

During practices teammates wrestle against each other in simulation of a real match. This progresses their skills and prepares them for situations they will encounter in an actual meet. Chris along with many most of the JV team had never wrestled before the season began. "I improved on everything by wrestling my friend, Terrence Saeteurn. He kicked my butt, but he makes me better," said Chris Bruner '14. These moments not only make them better wrestlers but also help them to build great friendships

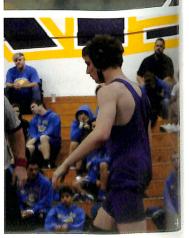

Each of the wrestlers must train intensely in order to make weight for their bouts. The sport's strict rules mean that each wrestler may not be over even one tenth of a pound overweight, meaning that there is no room for error. All of these wrestlers must diet hard to keep their weights down, most of them giving up things such as fast food, soda, and sweets. If a wrestler comes in even a tenth of a pound overweight, they are disqualified from the event.

Wrestling is a sport, which requires motivation, dedication, and ability. Without these three things, no athlete can be successful in this sport that requires the sacrifice of personal desires.

JV Baseball

Gettin' Active:

With a rough start in pre-season, some of the players on the team struggled to find their rhythm. This worried the JV coaches, but they never lost their faith in their team. Head coach McCampbell told the team jokes to keep the teams spirit up. Turns out the cracking jokes helped because at the start of league, and the majority of the team went on a hitting streak.

Defeating the Red & Black:

Having never lost a game at Fairfield High, this years JV team had to keep the tradition. Going into the game Sophomore Wyatt McCampbell '13 said that he was confident and ready. The Indians got the early lead and kept it up throughout the game to a win with a 14 to 5 victory. "It gave us confidence into our next game", Hayden DelDotto '14.

Underdogs Against Bulldogs:

Just as Vacaville's mascot is the Bulldogs, going into the series against them, the JV team was definite underdogs. However in their second match up against Vacaville, the Indians had a lead of 6 to 4 by the fourth inning. And again held their own in another game by coming back after they were down 6 to 0, they started a rally and answered those six runs by ending the fourth inning 6 to 6. Though they did not win, they gave it their all and made for a good ball game.

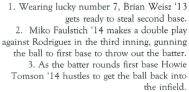

New Faces in Small Places:

Early in the year, before league started, Jacob Chauvin '13 was badly injured after he slid into second base, putting him out for the rest of the season. After the devastating loss of the starting center fielder, the position needed to be filled and the Indians needed to find a way to keep going. Luckily, they found a hope in Kyle Elledge '14. "With Jacob gone, the freshman needed to step up", Coach Tomson, and Kyle seems to be doing just that

- 8. The team huddles together to strategize a win and keep their focus.

You can see the catcher signaling the pitcher every game. But what does it all mean? And how do they know what to signal? Catcher Chris Parodi '14 says that it all depends on the batter, "I give Garlind signals so he knows what to throw. Like a one for a fistball and another sign so he knows to pick off first."

Communication is key between the two, "Garlind listens to me most the time", says Parodi. "I have to be paying attention the batter as well as the players on the bases." So far Chris Parodi "14" and Garlind Webster "14" make a great pair.

April Showers Bring Delayed Games

The 2011 season got off to a slow start due to bad weather. "It makes it tougher for the boys when early games are rained out. We will have to reschedule and play more than 2 games in a week which throws off our pitching staff." explained Coach Singer. Early on in the season, it looked as if the games would never be played, that is until spring break brought some good weather for a change.

Little Fish, Big Pond

Traditionally, Armijo's baseball team is reluctant to pull up young players for the varsity team before they are juniors. This year, Armijo has gone against tradition and brought up sophomore Taylor Torrence '13. "Defensively we needed help and Taylor played himself into the position," quoted Singer. Whatever the reason, Torrence has made a name for himself in the varsity dougout and will remain there for years to come.

Taking the Fight Out of the Big Dog

The Vacaville Bulldogs were supposedly the best team in the league and were also projected to win the MEL championships this year. But when Armijo played them, the took the series 2-1. "They were a tough team to beat, they never gave up," pitcher Nick Smart '11 explained. Every game against Vacaville kept the spectators at the edge of their seats and even the one game they lost,

Fab Five

For Seniors Brian Wilson '11, Wilson Hull '11, Casey Towner '11, David Fernandez '11 and Nick Spini '11, playing baseball together is nothing new. These 5 boys have been playing baseball together for 9 years now, and with college coming up, it will most likely be the last. They are all exceptionally good players on the team, and they will definitely be missed next year as they begin the next chapter of their lives.

3, Shortstop Wilson Hull '11 gets a head start to a steal as the Bulldogs throw another pitch to their batter.

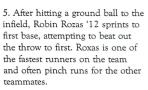

8. Third baseman Casey Towner '11 watches the pitch from the Vintage starter intently before hitting an RBI aingle out to right center field.

6. First baseman Kurtis Blufors '12 makes sure he's got one foot on the base when the ball hurles towards him, proceeding to make a perfect catch and forcing the Vacaville player out.

The first baseman is one of the most important positions in the game. You always have to be alert and ready for anything.

JV Softball

This year the JV softball team is all about learning and bettern not only as individuals but also as a team. Some girls jumped in alread knowing what position they wanted to play and some were still searching for the perfect spot. All they know is that they were ready to play. "Softbal is different than other sports. You can't just do everything yourself, you have to rely on the help of your teammates," says sophomore Kiann Simms '13. Kianna also plays basketball and has played softball before "In basketball you have a chance to score points on your own or even block a shot, but here you need the team to work together on offense and defense," said Kianna.

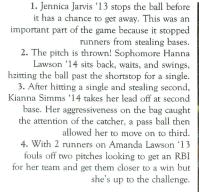

Throughout the week the girls have been learning the game of softball. Turning double plays, making throw downs, and getting down bunts when they needed to in practice only makes performing the games easier. The practices are tough but Coach Clara makes sure to leave a little room for fun. Some days you can even find a team scrimmage going on. They prefer live hitting on the field because it feels more like a game and they can practice game situations.

As high school students, everyday is a learning experience and every experience teaches us a lesson. It's safe to say that these girl learn that working hard daily can help you achieve your goals. Whether it's in the classroom or on the field, you can never learn enough. As a team they have grown and become better players and only plan to keep getting better. These girls come to play and they give there all in every game. Their passion is what drives them to play and they know that in order to become a better team they have to work together. You can practice all you want but there's no better way to learn than playing a game. Games allow you to learn from your mistakes and test your skills.

6. After running from first to second Angelica Parra '14 rounds second base looking to see where the ball is. Depending on where the ball is, Angelica will either try to take third or wait for her chance and stay on second

7. Hanna Lawson '14 slides into second after hitting a double. It was a close play but nothing feels better than hitting the ball hard and beating the ball to the base. Hanna is one of two left handed players on the team and she's proud of it.

8. As she warms up the pitcher in the beginning of the inning, Celina Del Real '14 squats and waits for the pitch. She knows that in order to be a catcher you have to be fearless behind the plate.

When it comes to softball, players like to add their own little touch to the uniform. Ribbon is very popular and a way for girls to personalize the uniform.

Under armor is another way for girls to add to their uniforms. It fits tight to keep you warm on those cold game days.

Varsity Softball

Picking up Where They Left Off

With only four returners the varsity softball team was forced to start from scratch. "It's tough to start like this after having such an older team last year," says Senior Demi Gray '11. "We lost 5 starters and were forced to build from the ground up." This year the varsity team has been learning to work together and tighten up the defense. Everyone thinks it's easy to just throw a bunch of players on to the team, but to be successful it takes having a good connection with each girl.

Calling All Freshman!

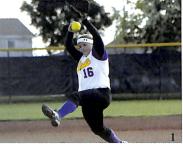

This year you can find 3 new starters who are not only new to the team but also new to the school. Kelsey Bomar '14, Jessica Miller '14, and Alexandra Azzopardi '14 who are 3 freshmen that stepped up to the challenge in taking over three important spots. After losing majority of the infield the girls came in to help ease the stress of the only 2 seniors left. "They've done a good job in filling what were senior spots, I'm very proud of them," smiled coach Rick Newman.

Strike 3

After having to handle a whole season on her own last year, Alesia Seldon '12 is glad to get 2 new pitchers to help carry the load. She wowed spectators last year when she carried a whole team by herself. Pitching over 20 games on her own, while also hitting in the number 5 spot on offense. This year with the help of Juniors Yvette Kongtoginiannis '12 and Lauren Sharp '12 this year should be very interesting.

Team Bonding

This years' team is closer than ever, having sleepovers, and making late night run's to Wal-mart. You can find seniors and freshman joking around and coaches playfully teasing their players. "Daysha is usually the one that will make the whole team laugh after a rough play or a bad inning," laughed Calesha Shelley '11. "She also keeps the peace when things get tensed." Attitudes like these are what makes a great atmosphere.

- 1. Starter Yvette Kontogiannis '12 winds up for the pitch, hoping to exert enough strength to pitch a strike right into the catcher's mitt.
- Demi Gray '11 sprints to first base after hitting a ground ball to left center field, hoping to beat out the throw to first.
- 3. Both Kelsey Bomar '14 and Darian Quist-Richard '11 rush to get the ground ball in the infield. Quist-Richard makes the catch and proceeds to make a play for Armijo.

4. Catcher Alexandra Azzopardi '14 waits intently for the signs from her coach so she can pass them on to the pitcher.

5. Score! Senior captian Calesha Shelley '11 scores a run affter the ball is thrown past the pitcher. 6. While the team sits and observes from the dugout, they still take part in helping their teammate. Constantly heard from the dugouts are cheers and chants to boost up the Indian spirit and hopefully help them win each game.

7. One of the new Freshmen on Varsity, Jessica Miller '14, makes her way around the bases, attempting to score a run for the Indians.

The shoulder is really important for batting because without the strength of your shoulder,you can't hit good.

Bending your knees ve for batting because over stretch yo musclesor else yo will get injured.

Track

Pass it On:

It was an exciting match for the Varsity boys in the Vintage meet. A close meet, it came down to the final race, the 4x400 meter relay, to see who would take home the victory. "We were tied 65-65, but after that win we won the meet. I was juiced knowing I pulled away the last 100 to give us the win for the meet!" said anchor runner Nathan Rapolla '11. With fellow teammates, Tyler Greives '12, Sean Yasay '11, and Timothy Sharp '13, they were able to capture the win with a time of 3 minutes and 41.7 seconds to push the score to 70-65.

Bringing Home the Wins:

It feels great to win in one event, but in the Vintage meet, many track members had more than one win. Orland Young '13 was a double winner for the Junior Varsity boys in the high jump and 100-meter while Michelle Pratt '12 took two wins in the discus and shot-put for the Varsity girls. "I feel like I'm just on top of the world; like I can't be stopped. It's incredible," Orland explained after his two wins. Terris Brooks '13 had the high of three event wins for Armijo in the 200-meter, triple jump, and the 4x100 meter.

Jumping to Victory:

Triple jump, high jump, and long jump are among the many events that track has. In the first home meet, Armijo was able to come home with wins in all of them. Among the winners were Eric Bossett '12 who won in both the long jump and high jump along with his sister Erica Bossett '11 in the Varsity girls' long jump. Erica said her motto for track was to "never give up, fight to the finish, and you will conquer."

1. In the 100-meter sprint, Mahogany Dawson '12 helps the Varsity girls pull out a 101-21 win over the visiting Crushers. 2. Boys' 110 hurdles got off to a good start against the visiting Vintage Crushers. Brandon Arce '11 was able to get ahead and capture the win with his teammates following closely behind. "1 just go from point A to point B as fast as possible," Brandon said. 3. First year track runner, Jairon Gacosta '13, put up a great run for the Junior Varsity boys in the 100-meter sprint. Junior varsity boys were then able to beat Vintage in a 97-41 win.

4. In another attempt for the Indians, Zach Petersen '12 throws the shot-put as far as he can in hopes of beating his previous throw. Zach also competed in the discus for the Varsity boys. 5.Arika Cherry-Jackson '12 is one of the three girl high jumpers this year. In the Vintage meet, Arika was able to jump her way to success against the visiting Crushers. 6. Returning this year, Eric Bossett '12 was back at the triple jump. In the first home meet, Eric received first place beating out his competition with the furthest jump.

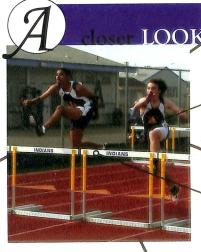

7. It takes strength to be one of the throwers. The Junior Varsity throwers show off their muscles before their first home meet of the season. 8. On the last curve of the 4x100, Arika Cherry-Jackson '12 hands the baton off to Erica Bossett '11 to finish off the race with a strong finish. The Armijo girls' Varsity 4x100 finished first over the visiting Crushers.

It takes a special form to successfully clear the hurdles. "You have 8 steps to get over the first hurdle then after that you have 3 steps in between the rest," Jaimi Garlington '14 explained.

High school hurdles can range from 30.42 inches. "I don't wen know [how tall the are]," admitted Brandon Arce '11.

Men's Golf

First Place Teammates:

Armijo's men's golf team had played in two non-league tournaments the year. The first tournament, the Woodbridge tournament, was played at a course in Lodi, California against 15 schools. Out of all those school Anthony Del Dotto '11 took home first place as an individual and the team took home third all together. Shortly after the team headed to Cash Creek to yet again dominate over about 130 golfers having Aaron Beverly '12 take home first.

18 Holes to Victory:

On April 12, 2011 the men's team traveled to Cache Creek to compete against some of the best teams not only in M.E.L's but also in other leagues, making this a tournament for the best of the best "One of our teams strong points is that we can play a solid 18-hole game while other teams will fall apart after the first 9," says Riley Bishop '11, a four-year player. After eight long hours of some of the best golf played, the strokes were added up and Armijo came out below the rest with a score of 389. Being golf, this is what you want Armijo took first place at this top-notch tournament.

Medal Madness:

This year was another winning year for our men's golf team, but unlike other years this was a year that a lot of the golfers received medals for the first time. The first time receiving a medal for most Armijo players was at the Woodbridge tournament when they were presented third place medals to proudly display to all. Anthony Del Dotto '11 was also presented an awarded for placing first individually. At the Cash Creek tournament, player Radleigh Benning '11 was presented a 7th place medal as well as Aarol Beverly '12 was awarded a plaque for placing first; both players had placed individually. As a team Armijo was given a first place plaque.

4. A key to golf is being able to read the course. Crouching down to get a better feel of the green Riley Bishop '11 studies hole-5 at the Rancho Salono golf cores to make the best putt possible.

5. As the newest addition to the team Mike McLeod '12 puts in a lot of effort to prove he is ready to play. "He's there all the time and works really hard." Says his teammate Radleigh Benning '11. all his hard work was not put to waste because on April, 14th 2011 Mike played his first M.E.L game as Armijo's Number seven golfer.

6. Landing in a sand trap is just messy, and almost expected to happen to every golfer. While it's a horror to land in a sand trap Trevor Flynn '13 was able to beautifully chip his way out of the sand trap on hole 2.
7.Driving is a big part of any golf game, it sets your first move as well as counts for your first stroke. A lot of practice goes in to a drive Stephan Yoo '12 shows us a gorgeous drive on hole 4 at Rancho Solano.

8. Taking the weight off his feet Anthony Del Dotto '11 leans on an iron while waiting on hole-8 of the 18-hole match versus Rodriguez on March, 28th 2011 to finish, where he was able to help the team win with a score of 71.

Being one of the ten freshmen on the Junior Varsity Women's soccer team, Monique Evans '14 brings an arsenal of power to the line up with the help of her teammate Ashlee LeCheminant '14. These two players put together on the same field create a venomous sting to their opponent's defense like Wayne Rooney and Javier "Chicharito" Hernandez of Manchester United. With Monique Evans '14 having 11 goals she was able to help her team up until when she was called upon to play for the Varsity Women's soccer team during their season. Having her apart of the Junior Varsity team helped them tremendously and led them to having an overall game record of 5-2-2 as of halfway through their season.

One of the team's best games was against Vintage who has held a great season this whole year. This game was a close one up until the very last minute when the team was able to shoot and score helping the Indians sneak away with a win against the Crushers. The first game without Monique Evans playing up on Varsity, the girls ended up struggling in the end coming out with a score of 0-3. It was a tough game to play since their main starter was taken away from them. The girls of the Junior Varsity team are half way through the season with many more games to win, if they work together on and off of the field they can acquire those wins with no problem at all.

2. Caitlin Anderson '14 dribbles the ball up the field with the opposing team surronding her, luckily she is able to use her leg of steel and blast the ball up and over Napa's pressuring midfielders. Surronding her this was the first game Monique Evans '12 wasn't there for the IV girls.

3. Allyson Doolittle '13 calmly taps the ball up field making a pass in front of her teammates against Vintage to boost their score up.

4. Playing toughly against Napa was what Jasmine Calderon '14 had to do for the whole game as she and the team worked to get the ball up; as she looks up just as she is being pressured from Napa, and finds her center midfielder in the middle of the field waiting for the ball.

5. As Anna Castro '12 is taking a break from a greatly played first half against Napa, Caitlin Anderson "14 voluntarily offers her keeper skills to the team in order to keep them in the game.

6. "Away, Away!" Was what Emily Eddy '13 said as a corner kick came to the defenders, Allyson Doolittle "13 and Lauren Corn '13 work together to follow their keepers' direc-

8. Amanda Bernal '14 plays a solid game against Vintage. Her job as a midfielder is to keep running up and down the field either defending a player wih the ball or keeping the ball away from a defender to get a goal.

Although Erika Bernal '11 has been out of the game for an entire season due to an injury, she comes back as a key midfielder player. A sandwiched Bernal kicks the ball from Napa's grasps.
 Sarah Moraida '11 was able to

5. Sarah Moraida '11 was able to contribute to the domination over Fairfield by scoring 2 goals this game.

Chelby Dillman '11 keeps the ball in sight as she gets ready to make contact. She has to make sure she is positioned so it hits her forehead.

Bent knees are the most efficient way to head the ball far across the field.

6. Scanning the field, stopper Tia Rowley '12 takes a corner kick. "I try to give people good opportunities to score when taking a corner kick" 7. Goalie Lacey Konstantinopoulos '11 has shown her versatility this year as a soccer player. Not only does she have over 28 saves as goalie, for the first time at Armijo, she has played as an outstanding forward. Here Lacey boots the ball to midfield during the Napa game. 8. Quarding the ball from Napa player, Melissa Padilla '12 fights to pass the ball.

Once A Coach, Always A Coach

After coaching Badminton for 11 years, Coach Lawrence Trigg has had many memories involving Badminton. But as the 2010-2011 season being his last year, it's a memory that will definitely stay with him forever. "The best part about coaching is seeing the players mature from their first year to their last year." Coach Trigg says about his favorite part about coaching. His plans after retiring include moving to Mississippi, hanging out on 25 acres of land and chillin' by the pond with his wife.

Young At Heart

"We're a really young team this year but with all our hard work and dedication, I know we'll do really well!" Liberty Estolas '11 says about this year's Badminton team. With only having eight returning seniors, and only a handful of returning juniors, with little experience of playing on the ladder, this year's team had to face the fact that a lot of work was needed for being such a young team. But as the season progressed, the team realized that as a little experienced team they were, all the girl's practiced and practiced and wanted to prove that they are MEL champions worthy.

Vacaville Rivalry

Last year's season, the Armijo girls tied second place with Vacaville High School for league, while the Will C. Wood Wildcat's took first place. "Armijo's main rivalries have always been the Vacaville teams. It's always a really good match. Our girls always anticipate playing them. It's definitely a challenge but we always pull through doing our best. " Sarah Hall '11 states about the Armijo versus Vacaville rivalry.

- 6. Sarah Hall '11 waiting for the opponent to give the head's up to start the game, a mighty Sarah serve awaits!
- 7. Adhiti Narayanan '12 makes a perfect double serve that flies right behind the opponents head, with her partner Nicole Cooper '12 ready for the return.
- 8. Captains, Shannon Santos '11, Alex Castaneda '12 and Liberty Estolas '11 kick off the game with the traditional welcoming of the other team to Armijo and calling out the top eight singles players.

After Anna Glover '13 finishes her doubles game with partner Sarhea Reyes '13, Coach Trigg records the two match scores to add to the team's winning score!

JV/Cheer

Fresh Faces:

Led by only three returners the large team of 21 girls had their work cut out for them, being that most of them were first-time cheerleaders. With about 60 cheers and various routines to learn, many hours of practice were in store for the girls. At first the team struggled to work as a unit, but as the season progressed it became apparent that these girls were hard workers. Coming from never cheering before to knowing exactly what they were doing was a slow but worthwhile process. Ahliyah Brown '13 says, "I feel lucky to have made the team, I'm a quiet person and cheer has made me come out of my shell." Although most girls had never cheered before, the progress these girls made this year will lead to an even better squad next year.

Third Captain's a Charm:

Usually there are two captains, however, the addition of a third has worked out well for the squad. In addition to the three JV captains there are 21 girls, leaving each captain to assist 7 girls. Not only has having three captains helped make the team be the best they can be, it has also brought the three captains much closer together. Captains KaJanae' Walton '13, Jessica Bossett '13, and May Saenkaew '13 all enjoyed working together and shared, "We became very close being captains together. After cheer we would spend the night and watch movies together."

A New Twist:

Everyone has noticed at one point or another that every high school has the same cheers. This year JV decided to put a twist on this common practice by coming up with new cheers. Their new cheers, such as "Work It", were extremely catchy, and made some other cheerleaders jealous that they had exciting new material. Noelani Boyd '14 says "It's better to dare to be different." The crowd was just as excited as the cheerleaders to see all the new things that the JV team had in store for them this year.

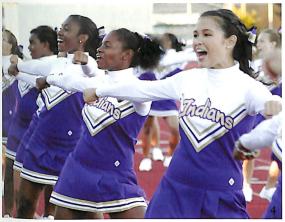

Pictured at the last football game against Fairfield High School, Hailey Silva '14 is seen doing kicks for the touchdown the team just scored. She shares, "Cheering was a great experience to start off high school. I had a blast meeting so many new people, who I ended up becoming close with."

2. After doing the cheer "Go, Fight, Win", Zaira Rodriguez's '14 tells us that her favorite part about being a cheerleader is dancing because she loves the energy she gets from

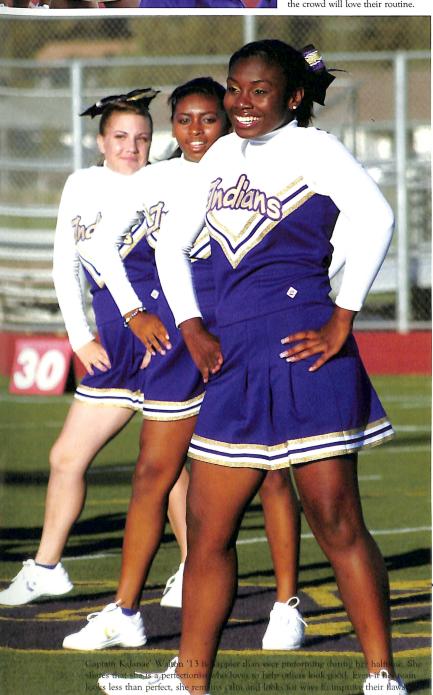

3. Being one of the JV teams first routines preformed, everyone was a little nervous but also excited for the halftime against Vintage High School. Jessica Bossett '13 is proud to showcase one of the many dances she helped choreograph for the squad and is seen with a few other fellow cheerleaders.

- 4. Dwena Phillips's '14 favorite memory was the last basketball game against Fairfield High School when the JV team joined the Varsity team to cheer during the last quarter. Dwena Phillips says, "It felt like we were one big cheer family, and we looked even better together." Having both teams cheer together during the final quarter is a tradition carried over from last year helping to unite the two teams.
- 5. Most cheerleaders agree that basketball season is their favorite and that halftime is what everyone looks forward to. During their halftime at Fairfield High School the squad gives it their all hoping that the crowd will love their routine.

During February the cheerleaders were asked to preform at Rolling Hills Elementary. The assembly was to recognize the "Rockin' Redhawks," students who showed outstanding achievement. Usually the students of the month are called up by the principal to receive their rewards but instead the students enjoyed having the cheerleaders hand them their awards. One teacher even commented that it was their best assembly yet.

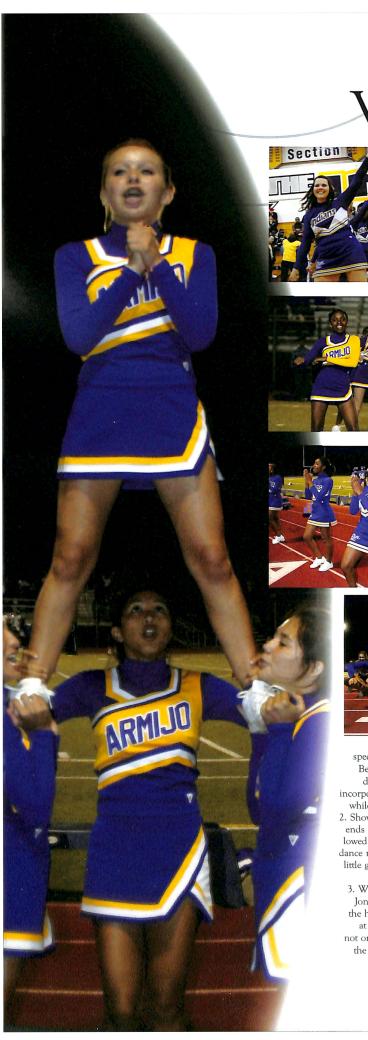

- 6. During a cheer Yana Buksh's '14 yells her heart out. She also shared that her favorite cheer is "Stand Up" because it has a great beat and gets the crowd going.
- 7. During Freshman orientation Ciara Williams '14 put her name on the list for every single sport, "I just picked cheer to do something, and I ended up loving it" She plans on cheering altoour years and someday becoming captain. She enjoys doing many cheers, including "V-I-C".

 8. Shown preforming at her first halftime during a backetball game, Kayla Vidal '14 says that "If cheer continues to be as fun us it was this year, I will continue to do it."

With the new school year came new fresh faces on the Varsity cheer squad. With only four varsity returners being Lauren Vigil '11, Belinda Garcia '11, Caitlin Welsh '11, and Sydney Monson '12, a lot of girls were looking to be added on to the team. The big difference in this year is that they didn't go to camp and also held two tryouts. But once the team was complete and selected it was time to get to work.

Varsity Cheer

What most don't know is that the girls work together to create the half time shows we see during every football and basketball game. They hand select songs and each do their share in creating routines in hopes to put together a dance routine that would drop jaws. Miyanna Harris '11 decided to try something different her senior year and to go outside the box and do something she might usually not. "Cheer sounded like a fun way to get involved in school activities and make new friends along the way," says the first year cheerleader. "I could not only go to games but also be apart of them."

While some were new to cheer Senior Annette Miller '11, was right at home. "I've been cheering for 4 years on a competitive cheer team. It's really different because Armijo is mainly based on dancing while my old team was mainly stunting, "says Annette. It's safe to say that this year things were done as little different. In the end when everything was put together, the ending result was a fun cheer season and many memories made.

 As they practice the routine for the special Lady Gaga half time performance, Belinda Garcia '11 leads the girls in the dance from the telephone video. They incorporated dances from Lady Gaga videos, while also throwing in a few of their own.

Showing her flexibility Annette Miller '11 ends the routine in splits. Being flexible allowed her to bring something special to the dance routines. Putting together dance and a little gymnastics is what being a cheerleader is all about.

3. With music blasting in the background, Jonnette Chamberlain '12 dances during the half time, in the game against Fairfiled at Fairfield High. Half time routines are not only what some look forward to during the games, but the cheerleaders also look forward to showing off their moves.

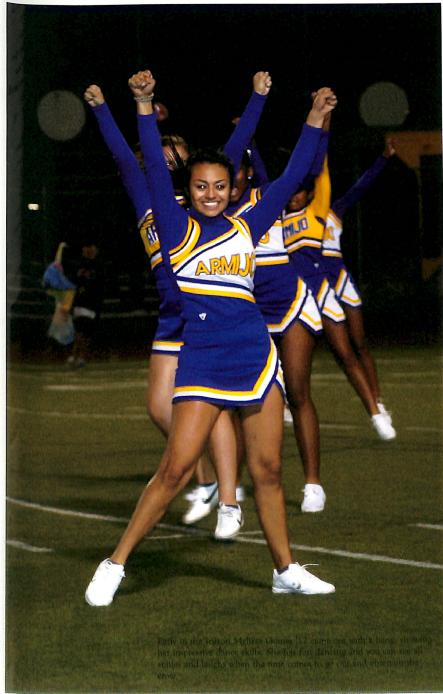

4. With an eight count in her head, Sydney Monson '12 shows how great of a dancer she is. After stunting the girls lined up in two rows forming a V-formation and picked up there dance part of the routine. Different formations allow them to use the space on the field instead of staying in one area. 5. "R-O-W-D-I-E! That's the way we spell rowdie! Let's get rowdie!" shouts Mahogany Dawson '12, during the homecoming game against Napa. The girls enjoy learning new cheers. Some of the girls even participated in the homecoming floats and dances.

To achieve the perfect kick you must be able to kick your leg up as high as possible. Showing flexibility and height makes the look of a high keep smooth and easy.

Keep one foot planted firmly on the ground and being able to balance on one leg is what ables cheerleaders to show their skills.

- 6. "GO! FIGHT! WIN!" shouts Sammi Macfall '13 during the football home game. Chearing on the boys in hopes of pumping their spirits.
- 7. Alexis Rojas '12 stands in the center as she help[s pump up the crowd. Rally cheers help keep the fans in the game and get everyone up on their feet to cheet for Armijo.
- 8. As their preformance come to an end, Rayshawnda Madison 11 shows her excitement with a kick to end the routine.

What I_I wish I_I did...

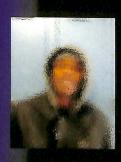

"What and if are two words as non threatening as words can be. But put them together, side-by-side and they have the power to haunt you for the rest of your life." This powerful quote speaks volumes about your own individual life. Skydiving, spending a million dollars, traveling the world, tasting exotic foods; all examples of things someone may possibly put on their bucket list to complete before they pass away. Acing a test, trying out for the basketball team, pursuing a guy girl you're interested in, joining the National Honor Society; all examples of things an ordinary high school student may want to accomplish during their extremely short four years at Armijo High School.

This is every senior's chance to share what they have always wished they had done throughout their four years here. Everyone had different goals and lists of things to do before the end of highschool but unfortunately not all of those things happened. The next best thing is sharing with others their wildest hopes and dreams, or even expectations of what they would do here at Armijo. Take a look at what some of the students here had to say about that. . .

IOU TUS

For the past four years every senior at Armjo has carried around some type of secret or confession that no one knows about. Whether it's a secret crush they've had all four years or an apology they've wanted to make to someone throughout high school, they have kept it with them all these years. Now they've been given the opportunity to share with us, anonymously, their confessions. The secrets that may be revealed are somewhat scandalous; something you wouldn't expect someone to carry with them. Many of these confessions are hard for students to share, but if this is the only way to let it be known, then so be it.

They've ultimately decided to share these secrets of theirs with everyone; their last chance before high school is over, to get it out what they want to be known known. So now with little time of their senior year left to go, these fellow classmates our ours step forward with secrets they want to reveal with definitive discretion. Even if the person wants to stay anonymous they agree to share their deepest and darkest secrets. Hopefully you're ready to read something that's never been heard or seen before, let alone accept the fact that it may just directly affect a certain aspect of your life.

Taking A Closer Look-Weird Talents

Gerarado Vargas '11 A Senior Boy Who Has A Passion for Music

During his freshman year, Gerardo Vargas, '11, was listening to the Wild Style DJs on the radio station Wild 94.9. He said, "The way they mixed stuff together made me think, 'That's music right there!" He works after school everyday for two hours and has been given lots of DJ equipment to work with. He hopes to eventually get on the radio, but not until he gets even better.

Jordan Demings '13 A Sophomore Who Can Hit the Beat

During lunch, Jordan Demings '13 can be found in D-hall, utilizing his special talent of break dancing. He was taught by previous students of Armijo High School how to pop and wave, but from then on has been able to develop his talent on his own. He practices everyday and plans to continue dancing for as long as he can.

Ojastro Todd '11

A Senior Boy Who "Collects Talents"

If you've ever met Ojastro Todd '11 then you might know that he "collects hobbies". Some of his hobbies include Break Dancing, Making Balloon animals, Juggling, do the Rubix Cube, and Yo-Yo. When his little brother turned six, his mom asked him to be a clown at his birhtday party, this may be where some of these talents came from. His balloon animal collection includes puppies, giraffes, cats, and teddy bears!

Heidi Elmer '14 A Freshmen Girl Who Can Tie the Knot

While she was eight years old, Heidi Elmer '14, was at her sister's birthday party. When they passed out the Shirley Temple's she ate the cherry. She then ended up finding her special talent. Heidi Elmer can tie the stem of a cherry in a knot with her tongue. Though it takes her a couple minutes and major focus each time she does it, her friends are never disappointed.

Noah Dennis '12 A Junior Boy That Can Solve Puzzles

Of all the places to learn a talent, Noah Dennis '12 learned his on the internet. Noah Dennis '12 has the interesting talent of being able to solve Rubix cube puzzles. Ever since eighth grade, he has been working on solving these puzzles. Whenever he sees an unsolved cube, he works at it until he gets it.

A Closer Look At What's Black and White and Read All Over

Armijo Signal

Topics for stories written in the Armijo Siignal are inspired by previous articles as well as suggestions from the editors based on popular topics at the time.

In addition to writing for the Signal, students are also given a chance to earn their grade by selling advertisement space to local businesses. Advertising is the sole source of funding for the paper, so it is a vital part of it's success.

Some stories are often "faght for" or more desired than others. Students who are new to the class usually have first choice. Turning in assignments early or on time is also rewarded with first choice of story in the next month's issue.

Journalism is 2 class periods of students who all contribute to the Signal in a variety of ways. In total, 35 students are enrolled in the 2 classes. An additional five to ten students contribute to the signal with stories, interviews or photos bringing the total to over 40 students.

The signal is printed at the same building as the Daily Republic, our Fairfield newspaper. About 1,700 copies are printed per month and range from 28-30 pages long. The cost is around $600 per month.

There is usually an editor-in-chief to the Signal staff, however, this year's staff has many section editors instead. This year's editors include Beyond the Gates editor Lucy Altman-Newell ('13), School News Editor Maneesh Vij '11, Classes & Clubs Editor Arthur Mestas '13,Photo Co-Editor Tateyana Hendricks '12, Photo Co-Editor, TA Dharshini Nadarajah-Gillis '11, Events Editor Patrick Finnegan '12 and Entertainment Editor Sam Zaghloul '11.

Paisley Finely '12
"So everyone knows whats going on around school."

Shyanne Joseph '11 "To stay aware of the schools progress."

April Vogel '11 Keep's students and staff connected to all school activities and news."

Patrick Finnigan '12
"Getting information out the the school."

Steven De La Hoz '12
"Letting writers express they're opinions to all readers."

America's first newspaper was published in 1690. Compared to this, Armijo's paper The Signal, is just a baby. The Signal, as it is now known was first published in 1996. At the time, the newspaper's first edition was only 12 pages long and created by cutting and pasting words and pictures to a paper grid sheet. When we asked the class advisor Ms. Herring about the history prior to 1996 she had this to say, "Before I was in charge, there were many other manifestations, some on xeroxed sheets. They were printed under the names of The Armijo Scout, The Armijo Tribe-une and others. While most of the students at Armijo only see the finished product, there is a lot that goes into producing over 30 pages of news and information each month. We sat down with several students from this year's Signal to get the scoop on the Armijo newspaper.

Looking Closer At Community Service

Andrea Chavez '12 and Stephanie Kelley '12 Bestfriends Who Volunteer Together

Stephanie and Andrea volunteer at the Animal Clinic and the Senior Home. They check people in, organize paperwork, inform the community on animals, and bottle feed kittens. They also help push the seniors to their room and help them with arts and crafts. "The thing that we like the most about doing volunteer work is the accomplished feeling that we have because we helped someone else who needed it." Stephanie and Andrea have also been vegetarians for three months now because they are against animal cruelty.

Rachel Williams '12 Religious Christian Who Helps Out With Her Church

For community service, Rachel Williams '12 teaches a kindergarten Sunday school class, she mentors senior high school girls, and she does bible studies with some of her friends at school every week. She also is a part of the leadership team at her youth group and she participates in Super Sundays which consists of doing yard work and helping out with whoever in the church needs it. "My favorite thing about doing all of this community service is getting to know the people, getting close and building relationships with them."

Mr. Harrison

IB Coordinator

"Community service is required to IB students for CAS hours because IB makes it a requirement for all IB diploma candidates. Most CAS hour students are upper classmen because IB does not officially start until junior year although most students are done with the requirement by junior year. The craziest community service that I've ever heard was a student a few years ago that worked at a ropes course for special needs kids."

Joseph Casilang '12 Junior Who Helps Out The Community In His Free Time

For his community service, Joseph Casilang '12 has cleaned at Rockville Park, fed the homeless, cleaned up the bank parking lot, and volunteered at the soup kitchen. His most favorite community service was when he did community service with his best friend Soroush Ghaffarpour '12. "We went to Starbread and got 150 pieces of senorita bread to feed to the homeless. It was a lot of fun because I wasn't doing it by myself."

Sarahi Suarez '11 Senior Who Tutors Children at the Library

Sarahi Suarez '11 tutors small children at the library. Usually she tutors kids from 3rd to 5th grade who need help with reading and comprehension. "I've been doing this for a few months, but it's satisfying to see that the children are able to challenge themselves and meet their goals. What I like the most about it is the feeling I receive when the kids have a noticeable improvement in their reading and when they are able to read to me without hesitation. That's when I know that I have done a good job and feel proud of my kids."

What do you consider to be the most worth while community service project?

Chevelle Mckenzie '11 "The best community service is working with little kids."

Denise Martinez '12
"The best would be to do volunteer work at your

Jennifer Kaump '12
"I personally like to help teachers at my sister's school."

Seffie Kaur '12
"I think feeding the homeless is the best community service."

Looking Beyond the Suits

Wilson Hull '11, Hassan Karaouni '11, Dakota Robarge '11, Amir Naimzada '11, Damian Johnson '11 and Lester Gacosta '11 take their turn as the A-Men. You see the A-Men every Friday night home game, but what makes these boys men? Let's take a look past the shades, the wigs, and the abs. Page Done By: Gabriella Areas

Q: What's new this year with the A-Men? A: Timothy DiFederico '11, "The suits are new. Art Club painted them. Also, there's always been an exclamation point at the end of the ARMIJO. This year it isn't an exlamation, its a tomahawk, so it's more Indian themed."

Q: What's the most difficult part of being one of the A-Men?

A: Jonathon Gomez '11, "Getting the crowd hyped up, especially when our team is down. But our A-Team is actually really good, so it's not that much of a problem.

Q: What's your most memorable moment as an A-Man?

A: Marley Arias '11, "I was one of the Amen for a couple games, and after every game my voice would be gone, that's what I remember. It would hurt to talk. Besides that it was all so much fun."

Q: Why did you decide to sing Justin Bieber at the football games?

A: Hassan Karaouni '11, "Well, I wanted to wear the blonde wig but Mr. B thought of it actually."

Q: Is it difficult to channel your inner-Justin? A: "Not if the music is on. I like Justin. He sings well."

Q: What's the best part of being an A-Man?

A: Amir Naimzada '11, "The best part is wearing the suit. It felt cool to be buff every Friday!"

Q: How do you guys stay pumped the entire game?

A: Lester Gacosta '11, "As an A-Man you have to stay pumped or else the crowd would be bored. The other A-Men also help keep each other pumped. We work as a team."

What's your favorite A-Men cheer and why?

Erika Houk '14
"The wave is always fun, and they do it almost every game."

Naama Angulo-Rios '13 "I love that they're overall crazy and random! I actually wanna be an A-Girl for Powderpuff!"

Cortney Hughes '13 "When the A-Men pretend to be on a rollercoaster and the crowd mirrors them."

Nigel Jackson '14
"All of their cheers are a lot of fun, they have lots of spirit."

Last Club Standing

More than just a friendly competition, the clubs at Armijo High School battled in fun games to determine which, out of all the clubs on campus, would be the last club standing. Page Done By: Jaclyn Nielson

Q: What did you like best about the Last Club Standing Event?

A: Lina Nguyen '11, "I liked everyone's enthusiasm during the events. There were lots of teams including Cheer, Speech and Debate, JSA, Band, Writer's Club, and NHS. My favorite activity was the Dancing Simon Says. It's Simon Says except with dance moves instead of actions."

Q: As ASB President, why did you decide to have a club competition this year?

A: Hassan Karaouni '11, "Armijo's clubs are very diverse not only in terms of their students, but also their purpose. By having a club competition, I knew we could bring together all parts of Armijo. In my opinion, it was a great display of Armijo's diversity of students and organizations."

Q: What did you find most exciting about being in charge of a brand new event?

A: Melissa Padilla '12, "The most exciting part was trying something new and having it be able to be anything."

Brad Davis '14
"I am a member of Speech and Debate and my favorite activity was the candy-cane thing."

KaJanae Walton '13
"I like the candy cane and musical chairs because it was fun and people got very involved."

Tony Zaghloul '12 "I was a part of NHS and my favorite activity was musical chairs."

Zachary Petersen '12
"I liked the marshmallow event the most."

Maneesh Vij '11
"I am a part of NHS and I enjoyed the marshmallow tower thing most."

Take a Closer Look at the Locker of a

Haley Bergam's '14 magnetic organizer helps her locker be more clean, and organized. Without it she would have nowhere to put her highlighters. calculator.

Her wallpaper keeps her locker looking original. She got her wallpaper online over the summer, and decorated her locker with her sister Mackenzie Bishop. '12.

She has a locker rack to separate her locker and keep her books, binders, and spiral notebooks organized. Mackenzie Bishop '12 shares her love in organization, she also has a locker rack.

Haley keeps an open space on the bottom of her locker for a spare jacket just in case.

From class to class she stops by her locker to grab her spiral notebooks. She thinks its funny how random people walk up and ask her why her locker is decorated, and how she did it.

Haley Bergam '14 freshman class president stands by her locker that she keeps clean so her day goes smoothly.

Freshman Haley Bergam '14 allows us to take a closer look into her locker for her first year at Armijo. "I don't know what I would do without my locker," says Haley Bergam '14.

Being on a varsity team as a freshman can be very stressful because they have to live up to the expectation of an upper-classmen, and they're underestimated because of their size. Dulce Armas '14 says "I was nervous because I thought everyone would underestimate me because I am younger on a higher level. I had low confidence and I felt I had to impress the upperclassmen and show them that I am on varsity for a reason and that I'm hard to impress."

The Place To Be at Lunch Page Done By: Ritche Sison

This hang out spot is great if you like shade and a nice breeze. But what makes this spot even better is the fact that the snack baar is extremely close. It is a great spot for friends to gather and hang out because they are not only close to food, but are close to the Indian Outpost where many events take place.

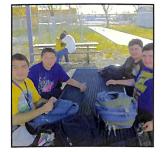

What's bad about this spot is that if there's a strong wind you'll have things flying everywhere. It is a big walk from other areas on campus and as such, if one has to leave the area at sometime during lunch, it can be somewhat of a hassle. It may take quite a while to walk to the annex from this lunch spot.

Shade in this spot of campus is great. On hot days of fall and spring, this spot is one of the best. Another great thing about this spot is that you will be sure to find a friend in the sea of people. It gets very crowded no matter what the day is like and you are sure to find someone that you know.

Don't like birds? Then watch out for this spot because birds will leave a mess on top of your head. Many birds enjoy the shade as well, and on more than one occasion, students at Armijo High School have had the misfortune of being visited by the birds. Many students have voiced their concerns on the matter.

This spot is great it protects you from the sun and rain. What makes this spot so much better? Is that it has benches so you can eat or do homework without getting wet. The benches provide an upclose look at any and all of the school lunchtime activities and voting opportunities.

Do you like peace and quiet during your lunch time? Many students sit in the area, so the noise level in the area can be extremely loud. Also, because of the great number of students in the area, their is a lot of garbage around the tables as well as uneaten food. Although this spot is loud, you are sure too find someone you know in the crowd, so don't be afraid to try this spot out.

Another popular place to have lunch is inside classrooms. Clubs and groups of friends will often tell each other to meet up in a classroom. These are good places for some privacy and teachers usually let you use microwaves or other cooking neccesseties. Some of the hot rooms to eat lunch include Mr. Burzynski's room and Ms. Jacob's room.

One negative part of being inside a class room is that when the weather is nice you dont get to experience it. Also, teachers rooms are not always available due to the teacher's busy schedules. Also teachers often enjoy their alone time at lunch, so be sure to have respect and ask before raiding their rooms.

Where do you like to hang out at lunch?

Joseph Carabajal '11 "I like to eat in the cafeteria. The food is good.'

Graduating Early Page Done By: Jacqueline Flores

Entering high school as a freshman, the next four years seem like they will never come. Each year you inch closer and closer to the final fourth year. But for some few dedicated students, they graduate a year early. It is not easy however, they must take extra classes, many taking them at Solano Community College, as well as be on top of their regular school work. It is a long process to be able to graduate a year early but the pay off is well worth it for some. You have a whole year ahead of the rest of your class to get started on college or get a job. With more time on their hands, the world is full of possibilities.

Chelsea Smith '11 graduated in December of 2010. She said it is hard to be out of school because she is in the real world now, but enjoys her time off.

Veronica Castro '11 said she was excited to be graduating early because it is one less year to have to wake up early, but will miss all the senior activites with her class.

Many people may not know what the process of being able to gradutate early is, but Mrs. Villanueva does. She works with those students who want to graduate early. She says the students need to declare they want to graduate early by their sophomore

Michelle Crookshank '11 "It gives you a head start on pretty much everything, like in life.'

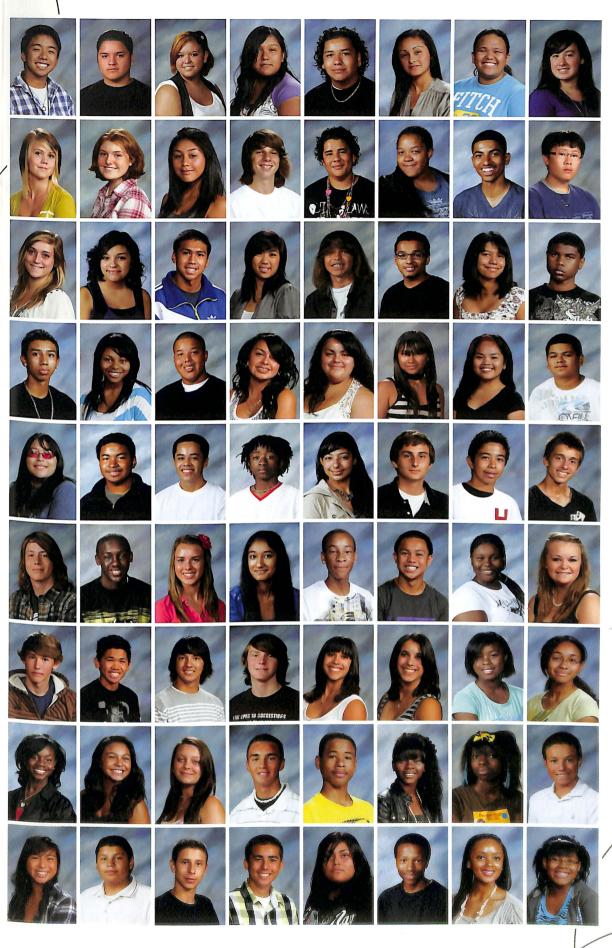

Jason Moorhead '12 "It would be cool to graduate. It would give me more time to go to school or get a job."

Mary Salvani '12 "It's cool that there's a ukelele craze."

Mary and her ukelele, Jimmy, met eight months ago and have been together making beautiful music ever since. Mary was influenced by her friends who actually bought her her first ukelele. Talk about peer pressure! Writing songs and ocassionally singing have helped Mary and Jimmy bond and share soothing sounds with friends and family. She is inspired by all genres of music and loves being able to play.

Barbara Curtis '12 "You do your ukelele thing, I do mine."

She's a bubbly girl with a contagious smile. Junior Barbra Curtis has a background of ukelele playing family members from Hawaii. Barbara started playing her sophomore year and hasn't stopped playing since. It's more of a hobby for her and, "It's my stress reliever!" Barbara states. Acording to Barbra, her ukelele, Clarissa, provides a peaceful and happy mood for herself. Whenever she finds time, she enjoys Barbara and Clarissa music time!

Jayson Bernados '13 and Titus Satele- Ambros '13 Ukelele Playing Buddies

These best friends are very passionate and enthusiastic about their ukelele playing. They not only have playing experience, but they also know how to have a good time while doing so. When they're not attracting the ladies with their charm, you'll find these boys strumming their ukelele's in between classes, at home and everywhere they

At first glance, you may not know that EJ plays ukelele. He isn't as social about it as the other ukelele players but he still has a passion for playing. EJ began playing at the beginning of his Freshman year, along with his friends who taught him the basics. Now, EJ enjoys making up beats to play, singing and playing songs that interest him. One of his favorites is "She Was Mine" by AJ Rafael.

Lester Gacosta '11 "If you can't play guitar, pick up the ukelele!"

"Playing the ukelele is like in my blood. It's naturally in me." Gacosta '11 says. He likes to do covers with his friends and play while his other friends sing. It's one way he can express his artistic and creative side. One of his favorites to perform is "Beatiful Creation" by Young D. He's been playing for about 2 years now and practices whenever he's got the ukelele rhythm in him.

Blood Drive

Upon arriving to the blood drive, students were startled by the complete transformation of the small gym. The usual scene of P.E. teachers and their students or wrestlers and their coaches was instead nurses, needles, and lines of anxious students. For weeks, tables were set up all around campus trying to persuade students to sign up. "Donating blood is such a simple task but by doing so you're helping so many people get just what they need." RaeAnna Gibbons '13 Students from all around campus came to the small gym all with the same hope of trying to help someone.

Once the procedure was done students went home feeling good about what they had just accomplished and had a little reminder, marked by a colorful bandage on their arm.

Arriving at the small gym for the blood drive, students were greeted by leadership students who were there helping and an extensive survey that must be filled out.

The lunchtime activity that was meant to promote the blood drive consisted of students racing against one another to see who could remove all the gummy bears from the red jello.

Tables were set up all around campus weeks before the blood drive. In atempt to get students to sign up by rewarding them with free fruit snacks.

Armijo had over 225 students sign up for the blood drive.

How did you feel the day of the blood drive?

Robert Gasser '11
"I was excited to be doanting blood for the second time."

Maile Akui '12

Amanda Welch '11

"I was feeling pretty good about myself because I was going to be helping someone."

While other students take part in political or job orientated clubs those more comfortable with their creative minds enhance their skills by creating works of art here on campus. Most people look at a wall and see, well, a wall, but the members of the art club see possibilities and art waiting to happen. The Armijo Art Club has colored the school a whole new shade of purple and gold for many years and this year they have a few new changes in mind.

- 1. The club has plans to help create a new look for Armijo's main office. One idea is to represent the entire country right inside our front office. The United States took on some new colors just for Armijo.
- 2. Stained glass windows have always drawn people's attention. The art club wants to take advantage of this type of beauty by making their very own stained glass art in downtown Fairfield. They hope to make this plan official by meeting with their sponsor.

What about art makes it so special to you?

Spring Nguyen '11 "I draw because it's the expression of emotions."

Jaimi Garlington '14
"It depends! Probably, because everything in life contains some art in it, so no matter what, I will be doing art!"

Kevin Cash '11

design."

September 17, 2010: Introduction to Intramural Sports

This lunchtime activity allowed students to come up and, not just toss, but hurl a dodge ball at leadership student, Casey Towner '11. Many students that know him took the opportunity to pelt him with the ball. "I am not sure how hard is too hard when throwing a ball at a student but I didn't care at the time." -Mr B The event was fun for all who stepped up to throw the ball.

Although Casey Towner signed up to do this activity he didn't realize how many people would jump at the chance to hit him with a ball. Casey wore the A Man suit, Armijo's superhero, but the lack of dodging the ball made everyone think otherwise. This activity promoted the inramural dodgeball tournament being held after school the following weeks.

October 7, 2010 : Blood Drive Jello Dive

An activity consisting of jello and candy sounds like a great combination for most students during lunchtime. Everyone who participated in this activity got free jello but had trouble enjoying it with no forks or spoons to eat it with. As protection from the red mess they wore garbage bags that only covered most of them. The event was designed to help promote blood drive sign ups.

Even though the jello may have been good it wasn't enough for some students. "Once I had the first taste I wanted more. I didn't care how messy it was." Justin Chandler '13 This activity was difficult to run for the leadership class because red jello was slipery and got everywhere. It was also difficult to get volunteers because people tend to stare and laugh which also made kids think twice before participating.

October 8, 2010: Can Crusher

The can-crusher activity was a crowd favorite to watch and it had plenty of participation from students and teachers. One student that stepped up to do this activity was Eric Brimer '14 who said this about the activity, "My favorite part was the soda, but I was scared to get hit by the football even though it was small and soft."

The main obstacle this activity was the fact that all the little footballs were flying everywhere. Students were needed to act as barriers so that people weren't getting hit unintentionally. Also the actual crushing of cans had some of the participants baffled at the end. The purpose of the activity was to "Crush the Crushers" refering to the Vintage football team that football was playing that Friday.

October 29, 2010: Halloween Runway Show

There were ghouls, goblins, and so much more around school that day. So many costumes in fact, that a 4th annual costume pageant was held at lunch. A winner was crowned, with the Old Spice Man taking first but not without tough competition. Cordele Glass '11, as Mr. Monopoly, said "I'm a spectacular performer and showing my incredible costume to everyone at lunch was an awesome part of my halloween!" Cordele finished a close second.

It is hard to find something that could have been improved for this activity. Close to 40 students were able to step onto the runway to show their stuff. The winner, Brandon Arce '11, or as many people know him, Old Spice Man explained his thoughts on the subject. "A tangable price would have been nice, like a first place ribbon, but it was still cool and being the Old Spice Man was great."

We asked students working in the student leadership class: What activity has been the hardest to set-up or come up with?

Chris Parodi '14 "The senior sunrise. Their wasn't a lot that could go

Emily Eddy '13
"The hardest to come up with was the can-crusher activity because the other idea hadn't worked out."

Nicole Cooper '12 "The can-crusher one because the footballs flew into the crowd."

Marley Arias '11
this wasn't our original plan. So it was harder to come up with and set-up."

Nick Spini '11 "The freshman olympics because it is at the beginning of the school year."

Animals on the Loose

Ever wonder what takes place on campus when the lights go out and the sun goes down? How about on weekends? Who is around to watch over the school? The answer is seen every day by students on campus. "We have so many random animals running around this place," said Jonathan Edmisten '12. It took us just three days to track down a variety of animals to feature on campus. One major question that remains is: what do the animals eat? After sitting down with one of the cats found behind the industrial buildings, we got our answer. "There are a lot of garbage cans that have food in them at the end of the day," purred Whiskers the Cat '11. No matter their reason for being here, we are stuck sharing this place with the animals. Before leaving Whiskers to his meal for the evening, I asked one more question: Do you plan on leaving anytime soon? His response was simply "not right meowww." Despite being cute and cuddly looking, be warned to watch your step.

Russell the Crow '11 can be found primarily on main campus. He sits here looking over the construction that is being done on the new library. Contrary to the belief that birds have good eye sight, Russell needs glasses.

The eldest living and highest ranking among all animals, The Colonel has been seen in all areas of the campus. "With age comes certain privledges," The Colonel '11 said.

Hops '14 is one of the new faces on campus. His older brothers told him that it was a great place to stay, however, Hops has a different take. "I don't like it here, I tried out for the basketball team and wasn't allowed because I'm not a student.

What animals have you seen on campus?

Billy Cimmino '14 "I've seen like fifteen cats over by AG-5."

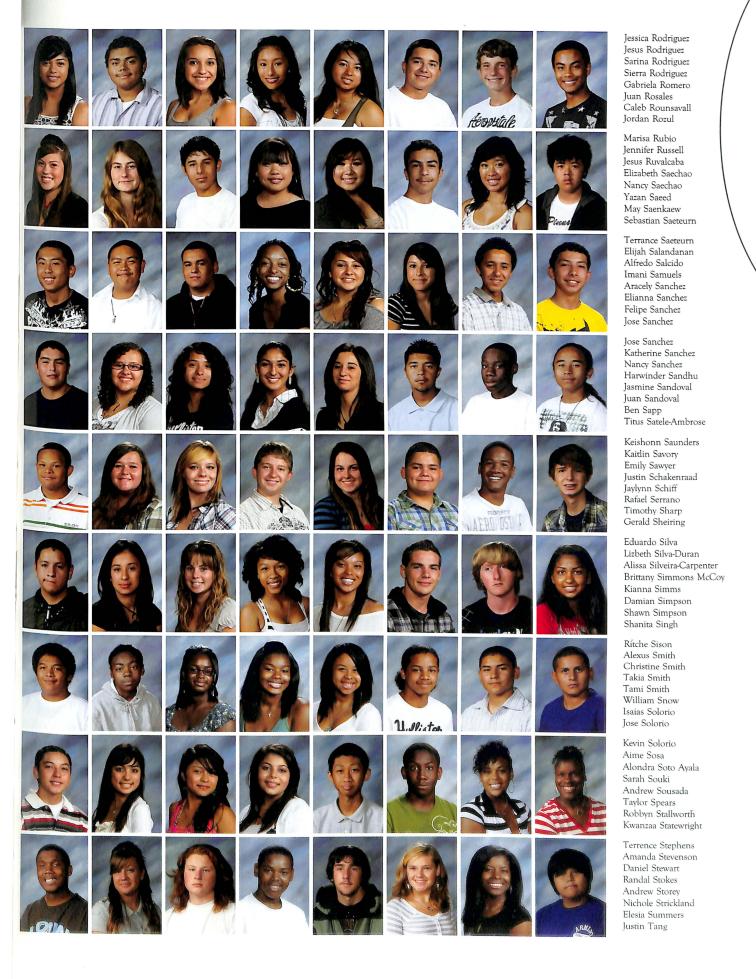

Brandon Alvarado '13
"I saw a chicken in the annex over by the bathrooms."

Eric Bosset '12
"I've seen a rabbit on campus by Mr. Evan's class."

Here at Armijo there's lots of diverse students and each student has their own unique style for fashion. Student may have the same look but shop at totally different stores and find it a lot cheaper than shopping at Macy's or any expensive store. Jason Santos '12 said, "I shop at Zumies, because I think it's cheaper than Macy's but at the same time I'm not missing out on nothing because all their stuff looks the same." Andre Babbs '12 shared, "I shop mostly everywhere, but prefer to shop at outlets because I can get what I'm looking for and shop less."

Many students shop at different store because they're looking for quality not quantity. Some people prefer the brand name, but some are fine with wearing clothes that look the same and may not have that same brand name spunk. One student might like to shop at Ross because it would be cheaper and have more stuff to show for all the money they spent, while another student likes to shop at Macy's because they think they have the quality they are looking for. Marshall's and Ross are the top shop less stores, while Macy's and JC Pennys are some of the higher quality stores. It's hard to say if the life long debate of the brand name being worth the extra money but regardless of where people shop, it is easy to see that on the Armijo campus our styles are expressed. Some shop at Hollister, and some shop at Ross, it's no big deal as long as you show off your personality with your style.

Have you ever bought something and then saw it cheaper some place else?

John Williams '12 "I brought a pair of shoes at footlocker, then saw it cheaper at Shoe Palace."

Derricka Freeman '11
"I bought my video ipod at Best Buy and then saw it cheaper at Wal-Mart."

Melissa Gomez '12
"I bought a pair of shoes at H&M and saw them cheaper at the mall."

Timothy Chase '13

Hallie Hill '12
"I bought a pair of Ugg boots from Wet Seal and saw them cheaper at Wal-Mart."

Robert Lucky

An Inspirational Story

Robert Lucky'12 never considered that one day he would be without his sight. It started as a black spot in the center of his eye and rapidly, over the course of a year, began to grow and cover the majority of both his eyes. At first the shock of losing his sight was overwhelming and devestating but gradually he came to realize that he could lead a productive life despite his condition. After attending a special school for a year Lucky felt a desire to return to Armijo. Being around his former classmates has allowed him to get back into the routine of a typical Armijo student. Additionally the formation of his band has been another outlet in which Lucky is able to focus his energy into something positive. "Live life to the fullest because you never know what might happen," says Robert Lucky '12. With the support of his family and friends he can rise to any challenge.

Robert Lucky '12 and his band stand outside their limo for a quick picture before they head on over to a talent show at the Suisun Library back in August of this school year.

"Playing in front of everyone homecoming night made me very nervous but in the end it was a lot of fun," says Robert Lucky '12.

Who is your inspiration?

Gale La Compte '11
"My mom because I want to make her proud."

Christina Thornton '12 "My grandparents because they've always been there for me."

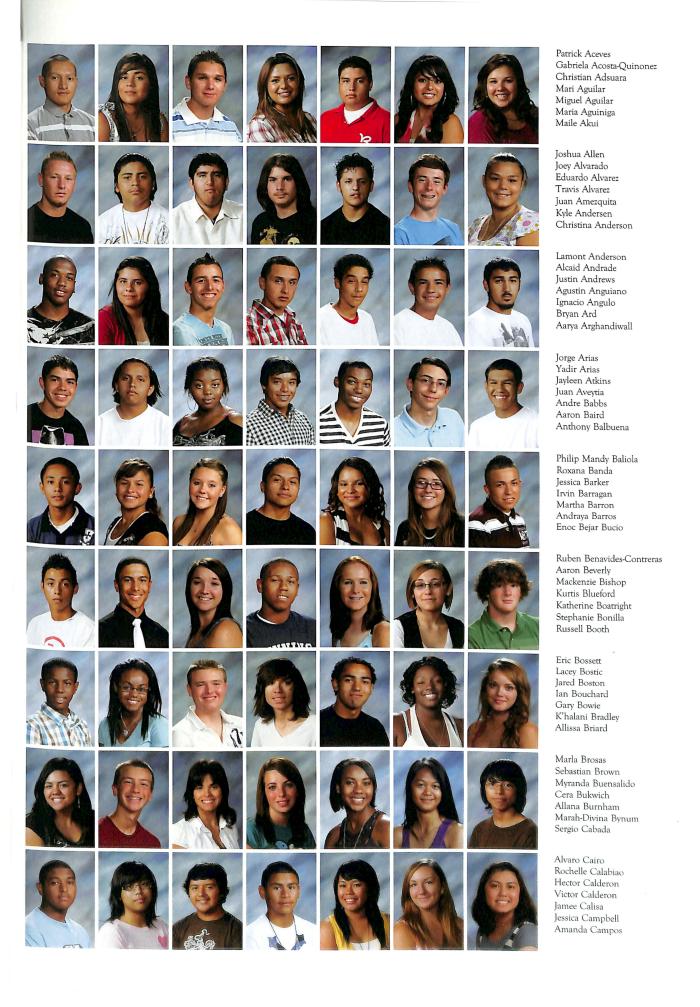

Clark Sigler '11
"Jesus inspires me because he layed out a path for me to follow."

Maggie Kushner '13 "My great grandma because she followed her dream."

A Closer Look At the Senior Sunrise

Slowly climbing up the stadium stairs, Dakota Robarge '11, MC of Armijo's First Annual Senior Sunrise, interviews Jad Souki '11 about one of his most memorable stories from his high school life at Armijo. Page Done By: Kyle Dunkin

The Armijo Leadership Class officers put together this event for the first time at Armijo, the Senior Sunrise. The event started around 6:00 a.m. and lasted until school started. Everyone that came to the event was given a free donut for coming. When asked why she attended the Senior Sunrise, Senior Darian Chan '11 said, "I wanted to go to the event because its my last year of high school, and it seemed like it would be a lot of fun." When Jasmine Wilson '11 was asked the same question her response was "I wanted to go because a lot of my friends were going and because it's my last year at Armijo." Paulina Angel '11 said, "I wanted to go to the event because its our first senior event at Armijo, and it sounded like a lot of fun."

During the event there were two games going on, the cereal eating competition, where one partner was the arms for the other one and fed them. The other game that went on was a pillow sack race where teams of 4 competed in a relay race to the finish line. When asked to Darian Chan '11, Jasmine Wilson '11, Breannah Bailey '11, and Paulina Angel '11 if they recommend the event to the class of 2012 next year, they all said, "Yes the event was great."

David Fernandez '11 "The funnest part was passing out donuts with Anthony Del Dotto."

Javon Cruz '11
"Watching the sunrise with the whole senior class."

Amaunnie Terry '11 "Everthing, it was bangin."

Leticia Sanchez '11
"Watching the cereal game was so funny, I really enjoyed it."

Lizzy Dillman '11
"My favorite part was definately Nick Spini '11 and Dakota Robarge '11 hosting the event."

Kickflip! Backflip! Ollie! What do you get when you mash up skateborders and musicians? You get Revert! Revert is not just your typical boyband, they are a rock band of Armijo Freshman striving for the rockstar dream. What does it mean to be in a band? It means friendship, talent, passion and dedication. It's not about the money or getting famous. A band should be about the passion of playing the music, enjoying each others company and improving each others skills. One unique aspect of this band is their lead singer and rhythm guitar player, Jeff Yega. He's an 8th grader at Grange Middle School, which is where this band of buddles met. They all share their love for playing their instruments and in hopes of becoming famous rockstars.

Stephen Pino '14 isn't new to the guitar playing scene. He's been playing guitar since he was 8 years old! Pino '14 shreads playing lead guitar for the band.

You know the instrument that makes your heart beat? Tyler Yoakum '14 plays just that, drums! His favorite part about being in a band is jamming out with his buddies.

"If becoming a rockstar doesn't work out, I'll be a pro - skater," Casey Chinta '14 states. He plays bass for the band but actually started playing guitar before he found interest in the bass.

What is your ultimate rock out song and why?

Shannon Farney '14 "Like a G6 by Far East Movement!"

Ellis Randolph '11 "We Will Rock You by Queen. It's my jam!"

Andrea Chavez '12
"My First Kiss by 3OH!3.
It makes me happy!"

Matthew Wilson '11
"The Bird and the Worm
by The Used because you can still rock out during the slow parts."

Karina Herrera '11 "Last Friday Night by Katy Perry. It's catchy and has funny lyrics."

Lacey Dahlin '11 Page Done By: Mason Perez

A former Armijo student, Emily Dahlin Prescott has been in the Army for 3 years! After graduation, Emily enlisted into the Army. She then went to boot camp in North Carolina. She then was stationed in Texas for training to become a combat medic. In addition, Emily went to Alaska where she served in the Maternity Ward. Finally she was shipped off to Korea to do her patriotic duty for about a month. Her sister inspired Lacey, to the point were she wants to become a medic too. If she doesn't end up joining the military, she at least wants to get a degree in nursing to become a registered nurse. Her sister has inspired her to help others through her own selfless acts of patriotism. Lacey also wants to prove to herself that she can achieve something that is pure goodness of heart.

Olivia Davidson '11

Olivia's Father has been in the Air Force

Due to her father in the Air Force, Olivia has had to move multiple times in her life. However one perk of her father being in the Air Force was that Olivia could go on the Air Base anytime with her father. She has met a lot of extremely interesting people, but one thing that has impacted her the most was the honor, pride, and love she feels for her father for what he does. She has been inspired to join either the Air Force or the Navy. Olivia wants to be a doctor specializing in childbirth, and the Navy has an outstanding medical program. Olivia has always had a deep love for babies and children, and she wants to carry that passion and morph it into a career were she can better help them.

Victoria Patrick '11

Her Father was in the Navy for more than 20 years!

Living with a father that has been in the Navy for 20 years comes with perks and struggles. One of Victoria's struggles included when she had to move from Tennessee in 1997, all the way to Pittsburgh. Not only was it a long drive, but she also had to go to a new school. Although she was nervous about being the new kid, she made friends easily. From her dad's career, they have received many financial benefits that help them in times of need. Her whole family is very proud of her father.

I.C Anderson '11

Her Brother Shelby is enlisted in the National Guard.

Shelby has always known what he wanted to do after high school; that was flying planes. So Shelby enlisted into the military. He went to boot camp in Georgia where he gradated in 2010. After graduating from boot camp he is now trying to transfer to be a mechanic for the Air Force's Black Hawk Division. J.C. is proud of her brother, but knows that her brother being gone has changed her home life. The house is now eerily quite, but whenever she thinks of this quietness she knows where her brother is, and what he has become. The pride she feels for him always brings a smile to her face. She is truly happy for him.

Vanessa Villanueva '12

Her Brother Vincent is in the Navy, and is ranked E-3

After Vincent graduated high school he enrolled in Sacramento State University. He then realized that he just wanted to be independent and go out on his own, he decided to join the Navy by going into boot camp on April of this year. Vincent felt more accomplished after he completed training; instead of going directly to the Navy he decided to attend school in South Carolina. In South Carolina, Vincent is majoring in nuclear engineering! Vanessa and her family are extremely impressed and proud of Vincent. Vanessa was sad when he left, but she values and respects her brother's decisions, and loves him unconditionally.

Beatriz Castillo Vargas '11 life experience. But also because their uniforms are

American pride in the military."

April Vogel '11 "The Navy provides job and life experiences, which gives me an opportunity to make a difference in the world."

Alexis Perez '12
"I would want to be in the Marines so I can be a sniper; it's safe, cool, and I get to kick a lot of butt"

Representing the People

On top of the many new and exciting changes that came to Armijo this year, the House of Representatives shines as a bright and promising new program. But if we take a closer look, we find that the idea for the representatives didn't come from a teacher, or administration or even during this school year, but from a student with her hopes and ideas. Page Done By: Jackie Flores Question: Can you explain your idea for the House of Representatives?

-Bridget Carlson '11 Basically it's one person from each fourth period class and they all meet once a month along with the ASB officers and Mr. B or Mrs. Marley and we discuss Armijo activities both past and present. We take their thoughts or questions and feedback and they go and report it to their fourth period classes to improve our school's activities.

Question: Where did you come up with the idea for the House of Reps?

-Bridget Carlson '11 I got it online when I was looking for ideas on what new things we can do to improve Armijo, when I saw that one school had a House of Representatives. They did it a bit different then how we do it though.

Question: Did you ever think it would become this big of a program?

-Bridget Carlson '11 Well when I saw the idea online I honestly didn't know if we could do it and I was skeptical. But when I talked to Mr. B about it he had a lot of confidence in it and even when we met with Mr. Tretten, he thought it was a good idea.

Question: What did you think of the first House of Representatives meeting?
-Bridget Carlson '11: Before it, I was excited because it felt like it was from such a long time ago that I presented the idea and I couldn't believe it was starting. And after I was really happy and surprised at how many people raised their hands and had a lot of good input.

Question: Were you nervous at all?
-Bridget Carlson '11: I wasn't nervous, I was more excited to see how many people would come. And if they would participate, but luckily we got a good group of people that like to talk.

Question: Since it's your senior year, are you excited that you started this?
-Bridget Carlson '11: Ya I am really glad I started something at Armijo and I just really hope that it gets bigger.

How has the House of Representatives affected you?

Wilson Hull '11
"It's good because it helps the distribution of information to the rest of the school."

Areli Machuca '11 "It has definitely made me more involved in the school."

Cordele Glass '11

The Kick-Off Tailgate

The weather was perfect to enjoy the company of over 300 Armijo students at the tailgate prior to the first home game of the season on September 17th, 2010. Food, games, and spirit were all present at the tailgate. Some took the traditional tailgate method and ate in their cars, while others ate at one of the 60 tables set up, while they watched the games. The A-Team was bursting with exra energy and excitement that night which signaled the success of the tailgate. DJ'ing the tailgate, Gerardo Vargas '11 saw it as an opportunity to have fun. "It's my senior year, so I thought I would spice it up a bit." Gerardo blasted music while everyone ate Texas Roadhouse, who catered the event. Being the first official Armijo tailgate, it set a precendent for many more to come.

What's Under the Hood

Just to show the competition who's got class, this car is kept waxed and clean, shining like the best of them.

For those long drives in the summer sun or those starry nights a sunroof is always the perfect addition for a relaxing time in the car.

To help give the true sports car feel, this ride comes with the two door feature, cutting the extra space a four door has, giving extra maneuverability and a nice look.

Without fresh chrome, a sports car would be nothing, these Azul rims give Michael's Acura its own personal bling.

What would a nice car be without an Ipod hook-up on the stereo? Forget channel surfing, this makes sure there's always good beats in this car.

Along with the good music, a sick new radio system hooked up to two ten inch subwoofers in the back gives this ride more bang for its buck.

Michael An '11 gives us the chance to check out his Acura "Illest" Integra with its dual subs in the back and the new era street racer feel it gives off. If you want to look good, carpool with this guy.

A Day In The Life of A Teacher

Arrival and Departure

Waking up early and leaving school later than most students is what teachers have been doing to help Armijo students achieve in their academics. In doing so, the teachers have more time than usual to prepare the day for their students. It also causes them to have fewer interruptions and they are able to work in a more quiet environment.

Besides having to come to school; arrivals and departures are a few negatives when we asked a few of the teachers who work at Armijo. With the amount of time they dedicate towards their jobs, it results in less sleep and it takes away the time that they can spend with their families.

Making the Lesson Plans

You may think that most of the teachers wing their plans for the whole week, but actually they have each month planned out. Having lesson plans made out before the week comes, results in the teachers being more prepared throughout their planned week. Being organized helps keep the teachers on track, so having lesson plans is a great piece of help that is treasured.

The downfalls of making lesson plans are that creating them takes time and effort, this causes the teachers to have to stay longer and work even harder so they can be more organized with their plans. Another downfall of having to create lesson plans is that the teachers might plan too much for the month, because they get ahead of themselves.

Dealing with the Students

Students are the main reasons for why the teachers come to work everyday. The reasons that teachers like teaching are the attitudes and hard work the students put forth. Teaching is a job that adults pursue because it keeps them young; being in the same environment as the students makes the teachers feel as if they are in high school all over again.

Usually you have the one or two goofball students in the class. Having these students with their bad attitudes usually causes the teachers to have to enforce some type of discipline in their classroom. Most of the teachers don't like putting up with these students but it is a task they signed up for when they applied to teach.

Grading the Student's work

Dealing with 170 students isn't enough, on top of that, the teachers have to grade their papers. Some of the ups said by the teachers are that grading student's work lets you in on what the students don't quite understand and what they need to re-teach. The teachers are also able to see their students progress, but seeing the looks on the student's faces when they "get it" is one of the priceless memories a teacher can obtain.

Grading the student's work takes up time, and most teachers obtain an overload of papers they must grade; it's a nightmare for them. When they are able to get around to grading all of their student's work, the teachers are sometimes able to seek out the students errors and can help them when they need help; most of the time the errors are noticeable.

How many hours a day do you think a teacher dedicates to their job?

Priscella Guiterrez '14
"I believe that the teachers spend 10 hours at school dealing with their work."

Angela Alvarado '13
"I think the teachers here at Armijo spend about 7 hours at school."

Alan Ruiz '12
"I think my teacher spends about nine and a half hours at school."

Paulina Angel '11 "My teacher spends eleven hours a day at school."

Average hours a day a teacher works for: 8.7 hours

All they want is to Advise us for College

Ms. Cassy Huang is always ready to help any of Armijo's students when they don't know what to do for their future. Her friendly attitude makes talking about college easier than you'd think.

The computer is a big part of Cassy's job. She's constantly sending out e-mails to every student she can to remind them of opportunities and due dates that are coming up.

Just so that every student that walks into her office really feels the college vibe Ms. Huang hangs her college flags on the walls to represent her college pride and the joy she has in doing what she does.

Not only is Cassy pouring out the helpful tips and hints on how to do college the right way, she also has posters hung all around her room with even more advice, just in case.

Everyone dreads the SAT and ACT tests because, well, they're tests on a whole new level, but Cassy always has her study guides on display for students to look through and prepare with ease.

Constant promotions for new opportunities for college funds and upcoming events are a neccesity for college advisors. To make these easy to keep up with, Ms. Huang has posters premade and planners with the info she needs.

Being prepared is exactly what you need to do in order to go far in life, so Cassy is always prepared with extra copies of college informational papers for anyone who wants them.

College is a big step in everyone's life, but even though we need it so much it's still quite difficult to fully understand and accomplish. At Armijo we have Ms. Cassy Huang always at the ready to assist confused students in completing college applications, Assist-A-Grads, FAFSA, and anything else that you need to be accepted into college.

What's your plan for the next few years and why?

Matthew Klein '11
"I plan on going to the Art Institute in San Fransisco for audio production."

Chevelle McKenzie '11
"I want to go to Eastbay because my cousin recommended it to me."

Jamal Thompson '11
"I'd like to go to Texas

Taking A Closer Look

Golf Carts

Students at Armijo High School often wonder why we have golf carts. Transportation is the main reason why the school chose to buy gold carts. Principals and Campus Monitors use it to go from one side of school to the other as quickly as possible. Golf carts help when it comes to emergencies like if a student gets injured in P.E. class, or when there is an urgent call for someone on the other side of campus. The fun part of having golf carts at school is the rare opportunity of recieving rides. The golf carts at Armijo are an all purpose vehicle that help in many different ways.

This golf cart is often used by Armijo's Camp Monitors. This golf cart is most often used to pick students up and take them to either the front office or the annex office. Likewise it is used for most errands that need to be run throughout the day.

Usually in the mornings and after school, Officer Banks can be seen driving his very own Police golf cart around campus. He does so because it provides him with the ability to patrol all the area around campus in a short amount of time.

Used most often by the janitorial staff here at Armijo, this type of cart is used to help empty the trash cans and other types of manual labor around campus.

What would you do if you could use one of the golf carts for a

Michael Cruz'14 "I would drive it to school everyday.'

Aaron Freeman '13 "I would race it in school against other golf carts."

Darian Quist-Richard '11 "I would make it into a party cart and have my friends ride.'

Jorge Arias '12 "I would put a stereo and paint it with colors of my choice.

Luis Moreno '13 "I would take it to the field and try to do donuts.'

Taking A Closer Look at Hallways by Departments

Mrs. Aronsen

A Science Teacher Whose Never Had the Same Day Twice

Mrs. Aronsen has been teaching here at Armijo for only two years, but has taught for a total of 23 years in her teaching career. She likes the new idea of hallways separated even though she hasn't been here for that long to collaborate with other teachers. Mrs. Aronsen enjoys it because she can just go across the hall to get materials she may need, or share some ideas with the other science teachers. Mrs. Aronsen also has a daughter who taught in the same exact room here at Armijo a few years ago. Her daughter has since studied DNA Analysis and uses her teaching background while she works in court.

Ms. Konstantinopoulos

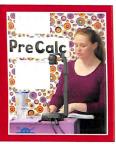

A Science Teacher Who Shares More Than Just Knowledge

This is Ms. Konstantinopoulos 13th year teaching here at Armijo and she likes the hallways separated by departments even though D-hall has always been a science department. She likes the new idea of all the other subjects collaborating because everything is together and if they have a question and someone isn't answering their phones then they could easily walk across the hall.

Ms. Howell

A Math Teacher Who Enjoys the New Set Up

"I love my job because it keeps me busy and laughing," Ms Howell said. Ms. Howell has both her likes and dislikes regarding the hallways separated by departments. She loves it because it's very easy to collaborate and simply walk across the hall to share thoughts, and it makes it more convenient for all the teachers and changes the social atmosphere. She does not particularly like the fact that she is no longer in the same hallway as many of the Spanish teachers because she had so much fun talking with

Mr. Meihaus

A Math Fanatic Who Loves the New Collaboration

Mr. Meihaus finds his job exciting and challenging, but rewarding at the same time. He's been teaching here at Armijo for 7 years. You would think he has been here longer beacause he knows everyone so well. He loves the new idea of hallways separated by departments because it makes it more convenient for teachers in their departments to collaborate and assist each other in their teaching. He also would like his kids to follow in the same foot steps as him and talks about it with them, especially his daughter who is interested in teaching like her father.

Ms. Sanchez

A Spanish Teacher Who Loves to Learn New Things From Her Students

If you have ever met Ms. Sanchez, you will know that she is no ordinary teacher. She has taught at Armijo High School since 1995, but she has such an excited outlook on learning. She enjoys the fact that the hallways are separated by department now because it allows her to collaborate with her fellow Spanish teachers, and it makes it easier for the new teaching support. Ms. Sanchez thinks teaching is a challenging profession, and it helps students connect to the real world.

If you had to room with one of your hall mates who would it be?

Mr. Soper
"Mr. Arcia because, he's fun and it would never be boring, and he could help me with my salsa moves."

Mr. Waddles
"Mr. Soper because, he likes photography and he has the most in common with me."

Mr. Codispoti "Mr. Mitchell because he's very smart. He's a great leader and I look up to him."

Ms. Herring
"Ms. Choy beacuse we get along well, and we're similar in our work ethic outside of school."

Taking A Closer Look Teachers 10 years Ago

John Molumby

A Math Master that Has Been A Part of Armijo's History

Ten years ago, Mr. Molumby, was teaching basic math for his third year in 1998 here at Armijo. Then later on he started teaching higher level math like his AP Calculus Course and his Pre-Calculus ckass. "I was ten years younger", Molumby said. He had gone to Ireland for college to major in math. He was also a priest during the years of 1988 to 1998. He shared, "Be good to yourself. Be good to the world, and let the world be good to you."

Brenda Torres

A Bilingual Teacher Who Achieved Her Goals

Ms. Torres, ten years ago, was only a junior, but was preparing to graduate early. She had plans to go to Chico State University, and she accomplished her goal. As young Torres mastered in Business Administration and Spanish and minored in Latin American Studies, she had thought of becoming a Physical Education teacher. When asked when she decided she wanted to become a Spanish teacher, Ms. Torres replied, "during my second semester at Chico State."

Carly Perales

Both A Teacher and A Coach

Mr. Perales is mostly known for being the coach of the Varsity Boy's Basketball Team and Varsity Women's Volleyball Team. Ten years ago, Perales was working as a fulltime Physical Education teacher here at Armijo High School. "It was my second year teaching", he added. Not only was he teaching P.E., he was just coaching the volleyball team too. "I was living the dream," Perales stated.

Christian Stoll

The Oregon Duck

Mr. Stoll is known for his frequent use of the word "solid" and coaching this years very successful Women's Varsity Basketball Team. Stoll attended the University of Oregon ten years ago. He was studying journalism while he was there. He later graduated form Oregon State in 2003. "College was a few of the best years I have experienced," Mr. Stoll said. Later in the year 2008 he started teaching here at Armijo as a English teacher. He shared, "The University of Oregon is a solid campus that everyone should checkout!"

Lee Inserto

A History Teacher That Has Seen the Places He Talks About

Ten years ago, Mr. Inserto was activated in the army to be a instructor during the year of 2001. He remembers going to the World Trade Centers after the attack on 9/11. Then later on that year he taught eighth graders at Green Valley Middle School. Since then, he has joined Armijo High School as a Work Experince, World Civilizations, and American History Teacher.

We asked some of Armijo's younger teachers where they would want to be in ten years, here's what they said.

Jason Ona
"I would want to be in B-hall teaching higher level math like Calculus".

Krista Hill
"I would still like to be teaching and have a family."

John Taylor
"In ten years from now
I would like to be financially stable and have a career that would feel rewarded."

Daniel Mikkola
"I would want to be teaching here at Armijo hopefully."

taking a closer look at Teacher Appreciation

The Preparations:

The week of teacher appreciation has been planned out for weeks. Starting in the early days of February, the committee has been working on what to do and how to do each activity they've planned for the teachers. The planning didn't just stop on the start of the week, the students assigned to their task worked diligently all the way to the last day of Teacher Appreciation. Whether it was making a poster for a staff member, to figuring out what gift card the teachers would like most and would be the most useful to them.

Breakfast:

To Teachers, teacher appreciation gives them a sense of happiness and joy, to know that there work is appreciated. When asked what she liked best about teacher appreciation week, Mrs. K replied, "I like that students realize how much thought and hard work a teacher has to do in order for students to learn the subject that is taught. And having a week to appreciate teachers for their hard work makes them see that." A cart carrying breakfast was brought around in the morning on Monday. The teachers were able to choose from different breakfast foods such as fruit, muffins, bagels with or without cream cheese, and croissants.

The Luncheon:

They serve a variety of assorted foods and the teachers are all able to enjoy a lunch together without doing any of the work. It shows that the students care about what the teachers do for them. Mr. Mitchell's said his favorite part of Teacher Appreciation Week was the luncheon. Students from the Leadership class worked really hard to put a great lunch together for the teachers and provide them with a nice luncheon at school.

Lights, camera, action! All eyes on Armijo's very own and talented drama teacher Mrs. Choy. We were able to get her to pause and smile for a quick photo while receiving a teacher-gram that was purchased for her by a student.

- During the annual Teacher Appreciation luncheon on Wednesday, we caught the beloved basketball coach Mr. Stoll filling up on a tasty meal.
- 3. The beginning of the week started off with the teachers being treated to a fabulous breakfast, put together by the leadership committee. Mr. Correa was able to pick out from a variety of delicious breakfast items and was really escited about doing so..
- 4. Many caring Students volunteered to help serve the staff during the annual luncheon. This is one way for them to give back and serve their teachers for a change.

APPRECIATION

5. Each year students in leadership get together and make posters for each and every teacher, staff member, and administrator on campus. Theses signs are hung out side classrooms, in hallways, and offices throughout campus, to show how much the students appreciate them.

6. Sheldon Gas was the sponsor who helped out purchasing the food for the teachers for there luncheon. The food was purchased from Athenian Grill this year, which was different from where they bought it from last year.

7. During the lunch time activity, Don't Forget the Lyrics, two teams of teachers battled against each other for the win. One of the highlights of this activity, was Mr. Brandt signing Hit Me With Your Best Shot by Pat Benatar. And for the third consecutive year in a row, he abandoned the lyrics and decided to just rap for the crowd instead.

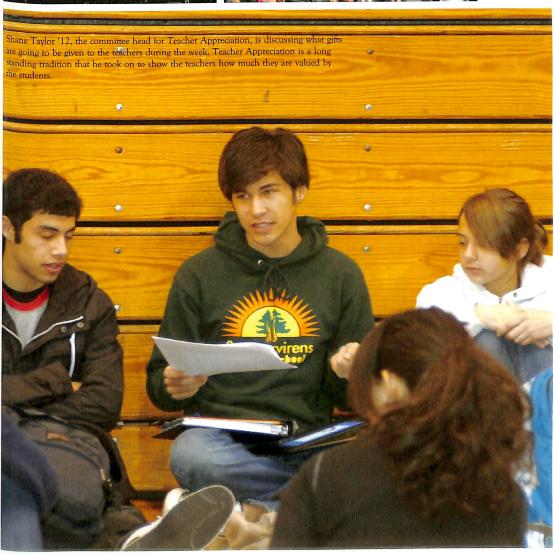

"Teacher Appreciation is a long standing tradition and everyone seems to enjoy themselves throughout this fun filled week. This year there were a few new things add to the week, some of which include the teacher posters that every staff member received, the teacher homecoming and the raffle they had going on during the luncheon on Wednesday. One thing that was started last year that is a big hit was the teacher wish. This is where the teachers pick three things that they want and students grant as many of their wishes as they can. "Leadership has always done a wonderful job with teacher appreciation week."

Tretten

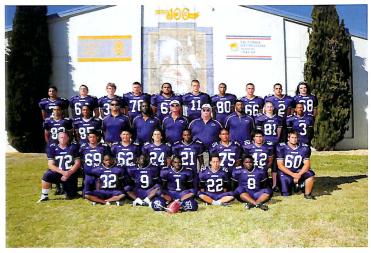

8. The leadership committee for Teacher Appreciation is seen here planning what to do for each day during the week. A lot of planning and effort went into the week, and all the teachers were thankful for all of what they did for them.

9. Mr. Meihaus, sang the song I Want It That Way by the Backstreet Boys, during the lunch time activity held for the teachers, on the last day of Teacher Appreciation week. Everyone had so much fun watching the teachers perform and make the crowd laugh.

A note from the Editors

Throughout the year we have seen everyone grow and contribute to making our yearbook one of the best yet. Even when everything got crazy nobody stopped trying to make things perfect. Upon taking a closer look you can see that everyone did their part. We are extremely grateful for everyone that helped make the book successful along the way. Our advisor, Mr. B, was always ready to help us go from great to better. He inspired us to work our hardest and be the best we could be for all of our assignments. Another thanks goes out to Amity, our yearbook representative, who played a major role in making this years book happen and helping us whenever she could. We would also like to give thanks to all of our editors who worked to make ensure that everything ran smoothly. Last but not least we would like to thank the most extraordinary class ever, this years staff was also one of the most hardworking yet!
